BILL SIGNED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Speak- Clark and Senator Saulsbury, ident pro tem of the Senate, signed the bill shortly after noon and a waiting messenger took the measure to the White House for President Wilson's signature.

Immediate consideration in the Senate of the emergency resolution supplementing the Fall soldiers' homstead amendment of the bill, designed to prevent speculation in homestead rights which may be acquired in the names of youths under 21, was sought by Chairman Chamberlain of the Military Committee, but Senator Jones of New Mexico objected and the resolution went over indefinitely.

PRESIDENT'S PROCLAMATION.

"We solemnly purpose a decisive victory of arms," said the President in his proclamation, "and deliberately to devote the larger part of the military man power of the nation to the accomplishment of that purpose. . . . It is the call to duty to which every true man in the country will respond with pride and with the consciousness that in doing so he plays his part in the vindication of a great cause, at whose summons every true heart offers its supreme service."

The hours of registration will be from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m., and all State and local officials are called on to make immediate arrangements for maintenance of registration places on that day.

All men within the new ages, whether citizens of the United States or not, must register, unless they are diplomatic or consular representatives of foreign nations.

CASE OF ILLNESS.

In case of illness on the registration day, arrangements for tardy enrollment may be made with local boards, and men who expect to be absent from their homes may register by mail, sufficiently in advance that the registration record reaches the board by September 12. If a man has no permanent residence, he is to register at the place he is on September 12, and those out of the country on that day are required to enroll within five days after their return. Men without dependents, in good health and otherwise qualified for arduous duties of soldier life are to be taken first.

Youths in their eighteenth year will be placed in a separate group, the War Department has announced, to be subject to a special educational programme, and will not be called until the supply of other available men in the new classes is exhaust-

Jews Obtain Change of Registration Date from on Saturday.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Religion and politics changed the draft date for registration from September 7 to September 12. Jews who worship on Saturday asked to be allowed to register on Monday. This was allowed in the registration of August 24 and it nearly doubled the work.

Two days of registration was denied so Saturday, September 7 gave away to Thursday, September 12, the date fixed by the President.

Unusual delays due to Congressional tinkering delayed the bill in both the House and Senate, giving the Provost-Marshal-General's office no chance to get instructions and literature to the various draft boards which contributed to the change of dates.

PROCLAMATION.

DRAFTS AMERICA TO WIN WAR.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Following is the text of the President's draft proclamation issued today after signing the man-power bill calling on all males in the United States between the ages of eighteen and forty-five years, inclusive, to register Thursday, Sept. 12, for military service against the Central Powers:

Fifteen months ago the men of the country from 21 to 30 years of age were registered. Three months ago and again this month, those who had just reached the age of 21 were added. It now remains to include all men between the ages of 18 and 45.

This is not a new policy. A century and a quarter ago it was deliberately ordained by those who were then responsible for the safety and defense of the nation that the duty of military service should rest upon all able-bodied men between the ages of 18 and 45. We now accept and fulfill the obligation which they established, an obligation expressed in our national statutes from that time until now. We solemnly purpose a decisive victory of arms and deliberately to devote the larger part of the military man power of the nation to the accomplishment of that purpose.

The younger men have from the first been ready to go. They have furnished voluntary enlistments out of all proportion to their numbers. Our military authorities regard them as having the highest combatant qualities. Their youthful enthusiasm, their virile eagerness, their gallant spirit of daring, make them the admiration of all who see them in action. They covet not only the distinction of serving in this great war but also the inspiring memories which hundreds of thousands of them will cherish through the years to come, of a great day and a great service for their country and for mankind.

By the men of the older group now called upon, the opportunity now open to them will be accepted with the calm resolution of those who realize to the full the deep and solemn significance of what they do. Having made a place for themselves in their respective communities, having assumed at home the graver responsibilities of life in many spheres, looking back upon honorable records in civil and industrial life, they will realize, as perhaps no others could, how entirely their own fortunes and the fortunes of all whom they love are put at stake in this war for right and will know that the very records they have made render this new duty the commanding duty of their lives. They know how surely this is the nation's war, how imperatively it demands the mobilization and massing of all our resources of every kind. They will regard this call as the supreme call of their day and will answer it accordingly.

Only a portion of those who register will be called upon to bear arms. Those who are not physically fit will be excused; those exempted by alien allegiance; those who should not be relieved of their present responsibilities; above all, those who cannot be spared from the civil and industrial tasks at home, upon which the success of our armies depends as much as upon the fighting at the front. But all must be registered in order that the selection for military service may be made intelligently and with full information. This will be our final demonstration of loyalty, democracy and the will to win, our solemn notice to all the world that we stand absolutely together in a common resolution and purpose. It is the call to duty to which every true man in the country will respond with pride and with the consciousness that in doing so he plays his part in the vindication of a great cause at whose summons every true heart offers its supreme service.

OFFICIAL SUMMARY OF BATTLE REPORTS

LONDON, Aug. 31.—In the capture of Mont St. Quentin, north of Peronne and Feuilleaucourt, more than 1500 prisoners were taken by the British, according to Field Marshal Haig's report tonight. The British losses were small.

German troops have been driven from their positions east of Clery, on the Somme, northwest of Peronne, and the British advance in this locality is continuing, according to the official statement issued at the War Office today.

British forces have entered the village of Dranoutre, south of Locre, on the north side of the Lys salient.

On the south side of the Lys salient the British have occupied the village of La Couture, northeast of Bethune.

The British have captured a strong point known as the St. Servins farm and the village of Eterpigny, north of the Arras-Cambrai road and southeast of Arras.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—Heavy fighting north of Soissons and along the Canal du Nord is reported by the War Office tonight. The French have succeeded in overcoming powerful resistance at various points and have taken Campagne, on the east bank of the canal, now hold the village of Crevilly and have advanced their line as far as Leury, northeast of Soissons.

Heavy artillery fire north of Noyon and between the Ailette and the Aisne rivers is reported in the official statement issued at the War Office today.

CARNAHAN'S RESIGNATION IS HANDED GOV. STEPHENS

Commissioner Charges Scalp Demanded for Supporting Rolph.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—In a letter to Gov. W. D. Stephens, made public here tonight, H. L. Carnahan, Commissioner of Corporations, announces that the Governor had requested his resignation and that, in compliance with the request, he had resigned.

Commissioner Carnahan's letter of resignation, in full, is as follows:

"I received late last evening your letter requesting my resignation from the office of Commissioner of Corporations, to be effective today.

"It is obvious that you demand my resignation, because at the recent primary I did not support you and did support Mayor Rolph.

"Since I hold the office only at the Governor's pleasure, it is, of course, for you to decide whether that is a sufficient reason.

"It is generally known that I was not an applicant for the place when I was appointed by Gov. Johnson. My purpose to resign as soon as the work of the department would permit has also been known for several months to my friends, and has been repeatedly mentioned in the public press.

"While your demand for my resignation has merely anticipated my express intention, I must regret you have decided to make the important office of Commissioner of Corporations the sport of politics.

"The Commissioner of Corporations, more than any other official of any department of the State government, holds the business life of California in his hands. The office is one which can be, as it has been, of very great service to the people when administered without regard to politics or favor. But when the office is treated as political spoils, when it is taken away from one man as a retaliation for failure to give political support to you, or given to another man as a reward for political service to you, it becomes a menace to the business interests of California.

"I have striven to keep the State corporation department out of politics and to earn for it the respect and confidence of the business interests of California. In that endeavor I have unquestionably succeeded. While I am glad to be relieved of the office it is natural that I should deplore the abuse of power by which you are likely to destroy the respect and confidence of the people which has been built up with so much pains during my administration.

"You have demanded my resignation on twenty-four hours' notice. There are pending and under consideration several important matters involving large property interests. My sudden resignation will injuriously affect some of those interests. My only reason for not having resigned some weeks ago was the importance of my personal attention to these matters and the desire of the parties interested in them. You, however, are the present Governor. The responsibility of demanding my resignation on such short notice and of treating this office as political spoils is on you. In compliance with your request, I tender my resignation as commissioner of corporations."

The State corporation department was created by the 1913 Legislature, but the act did not become effective until after it had been submitted to a referendum and approved at the election of November 3, 1914. H. L. Carnahan of Riverside was appointed commissioner of the department by Gov. Johnson. The position pays $5000 a year. The corporation department act was amended at the 1917 Legislature, which largely increased the powers of the commissioner.

HEAVY DOSE OF MUSTARD GAS IS GIVEN GERMANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY ON THE VESLE FRONT, Aug. 31.—The Americans early Saturday gave the Germans in Fismette and its vicinity the heaviest dose of gas sent over since the Americans and Germans took foothold along the Vesle. The Americans used mustard gas, and observers after daylight reported that Germans individually and in small groups were leaving the lowlands where the gas fumes clung.

The Germans answered with mustard gas, firing about 1000 shells before settling down to usual artillery firing. There was no infantry action.

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.—(Reuter's.) Between the Ailette and the Aisne, and far to the southeastward along the line of the Vesle, the battlefield is one vast panorama of fire. Here at the moment the Germans are offering the most desperate resistance, since the issue in this sector has a graver strategic bearing than anywhere else along the whole front.

With Gen. Mangin's men already across the Ailette on either side of the village of Champs, the enemy's hold on Coucy-le-Chateau is threatened. Coucy-le-Chateau is highly important to the Germans as a distributing center of troops falling back from Noyon and those fighting stoutly on the left bank of the Ailette.

NEW MAN POWER DRAFT BLOW TO HUNS, ELATES OUR ARMY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.—The enactment of the new American man-power measure brought expressions of satisfaction from the American army. The high command is interested in the moral effect the measure will have upon the enemy. His man power is now concededly at its weakest and his replacement sources limited. Military authorities count upon a reaction in the morale in Germany as a strong factor in the winter situation.

It may be said that from the commander-in-chief to the rank and file everyone is encouraged by the act.

Allied Troops to Form Screen Behind Which Russ Army Can Organize.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Ninety-five Americans, including all consular officers except Consul-General Poole, all the personnel of the Y.M.C.A. and Y.W.C.A., representatives of the American bank and a number of private citizens left Moscow for Petrograd on a special train the evening of last August 26. American interests previously had been turned over to the Swedish Consulate.

With the Americans were the Italian military mission, a party of seventy-one persons.

In belated dispatches received today from Mr. Poole himself, the last dated August 26, the Consul-General reiterated his intention of remaining in Moscow to give moral support to his British and French colleagues, held by the Bolshevik government.

PASSPORTS GIVEN.

The Swedish government also advised that passports of the Americans and others who had left Moscow had been vised to leave Russia and that permission from the Finnish government to pass through Finland would be awaited at Petrograd. This permission already has been authorized.

Three telegrams came through Stockholm from Mr. Poole, the first undated, making inquiry as to the request for free passage of Americans through Finland, which since has been granted. The second telegram, dated August 17, said Mr. Poole then was endeavoring in every possible way to leave Moscow either to the north or east in order that the Consulate-General might remain on Russian territory, but owing to the insistence of the Bolshevik government, it seemed that departure through Petrograd and thence to Stockholm was the only possible route he could take.

Up to that time American private citizens had not been molested and Mr. Poole reported that he was endeavoring to arrange for their departure. He was having difficulty both at Petrograd and in his efforts to have the Finnish government guarantee free passage to Americans, Japanese, Italians and Belgians.

The general situation at Moscow, he reported, was becoming increasingly difficult.

ALLIES TO SCREEN SLAVS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

ARCHANGEL, Thursday, Aug. 29.—More Entente Allied troops are needed to aid in forming a screen behind which a new Russia may be formed to join Russia's allies in the war on Germany, Nicholas Vasilovitch Tschaikovsky, president of the new "sovereign government of the northern region of Russia," told the Associated Press today.

"We want to restore the eastern front against Germany, together with our allies," M. Tschaikovsky said. "We thought the only way to do so, in addition to the agitation of our own people, would be to have a firm military basis and screen to work behind and to protect us from immediate attacks by the Germans and the Bolsheviki.

"Therefore, we required a screen in the shape of at least some Allied forces. We have some, but we need to move quickly and, therefore, we certainly need immediately a number of Allied troops."

M. Tschaikovsky explained that the government does not rely exclusively on the troops of the Allies.

He explained that the government plans to extend its authority as its troops progress, joining all the elements opposing Germany. "We decided to begin the movement in the north, because we felt the Allies could best help us there.

BORN AT MOSCOW.

"As at present formed, our government includes the provinces of Archangel, Murman, Vologda, Vyatka and the northern part of Novgorod. Perhaps Yarcslav and Kostroma will join us," M. Tschaikovsky continued. "The idea was born at Moscow. We include all groups except the extreme Left and the monarchists."

M. Tschaikovsky said he felt the Russian people were capable of a Republican form of government, despite the general illiteracy, and cited the success of the village governments. "The leaders of our group, including myself, were in constant danger of arrest, and had many narrow escapes before the Allies came to our aid," he said.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 31.—(Havas.)—Reproducing a dispatch from Basel, Switzerland, stating that, according to Russian newspapers, the Pan-Russian Extraordinary Commission has decreed the arrest as hostages of all French citizens under 48 years, the Temps says a proposition has been made that the French government hold Nikolai Lenine, the Bolshevik Premier, and his principal accomplices personally responsible

GERMAN SPIES NOW GOAT FOR DEFEAT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—A new explanation from the German newspapers of what is happening in France and Flanders came today in an official dispatch from Switzerland.

It says the German press now asserts that Germany has never known how to organize her system of espionage and that it is to the mistakes made by her secret service that she owes her unpleasant experiences on the western front.

Lack of organization of secret service is blamed for recent disasters.

BATTLE SUMMARY

ALLIED THRUSTS SUCCESSFUL.

[Undated War Resume by the Associated Press.]

Mont St. Quentin has been taken by the Australians, together with Feuillaucourt. In this surprise attack more than 1500 prisoners were taken.

The way is now prepared for the occupation of Peronne and a further important advance to the east.

Simultaneously the French have broken down the resistance of heavy German forces along the Canal du Nord and north of Soissons. In the Soissons area they are in complete possession of Juvigny and Crouy and have reached the western outskirts of Leury.

Notwithstanding the fact that the Allied progress has slowed down somewhat owing to the reinforcements rushed in in an endeavor to hold the vital points on their line, there has been no cessation of the Allied thrusts along the entire eighty-mile front and, with minor exceptions, these thrusts have been successful.

IMPORTANT GAIN.

A gain of great importance in the Lys salient has been made by the British, who are now in possession of that much-fought-over ground, Kemmel Hill.

North of the Somme battlefield proper, the Germans, seeing the danger to their entire army in further inroads of the British across the Hindenburg line southeast and east of Arras, have massed men and guns to hold that position. British forces have nearly broken through and the danger is not over.

In Flanders, the Germans are rapidly retiring to their lines running near Armentieres which they stormed late in April. Mont Kemmel, southwest of Ypres, has been taken, while Bailleul, where there was terrific fighting when the Germans were striving to reach the channel ports, is again in British hands.

Further south the Germans are east of the Lawe and the British have taken more ground to the northeast of Bethune. As nearly as it is possible to measure the extent of the German retirement, it seems the enemy has abandoned a strip from one to two miles deep over what would be equal to a front of about twelve miles.

NEAR OLD LINE.

From Bapaume to the Oise the British are now within ten or twelve miles of the Hindenburg line.

Fighting to delay the Allied forces until the retreating Germans can be extricated from the Somme and Sapterre battlefields and placed behind the Hindenburg line, Gen. Ludendorff's armies seem for the time being to have almost checked the Allied advance.

At only one point in Picardy have the Germans been forced to give ground during the day. This is just north of Peronne, where the Somme turns west. Here the British have advanced a considerable distance, according to advices from the field, but they have not continued the victorious sweep that marked their progress after the German line had given way southwest of Bapaume.

In the south near Soissons, French and Americans are keeping up their pressure against the German lines which threatens to outflank the enemy positions along the Aisne and Vesle. Further north, the French have made only local gains in their effort to reach Coucy-le-Chateau and capture the heights which dominate the old German positions along the Chemin des Dames.

ADVANCE SLOWLY.

Westward from the Ailette along the Oise and northward to the Somme River, west of Ham, the French are fighting hard, but their advance is slow.

Mont Kemmel, the height dominating virtually all the northern side of the Lys salient in Flanders, is again in the hands of the British. This famous hill, for which the Germans paid a terrible price in April and which was defended to the death by the Allies, has been captured apparently without a fight.

There have been no reports of an attack being made on this hill and it seems probable that the Germans retired from it. There are evidences the enemy's retreat from the Lys salient is being accelerated, the British having taken the station of Bailleul, as well as Mont Lille to the east, and being in possession of the bank of the Australians Storm Hill Defense.

Hundreds of Prisoners are Taken in Daring Rush of Infantry.

Torrent of Steel Warns Huns to Move Quickly or Surrender.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.—With Mont St. Quentin in British possession, the Germans are in a precarious position. Peronne must be evacuated or the enemy may lose many more men.

Starting from east of Clery this morning, the Australians fought forward despite the heavy machine-gun fire and swarmed into Feuillaucourt, capturing 200.

Another body of Australians, unaided by artillery, attacked Mont St. Quentin. The Germans had no idea that the Australians would dare attempt such a feat. By 8 o'clock the Australians had fought their way to the top, and soon afterward they signalled its capture.

Mont St. Quentin was alive with Germans, who came from everywhere, crying, "Kamerad."

Those who did not were driven from their retreats or killed. Hundreds of prisoners were captured.

While the hill was being mopped up, British guns cut loose and began pounding a torrent of steel back of Mont St. Quentin as a reminder to the Germans that they had better start moving quickly.

The Australians must have worked with great swiftness to make so much progress in so short a time.

At various points between Kemmel and Bethune, the Germans have been retiring and the British have gained back a very considerable amount of ground.

Several counter-attacks delivered during the day east of Bapaume, astride the road to Cambrai, literally withered away before the fire of the British machine guns. The road to Cambrai and the ground on either side for some distance was dotted with the bodies of Germans who dashed against the British in useless attempts to drive them from the positions they had captured.

About the same time the Germans were being beaten here, the Canadians launched a fresh attack just south of the Arras-Cambrai road and drove into the enemy lines for some distance. Heavy fighting is reported to be still in progress between the Arras-Cambrai and the Bapaume-Cambrai roads.

British troops have come close up to the Drocourt-Queant line and are holding on while the Boche is trying to dislodge them. Counter-attacks have been launched here and the battle has been raging constantly. Neither side gives the other a chance to get the slightest rest. The instant German counter-attacks are beaten off, the British reattack and gain a little more ground. If the British fall back slightly before powerful Boche strokes, as soon as they have quieted down a little the British attack again and hurl the Germans out, not only gaining ground, but improving their positions.

The Germans have fought well in this locality, but have gained nothing and have suffered enormous casualties.

It is noted in the fighting here the enemy seems to have abandoned the rifle and is doing nearly all his fighting with light and heavy machine guns.

Further advances have been made during the day along the Bapaume-Peronne road.

Longatte and Ecoust, from which the British retired yesterday, were Germans Now Indifferent to Defeat; Only Wish for War's End.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 31.—The Germans have been seized with a sort of peace mania, according to the frontier correspondent of the Telegraaf. The events in France have made such a profound impression that the Germans one meets along the frontier are indifferent to the prospect of the defeat of the Central Empires, and only wish to get peace as quickly as possible.

The correspondent says two German regiments in Russia refused to go to the western front and that 130 of the soldiers were shot and 700 of the bodyguard at Munich refused to go to the front, barricading themselves in their barracks until they were compelled to surrender.

British Troops March Into Bapaume in Triumph for Second Time After Long Fighting

Repeating History.

HAIG'S MEN SWEEP WIDE PATH CLEAR OF GERMANS

Scotsmen, Londoners, Lancashires Vie with Overseas Troops in Doing Deeds of Great Daring.

BY PHILIP GIBBS.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WAR CORRESPONDENTS' HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 30 (delayed.)—The places we captured today and last night are so many that a mere list of them is too long to print. It extends from north of the Scarpe, where the Scotsmen are on the outskirts of Plouva after their long and gallant fighting, to Bullecourt, which Londoners and West Lancashire troops took yesterday, going farther east today than we have ever been before and away down south beyond Bapaume and toward Peronne.

In the First Army, the Canadians, following up yesterday's splendid attack of the Londoners, made a new assault today and are within a few hundred yards of the Drocourt-Queant line, and in the Third Army the New Zealanders and other troops are getting out into the open country and on the high ground to the north and east of Bapaume.

I picked some roses today in Bapaume, red Rambler roses, which would make a garland for a steel helmet of one of the New Zealanders to whom honor is most due for the capture of the town. Bapaume was not a fragrant place for rose lovers when I went in early this morning, when the new battle was in progress outside. German shells were smashing among the houses, and there was a smell of corruption and high explosives in its ruined streets, but I noticed how, against the broken wall, these roses were in bloom, and marigolds and sweet Williams, among red brick dust of the ruins, and I picked a bunch out of sheer maudlin sentiment, for there is sentiment about the recapture of Bapaume for all our soldiers and for me. It was the second time we entered it in triumph after stern fighting up the long, long trail.

THE FIRST THRILL.

I shall never forget the thrill of that first entry on March 17 last year, when I had the luck to go in with the Australians up the long road from Albert past Pozieres and Le Sars and Butte and those frightful places where thousands of our men had fallen on the way. It seemed then Bapaume was the goal of victory, and, in spite of the dreadful sights about, one's spirit rose as one passed each shell crater and drew nearer the town. The repetition of experiences is never quite so fresh in sensation as the first adventure, yet to get again into Bapaume after its loss last March, when the German army came rolling the tide back over the Somme battlefields, was a thing worth doing. It was another landmark of history made this time by the New Zealanders and English regiments fighting beside them.

The fields were pale in the first light of day, and there was a white mist over all the war zone, until it was soaked up by the rising sun. The battlefields were ghastly in this whitish glamor with the dew clinging to strands of barbed wire and to the tall thistles growing rankly in unreaped cornfields all cut up with trenches and shell craters. Supply trains puffed through the desolation of those old battlefields with long trails of white smoke and truckloads of shells for new battles. Kite balloons rose above the gray earth and wagged their white ears aloft. Presently along the roads the transport came crawling. Labor battalions came out of their camps, in which the smoke fires burned, and marched up to mend the roads tramped over by German boots a day or two ago. From the airdromes on the way our flying men were coming out for the first flight of the morning and winged away into the dappled sky.

AWAKE TO BATTLE.

So the world awoke to another day of war, though farther off there was no waking for man. I went up through Miraumont and the valley of the Ancre, across which the Welsh went wading to capture the heights of Thiepval.

It was a valley of abomination, and dawn lightened its leprous trees sticking out of the deep swamps, from which there arose wafts of stench where dead things lie rotting. The sandbag emplacements, where men had little shelter from the storms of fire, were white against the charred earth, and black stumps were everywhere. For miles up this valley to Irles and Achiet-le-Petit and Grevillers and other places near Bapaume, where our men had been fighting hard these last few days, the ground is a tumult of tortured earth. All these pits were dug by shells, all this wild destruction of places in the first year of the war and mangled ever since, still hold relics of German life and German death newly littered here. Their great steel helmets, punctured by bullets or torn like paper by shell splinters, lay in thousands, with gas masks and rifles and cartridge belts and graycoats, every mile of the way lay rows of stink bombs, never used against our men, and dumps of unexploded shells, hideous in their potentiality. A few dead horses lay on each side of the tracks as they had gone trudging up with our transport before being shot. Beside one horse lay dead a white dog, the pet of a transport column. For picture of war an artist should have been here, but the men hereabouts had other work to do.

BUSINESS OF WAR.

They were getting on with the business of bringing up guns across the wild wastes of craters, filling up pits in the roads for the transport to pass, tearing up broken rails that new ones might make riding and marching forward easier to support their comrades in another day of fighting. They were mostly New Zealanders on this way, and although bad stuff was flying about—the enemy was crumpling between Villers and Achiet-le-Petit and battering high velocities about in a vicious random way—many of these lads did not trouble to wear steel helmets, but kept to their slouch hats with a dandy red band. I poked my head into a tent to get some directions, and found a New Zealander officer just waking up from a too-brief sleep.

"How are things going?" I asked, and he said: "Oh, fine. Our boys have done greatly and are still going ahead."

He sat up to tell me some other adventures; how they fought machine-gun nests, how the Germans counter-attacked a day or two ago and got very near to their field batteries, which were far forward.

"What do you think?" he said. "Those gunners of curs fought at blank range until the Germans were nearly up to their muzzles, and took seven prisoners on their own account, which is not in the artillery contract. They are devilishly amused with themselves and have reason to be."

BAPAUME UNCHANGED.

So I went on to Bapaume with a quickened pulse, over the trenches taken only yesterday and still bristling with parts of German machine guns, which were densely emplaced along the line. The New Zealanders were organizing their own defenses in the German trenches and oiling their rifles. They pointed out the best way into Bapaume through the belts of wire, and I went on across the railway, which I crossed first in March of 1917 on another offensive. Bapaume is not much different today than when I last saw it before the German avalanche of a few months ago.

Since then our guns have pounded it, our flying men have gone over it at night dropping tons of explosives, and now this morning the enemy is shaking it again. But what difference can there be in a place already ruined, a scrap heap of broken houses, except more holes in the walls, broken roofs rebroken, brick work smashed into smaller dust.

I prowled about the streets of Bapaume, through gaping walls of houses, over piled wreckage, and found it the same old Bapaume as when I left it, except some of our huts and officers' clubhouses and some Y.M.C.A. tents and shelters had been blown to bits like everything else.

This was the chief difference, except again for many signs showing the recent occupation of the enemy. One notice caught my eye, and I saw the same message of warning in Grevillers and Achiet and other places near Bapaume, showing how effective has been the work of our airmen in the terror to German soldiers. It said: "Weg vor der strausse hier finden euch feindliche fleiger." ("Keep off the streets here, you will find hostile airmen.") These notices were even in the open country down the battlefield tracks, telling how our airmen had swooped over them all with their constant menace.

Prowling about those sinister streets of Bapaume I met a fellow in a steel hat who had a valuable box of matches, which was good for cigarettes and friendly conversation. He told me before he became a rifleman of the New Zealanders he was an editor of a newspaper in his country and a literary man. We exchanged views on the war and life and shell fire and ruins, and he told me how some days ago, when he was outside Puisieux with his platoon they were badly troubled by German machine guns in front of them. The editor was one of six who went to get rid of this trouble, if they had the luck, and they not only brought in the machine gun, but twenty-six prisoners as well, being the first batch from Puisieux. It was another little experience for a man who was more ready with the fountain pen than the rifle before the world went to war.

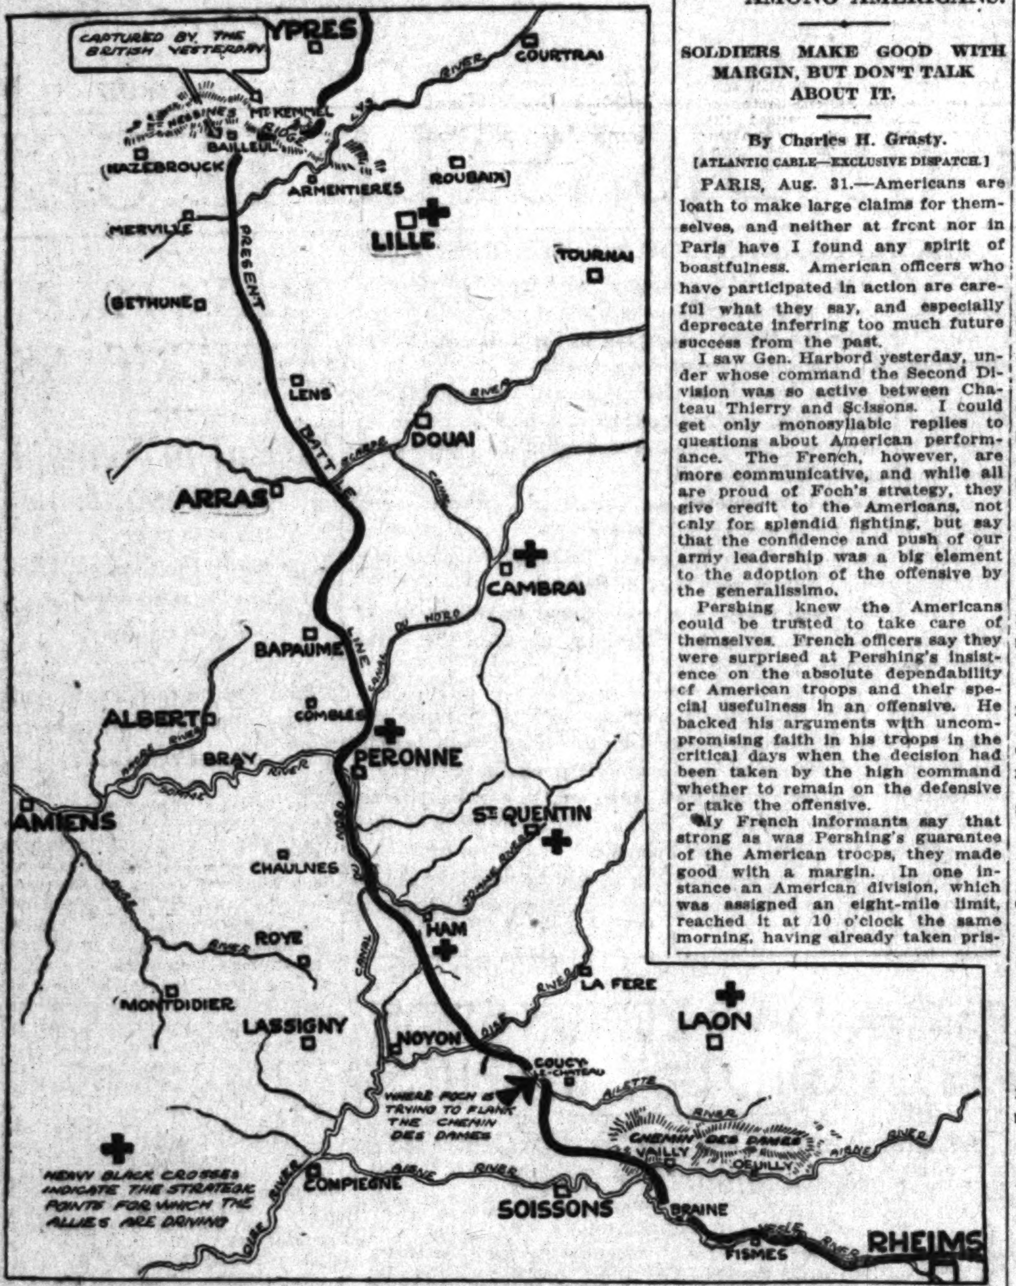
In the streets of Bapaume I picked up a book dropped in a hurry by some poor devil who will never read it. It was entitled "Der Kraft Der Strong Der Frieden Das Meer Der Gnade" ("The Source of Power, the Flood of Peace, the Sea of Grace,") and I think when I have time I shall read it to find out the angle of German philosophy with regard to the war. It ought to make good reading, though not, perhaps, as the author intended.

ANOTHER ACTION.

At 8:30 o'clock this morning another action began outside Bapaume and for half an hour or more our drumfire was fierce and heavy. I was amazed to see our guns so far forward, heavy guns as well as field guns, but all through the recent fighting the New Zealand gunners have been like greyhounds on the scent, and have followed their infantry with amazing speed and skill. The heavies were firing in a wide area around Bapaume, and their shells came through the air with a ripping sound that almost lifted my hair through my steel helmet. Shell after shell of large caliber screamed overhead, and some of them had a high, gobbling noise as they spun at lightning speed, and the bellowing guns seemed to shake these old battlefields and stir their troubled earth.

Field batteries within short range of the enemy were knocking, knocking like postmen in London streets, with double rat-a-tats, as children might dream of them at night. The New Zealanders and English troops were attacking Fremicourt and the high ridge northeast of Bapaume overlooking Beugny, while Bencourt was being approached by other English troops, and farther south our men were working towards Beaulencourt. Success in these attacks would give us the strongest defensive lines around Bapaume and put the enemy in a perilous position.

Showing Latest Changes on West Front.



The black line shows positions attained by the Allies yesterday.

The most acute point of the battle line is north of Soissons, where the French and Americans are fighting to break through the German line and outflank the strategic position at Chemin des Dames. The fall of this ridge would involve a Hun retirement on a big scale and would endanger the German tenure of Laon. The British capture of Mont Kemmel opens the way to take the big strategic ridges south of Ypres.

CHEMIN DES DAMES LINE MENACED BY AMERICANS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

PARIS, Aug. 31, 1:10 p.m.—The positions won yesterday by the American forces northwest of Soissons, La Liberte points out, give them a fine view along the Chemin-des-Dames. The Americans now can see the towers of the Laon cathedral.

PARIS, Aug. 31.—While the center of the eighty-mile battle line was relatively quiet, enemy resistance increased yesterday on both wings. He was unable, however, to arrest the progress of the Allies. At the northern end, Gen. Horne and Gen. Byng gained important ground for future operations by taking Bullecourt, the most solid position in that sector. Last night's British official statement admitted that British troops had been forced back to the western outskirts of Bullecourt.

Gen. Mangin attacked the southern end of the line. The region in which he is fighting forms an elbow where the line running from Dunkirk to Noyon meets a line running at right angles across France to Nancy. This "hinge" position is exceptionally strong since it is based north of Soissons on a high plateau overlooking the valley of the Aisne to the south and the Ailette to the north.

Gen. Ludendorff to hold this position has thrown in the best divisions he can muster. These are Alpine regiments, Prussian Guards and picked Bavarian and Saxon units.

Gen. Mangin, however, has in his command some of the finest American divisions, together with elite French and colonial troops. The fighting during the last forty-eight hours has equalled in ferocity anything as yet seen during the war.

Nevertheless the enemy had to give way, and the Franco-American forces have won half the plateau between Soissons and the Coucy-le-Chateau. The Soissons-Coucy and the Soissons-Anizy-le-Chateau roads are threatened, and the Germans are faced by the danger of the French getting behind the Chemin des Dames in their rear.

MONT KEMMEL CAPTURED BY BRITISH ONSLAUGHT.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 31, 1:10 p.m.—Mont Kemmel, the famous stronghold southwest of Ypres, which was the scene of terrific fighting during the German offensive in Flanders late in April, together with Mont de Lille, have been captured by the British.

Mont St. Quentin, a mile and a half north of Peronne, has been taken also by Field Marshal Haig's forces. They are now moving in the direction of Bussu, progressing a mile and a half east of Bailleul.

In the Lys salient the British hold La Couture and Lestrem and are west of Douleiu at Noote Boom.

French troops made a slight advance on the Ailette River, occupying the southern outskirts of the wood 500 yards southwest of Coucy-le-Chateau.

LONDON, Aug. 30. — The correspondent of the Daily Mail at French headquarters, writing of the slaughter in the fighting on the east bank of the Ailette, says:

"It is the old days of Verdun again. The Germans are resorting to their old methods of crowding men into the front lines, rather than placing them in echelons, in accordance with the more recent theory of the German high command.

"This probably is enabling them to hold the Ailette positions longer, but at a terrible sacrifice. Gen. Mangin's artillery is playing with deadly precision. The position is as important for the French to win as for the Germans to keep."

MEYER LAMENTS LOST AMERICAN NEUTRALITY

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 31.—Professor Kuno Meyer, who was in America in May, 1915, when the Lusitania was sunk, describes in the pan-German Taegliche Rundschau of Berlin, the attitude of America toward Germany at the time the liner was destroyed. There had been considerable discussion of the law suit arising out of the loss of the Lusitania, which was decided in the United States recently.

"Every American, whether hostile, friendly or indifferent toward us, assumed as a matter of course that we would continue to sink munition ships," Prof. Meyer declared. "It was a different feeling than that which prevails today and that we lost the benefit of it through our own fault is a bitter thought."

FOR MORE PROTECTION TO STATE WAREHOUSES

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Insurance men, warehouse men, owners and custodians of food supplies from different sections of the State, at a meeting here yesterday with the Executive Committee of the State Council of Defense, pledged to aid the council in protecting warehouses where food is stored by providing for special lighting and extra guards.

The council recently issued a general request to those having warehouse interests to take immediate steps for more adequate protection of the warehouses and their contents particularly against fires of incendiary or accidental origin.

BOASTING LACKING AMONG AMERICANS.

SOLDIERS MAKE GOOD WITH MARGIN, BUT DON'T TALK ABOUT IT.

By Charles H. Grasty.

[ATLANTIC CABLE—EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

PARIS, Aug. 31.—Americans are loath to make large claims for themselves, and neither at front nor in Paris have I found any spirit of boastfulness. American officers who have participated in action are careful what they say, and especially deprecate inferring too much future success from the past.

I saw Gen. Harbord yesterday, under whose command the Second Division was so active between Chateau Thierry and Soissons. I could get only monosyllabic replies to questions about American performance. The French, however, are more communicative, and while all are proud of Foch's strategy, they give credit to the Americans, not only for splendid fighting, but say that the confidence and push of our army leadership was a big element to the adoption of the offensive by the generalissimo.

Pershing knew the Americans could be trusted to take care of themselves. French officers say they were surprised at Pershing's insistence on the absolute dependability of American troops and their special usefulness in an offensive. He backed his arguments with uncompromising faith in his troops in the critical days when the decision had been taken by the high command whether to remain on the defensive or take the offensive.

My French informants say that strong as was Pershing's guarantee of the American troops, they made good with a margin. In one instance an American division, which was assigned an eight-mile limit, reached it at 10 o'clock the same morning, having already taken prisoner 3100 Germans, exclusive of wounded. They could have gone farther, but, of course, played the game as directed by the French army command under whose orders they were operating.

The tradition and experience of the French have been invaluable in giving the Americans the right kind of a start and safeguarding them against overexuberance just as the elan of those newcomers injected fresh life and spirit into the armies so long under the harrow of the Hun invasion.

BOY-ED'S "DISCLOSURES" TELL OF SECRET PACT.

SAYS AMERICA WOULD NOT HAVE ENTERED WAR BUT FOR GREAT BRITAIN.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

WITH THE AMERICAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.—Capt. Karl Boy-Ed, former German naval attache at Washington, who, with Capt. Franz von Papen, former military attache, was credited with engineering German propaganda designed to keep the United States out of the war and was expelled by the American government, has come out with a book containing a fantastic account of his "investigations" in the United States, according to a prisoner taken north of Soissons.

One of the captain's most striking "disclosures" is that the United States entered the war because of a secret treaty with Great Britain. He contends that had it not been for this alliance America would have kept out of the conflict.

The prisoner was thoroughly convinced, as he said his countrymen generally were, of the truth of these assertions.

A philosophical wounded prisoner was encountered today in the road near the battlefield. He said:

"They told me that the Americans murdered their prisoners."

When asked if he had believed that charge he answered:

"One does not make a great nation out of men like that."

FOOD SENT PRISONERS IN GERMANY RECEIVED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Acknowledgments have been received of 86 per cent. of the food packages sent to American prisoners in Germany by the American Red Cross, according to cable advices received today.

Reserve supplies are now on hand at all camps where Americans are interned, so that in case the original packages are lost, or new men arrive, they may be supplied promptly.

MILK DISPLACES WINE IN CHRISTENING SHIPS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Bottles of milk have been substituted for bottles of wine in christening ships at Portland, Or., and suggestions have been made to the Shipping Board that the substitution be made general at all shipyards.

The bottles before being filled with milk, according to the Portland custom, must be filled with coins contributed by the workers for French and Belgian war orphans.

YAQUI INDIANS QUIT ARMY, GO ON WARPATH

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Aug. 31.—Three hundred Yaqui Indians revolted from the command of Gen. Arnulfo Gomez last Monday at Ortiz, 250 kilometers south of the border. They fought a brief engagement with the Federal forces from Torres and then took the field as an independent command. They have not joined Gens. Cabral and Medina.

Three hundred additional Yaqui Indian soldiers have revolted near Culiacan, it is reported here, and attempted to enter that city, but were driven away by Mexican Federals. Owing to bad wire facilities this has not yet been definitely confirmed.

Ninety per cent. of the Sonora Federal army is composed of Yaqui Indian troops.

EW YORK, Aug. 31.—The fight- of the past week has brought ut that which many military ice felt was inevitable—a German eat. Last week the British ac- s about the Somme were of e or less uncertain character. British report said that attacks being made and that progress the German positions was good, details were lacking. Of these principles the cardinal is that before military victory has been won the man power of the enemy must be destroyed.

Destruction in such a case does not mean, of course, that the entire hostile army must be killed or maimed. It does mean, however, that sufficient of its units must be rendered hors de combat to force the capture, the dispersion, the general breaking up of the military force and the complete destruction of its power of resistance. In this way and only in this way can the terms of peace de dictated. Any other end merely paves the way for a peace formed on the basis of compromise. Therefore, it is to the German army which we must look, on its depletion, through captures and other casualties, on its resources in man power by which this depletion may be made good by new drafts on the population.

DEFEAT FACES GERMANY.

On the basis of present man power there is no doubt that total defeat stares Germany in the face. The losses of the Allies are being much more than made good by the accretions in strength from America. Day by day the numbers of Americans are increasing and the consequent disparity in numbers continues to grow. Day by day Germany is growing not relatively, but actually weaker through the very heavy casualties which the Allies are inflicting on her.

Through the new tactics which are being employed in the recent offensives, the tactics based on mechanical superiority rather than on man power, the Allied losses have been relatively slight. Tanks in large numbers preceding or accompanying the infantry, have done much of the work of clearing up machine-gun nests and of breaking down intrenched enemy resistance that was formerly left to the artillery and have done it much more rapidly and more effectively through being able to introduce in its highest form the element of surprise.

The result has been that from all sides, official and otherwise, we are assured that the Allied losses have been extremely small in comparison not alone with the results achieved, but with those of the Germans. In some cases, indeed, the total Allied losses have been actually less than the number of prisoners taken.

The ground captured, restored to France, is most imposing. Not more than one-third of all the French territory that Germany has occupied since the beginning of her offensives on the 21st of March still remains in German hands. It is a matter which the Allies and their most able commander-in-chief may review with pride.

But no one knows more truly than that same commander-in-chief that the true measure of what the Germans have lost since the 18th of July is not the territory which has been restored, gratifying as that is to our souls, but the effect of that restoration on the German army as evidenced through their casualty lists.

PROHIBITION WILL CUT STATE'S WINE VINTAGE.

TWO-THIRDS LOSS PREDICTED, WITH GRAPE CROP BEST IN HISTORY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Two-thirds reduction in the 1918 vintage of California sweet wines was predicted today by officials of the California Wine Growers' Association, in view of the possible enactment of the war-time prohibition measure.

Last year's production was 14,000,000 gallons, and 5,000,000 was fixed as the probable maximum for the coming autumn, despite the fact that the crop of sweet wine grapes is one of the best in the history of the State, according to experts.

A decided increase in the output of dry wines, however, is forecast, a maximum of 40,000,000 gallons being possible, it was declared. This increase was explained on the theory that foreign-born residents of the East, particularly, who are the largest users of these beverage, are planning to lay in large supplies against the "drought" scheduled for July next. This increase will not offset the reduction in sweet wine production, it was said.

Revenue officials predicted a great falling off in the Federal income for this district as a consequence of the curtailment of wine manufacture. Last year the revenue collected from wines and brandy used for fortifying purposes, amounted to $6,740,000, of which $3,400,000 was collected from sweet wines, $2,240,000 from dry wines and $1,100,000 from brandy.

One Thousand and Three Planes Ready for Front.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—American troops brigaded with the British and French forces are being withdrawn as rapidly as possible to join the First American Field Army under Gen. Pershing, Gen. March said today in his weekly conference with members of the Senate Military Committee.

The general reiterated that the fighting on the western front is going satisfactorily to the Allies.

The Senators questioned Gen. March regarding reported plans of the War Department to take over some 400 educational institutions throughout the country and to educate boys between 18 and 20 years of age pending their call into actual military service. He explained the plans under which boys drafted who show a desire to attain technical education will be furloughed after being drafted for the purpose of attending college. He said regulations to carry out the programme have not been promulgated, but indicated that there was no purpose to undertake education of all drafted youths.

The Chief of Staff threw no new light on the part Americans are playing in the present offensive, but the impression was given that the programme of concentrating the army for action under Gen. Pershing was going forward satisfactorily.

Gen. March said the latest figures of men actually landed abroad showed 1,220,000 in France on August 7. Several hundred thousand have been landed since then, however, and last week Gen. March announced the number embarked had passed 1,500,000.

Shipments of De Haviland airplanes, which were temporarily held up on the order of Secretary Baker so certain changes could be made in them, Gen. March said, were resumed this week.

Reports received up to today by the War Department show that 1003 De Haviland planes had been completed and made ready to turn over to the government this week, and 565 had been shipped or were already en route overseas.

INFLUENZA DECREASES, CAMP LEWIS REPORTS.

ONLY 25 CASES AMONG 29,372 MEN: OTHER HEALTH CONDITIONS EXCELLENT.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CAMP LEWIS (Tacoma) Aug. 31. Influenza is decreasing among men stationed here, according to the weekly camp health report of Maj. I. L. McGlasson, camp sanitary inspector, issued today. This week there were twenty-five cases among 29,372 men against thirty cases last week.

The report shows twenty-three cases of pneumonia, twenty-one bronchial and two lobar. The apparent increase of pneumonia is due to delay in reports of the disease being made, some cases in this report already being of men already returned to duty. With but there exceptions the pneumonia cases developed among men just arrived here.

Six cases of measles and one of German measles were reported. There were nine cases of mumps and one of chicken pox. There were no cases of scarlet fever, malaria, meningitis or diphtheria.

Selective draft men numbering 2222 arrived here today and were mustered into service. They came from Washington, Oregon, California, Utah, Colorado, Montana, North Dakota and Idaho.

Many officers and enlisted men left camp today to assist in different Labor Day celebrations. Monday has been declared a holiday for the camp, with the exception of necessary fatigue and guard duty and few men will return until late Monday night or early Tuesday. Drafted men from western States arriving within the past three weeks, because of being in quarantine, will not be allowed to leave camp.

The major-general to command the Thirteenth Division is expected to be announced during the coming week. This information will come direct from Washington.

retaken and the number of prisoners increased.

Bullecourt is being mopped up. South of Bapaume the British have captured Riencourt-les-Bapaume.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 31.—British successes on the Lys salient sector of the battle front have caused the Germans to start a retreat from the neighborhood of Kemmel to opposite Bethune. The withdrawal is progressing rapidly.

Advances have been made here and there by British forces along the battle front, but they have been slight.

The enemy delivered vicious counter-attacks with powerful forces south of the Arras-Cambrai road. As the result of one of these counterblows the British withdrew to the edge of Riencourt-les-Cagnicourt.

The Germans also are in some strength south of the railway below Bullecourt and they now are being attacked by the British. The outskirts of Ecoust-St. Mein, from where the British also retired late yesterday, again are being attacked.

WITH THE BRITISH FORCES IN FRANCE, Aug. 31 (noon.)—Field Marshal Haig's men today are attacking near Marrienes Wood between Bapaume and the River Somme, which position is strongly held by the enemy.

On both sides of the River Scarpe, on the Arras front, there have been heavy enemy counter-attacks, delivered apparently by fresh troops. Here as elsewhere the British have maintained their gains only by retiring slightly where a few yards are not as valuable as lives and where the opportunity has offered to inflict heavy casualties on the enemy.

In all these places many Germans were killed and wounded, and they lost a considerable number of prisoners.

Plouvain, on the north of the Scarpe, now has been completely cleared of the enemy.

South of the river, ground has been gained in the direction of Eterpigny and Hamblain-les-Pres.

South of Bapaume hard fighting continues and more ground has been captured by the British. Between Bapaume and the Somme the British are attacking near Marrienes Wood, which is strongly held by the enemy.

In the north the recent British successes have apparently caused the Germans to start a withdrawal extending roughly from the neighborhood of Kemmel through the region of Bethune, and this morning the British lines appeared to be progressing rapidly on the heels of the enemy. While the salient here is gradually becoming more shallow, the enemy is retiring only after applying the torch to his stores and demolishing what remains of the houses.

RED GUARD DRIVEN BACK.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE AND A. P.]

VLADIVOSTOK, Monday, Aug. 26.—Entente forces and the Czecho-Slovak troops have attacked the Bolshevik Red Guard on the Ussuri River front and have driven the enemy back for a distance of fifteen miles. Prisoners were taken and booty was captured by the Allied forces.

Thirty-eight wounded French and Czecho-Slovak soldiers arrived here from the Ussuri fighting zone. The men were transported by the American Army Medical Corps, which overcame the greatest obstacles to obtain a sanitary train to move them to Vladivostok. They were turned over to the care of the American Red Cross.

The recent attempt of Lieut.-Gen. Horvath to gain control of the Russian military forces in Siberia was such a complete failure that it is probable the 400 Zemstvo troops, which sided with him and subsequently were disarmed, will join the army of Gen. Semenoff, anti-Bolshevik leader in Trans-Baikalia, who is co-operating with the Allies' forces. The troops offered no resistance to the decision of the Allies that they must lay down their arms.

The disarming of the Zemstvos was effected by squads of Allied troops who virtually besieged the barracks occupied by the revolters. A decision to submit an ultimatum to the revolters was reached by the Council commanders.

The revolters were given the option of returning to their original command or of joining the forces of Gen. Semenoff on the Manchurian front or of submitting to disarmament.

TOKIO REPORTS VICTORY OVER BOLSHEVIK FORCES.

[BY PACIFIC CABLE AND A. P.]

TOKIO, Sunday, Aug. 25.—An Allied official statement issued today by the Japanese War Office describes fighting on the Ussuri front. The text of the statement reads:

"On August 22 the enemy still remained on our front. His airplane was observed in the afternoon. Otherwise there was no change. The enemy's strength was about 8000 infantry. The field guns actually observed numbered fourteen, and he also had some other heavy guns.

"On August 23 our right wing, now guarded by the Japanese, was twice attacked by the enemy, numbering 1000, with field pieces and machine guns. The enemy was completely repulsed.

"In the evening the left wing also was attacked by 2000 enemy infantry with six machine guns. The Czecho-Slovaks stubbornly resisted, but were obliged to retreat. The Twelfth Infantry Division, arriving there, covered the retreat of the Czecho-Slovaks and repulsed the enemy.

"The Twelfth Division, gradually concentrating in the direction of Suiyagina, assumed the offensive at dawn on August 24. After severe fighting the enemy was driven to the northward. We then advanced to the bluff north of Shimakofka and are now attacking.

"Our booty includes one field piece, three machine guns and two armed locomotives. The casualties on both sides are unknown."

RELIGION AIDS MEN IN BATTLE.

War Arouses Deep Faith in Christianity.

Doughboys Don't Want Any Camouflage, but Truth.

The "Hereafter" Appealing Subject with Soldiers.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS,
[SPECIAL STAFF CORRESPONDENT.]

AMERICAN FRONT.—This war has accomplished something which was beyond the power of the preachers, to wit, aroused young America to a deep and abiding interest in religion.

This is no reflection on the preachers. They rolled up their sleeves and expounded the truth with force and ability.

It remained for a great tragedy like the world war to arouse the individual to a sense of his own inadequacy. Some people are what might almost be termed inherently religious. In everybody there is the dormant instinct to worship. But as a rule people do not seek anything until they want it. That holds true of religion. The young soldier has no illusions. His is a serious business. He deals death and deals with death. Knowing this, he feels the need of religion. He likes to be told there is a future life, and to him it is a story that never grows old. Strangely, the killer is the most fervently religious man in the world today.

SIMPLE, BUT FERVENT.

But his is a very simple faith. It can be completely covered by the sermon on the mount. He has neither time nor desire for nonessentials. Whether a man should be sprinkled or entirely submerged in order to be saved does not concern him. Frequently there is not time for either of these ceremonies before he goes over the top. Often his only baptism is one of fire. Theology and rituals are Greek to him. All he wants is a few words making it clear that a man who lives uprightly, does his duty and offers his life for the protection of the weak is going to have an even chance in the next world. His is a very broad, a very simple and a very appealing religion—one that the humblest can grasp. And after this war it probably will be the religion of the world.

"Nearly all the men in the armed service of the United States are eager to talk about religion," said an American chaplain, who has been with them since the first contingent arrived in France. "They like to be entertained, but down in their hearts they crave the vital things of life and eternity. If we don't give them the real thing they leave the hut in blocks. You can't fool the boys with pulpit camouflage.

"TO HELL WITH MOVIES."

"'We usually open with fifteen minutes of movies,' one minister was told. 'You don't mind waiting?'

"'I don't believe that sort of thing is really necessary,' he replied. 'I should like to put it to the boys if you don't mind.'

"The preacher mounted the platform and said: 'Boys, I've come to tell you something about religion. Would you like to begin right away, or would you rather have a few moving pictures first?'

"'To hell with the movies,' yelled a soldier. 'Let's hear about religion.' This motion was seconded by every soldier in the hut.

"On another occasion a less-discerning preacher was invited to speak for twenty minutes. A dozen rousing songs were sung, and there was a manly prayer by a manly soldier. In short, an ideal atmosphere had been created. The men were ready to hear something real and genuine—something that would brace them up in their duty and their sacrifice.

MISJUDGED.

"A stranger to the psychology of war, this celebrated minister consumed ten of his twenty minutes telling funny stories—funny stories to soul-hungry men. He was unable to understand why so many of the men walked out during those first ten minutes.

"There are times when the men want to be entertained, but more times when they want to hear about religion. What they want is to hear the simple, sincere, elemental truth of religion as the preacher conceives it. Don't talk to them about drink and gambling and sex. They hear all that sort of thing they need from the proper instructors. Above all, when your horse sense tells you that the men are waiting with open hearts for the best comfort that religion can give, don't tell them funny stories.

"Give them a message straight from God, if you have such a message in you. Suppose your son were going away, perhaps never to return. What sort of a message would you give him? That is the sort of message they want, and none other."

Baldness

—Is rapidly increasing — says Prof. John H. Austin, Chicago's bacteriologist, hair and scalp specialist of 39 years' practice—and is in many, many cases directly or indirectly caused by—

Alopecia Pityrodes—

—A very common scalp trouble.

—It starts with a scaling of the scalp; sometimes slight, called "dandruff," sometimes abundant—producing thick, grayish-white, dry or greasy scales—which leads to falling of the hair.

—At first, when the hair starts to fall, it is hardly noticeable, but as this ailment, "Alopecia Pityrodes," becomes deeply seated, and the germs multiply, as they always do, the falling of the hair increases rapidly, and in time the top of the head becomes entirely bald. Both men and women of all ages of life are subject to Alopecia Pityrodes, but particularly those between the ages of 20 and 35 years.

—Prof. John H. Austin, who is now at Hamburger's, says that people who are at all troubled with any kind of hair and scalp trouble, such as

—Itching Scalp
—Falling Hair
—Excessively Oily Hair
—Dry and Brittle Hair
—Dandruff
—Split Hair
—Gray or Faded Hair

—Should have their hair examined at once under his powerful microscope.

—Professor Austin says that the use of mange cures, dandruff cures, hair tonics, vaseline and elixirs is like taking medicine without knowing what you are trying to cure.

—During the past 3 years at Hamburger's, Prof. Austin has made thousands of free microscopic examinations of the hair and scalp.

—Prof. Austin invites both men and women to take advantage of the FREE MICROSCOPIC EXAMINATIONS of the hair and scalp this week in his private office on the Second Floor of Hamburger's. Hours, 10 to 12 and 2 to 4.

HER TROUBLES COST THOUSANDS

Nothing Helped Mrs. White Until She Took Tanlac.

Had Suffered For Fifteen Long Years, She Says.

Wants Everybody To Know About Wonderful Medicine.

"Actually, a few bottles of Tanlac did more for me than all the other medicines and treatments that have cost me thousands of dollars," recently declared Mrs. Kittie White, whose husband is proprietor of the University Paint Company, and who lives at 1312 Forty-second street, East, Seattle, Wash.

"Fifteen years ago," she continued, "I was as strong and healthy a woman as you ever saw, weighing in the neighborhood of a hundred and seventy pounds. My troubles started when I contracted asthma, which got so bad that many a time I have had to sit up night after night wheezing and gagging, hardly able to get my breath and suffering so terribly I really thought I was going to die. Then my stomach went back on me, my food would sour, and the gas that rose up in my throat would almost strangle me, and start me to vomiting till I would be in such misery I would almost go distracted. My head ached like it would split and my back hurt like it was going to break in two. I lost over forty pounds, I was but a shadow of my former self, and was so weak, and felt so wornout that I was barely able to get around.

"Now this was just the awful condition I was in when one of my friends told me about Tanlac, and I thought if I could get my stomach in good condition and regain my strength, maybe I could stand the asthma better, so I got me a bottle. Well, sir, the results have far surpassed anything I expected. Why, my appetite is so great, that I feel ashamed to eat enough to satisfy myself, and my stomach is in good condition. But the greatest surprise of all is I haven't suffered a particle from asthma since I have been taking Tanlac. I felt so fine on finishing my first bottle that I just couldn't get another one quick enough, for I couldn't afford to miss a single dose. I sleep so sound now that I don't know a thing from the time I go to bed till I get up in the morning. I never know what a headache is and those awful pains in my back are all gone. I have already gained several pounds and am gaining in weight and strength every day. Why, I can do any amount of hard work now without getting tired, and can't remember the time when I felt as fine as I do today. I am so happy over my great improvement that I want everybody to know what a splendid medicine Tanlac is."

Tanlac is sold in Los Angeles, Pasadena and San Diego by The Owl Drug Co., under the personal direction of a special Tanlac representative.—[Advertisement.

SCHOOL CHILDREN AID TO SANTA CLAUS, PLAN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Santa Claus is to be released for essential war work, through quantity production of Christmas toys by the school children of the nation, according to plans outlined at a conference of the Pacific Division, Junior Red Cross, here today.

Instruction in English for the foreign-speaking population by high school students as a part of a nation-wide Americanization programme, is also contemplated, according to speakers. Courses of first aid, care of the sick and sanitation in the elementary schools and an extensive plan for an interchange of letters between pupils of American schools and children of the Entente Allies, in order to promote more complete understanding of war efforts and aims, will be undertaken, at once, it was announced.

Most of the delegates come from California, Nevada and Arizona.

No Reward Offered.

LOST: ONE PAIR FREAK SOLONS.

Turncoat Randall and Tearful Rankin Beaten.

Primaries Eliminate Anti-War Politicians.

Votes of Both Against the Draft and Loans.

BY ROBERT B. ARMSTRONG.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—"Lost: One prohibitionist voting mostly as a Democrat; also one Congresswoman masquerading as a Republican. Last seen going down for the third time in primary elections. No information wanted and no reward paid. House of Representatives, both majority and minority."

This is the kind of advertisement that could truthfully be written of the attitude of Congress over the failure of Charles H. Randall, pacifist, to win a renomination from the Republican party at the primaries in the Ninth Congress District of California, and the failure of Jeannette Rankin to secure the nomination in the Montana primaries for United States Senator.

Both have been outcasts without a party and the war record of both is such as to make a loyal American blush. Randall has voted against war and against the draft and has tried to fool his constituents as to his real record in the House. He came as a Republican and deteriorated into a political mongrel sitting and voting with the Democrats and classifying himself as a Prohibitionist.

In the latter guise he worked overtime and the Democrats would rather lose the seat from California than spend a nickel or raise a hand to save him. He was self-invited to the Democratic side and it is hard to tell which side is most pleased with the information that Randall's war record has given him his just deserts.

AND RANKIN.

Miss Rankin, who left unpleasant and unsatisfactory impressions as the first woman in Congress, was against the war, against the draft and against almost every other war measure that was proposed. She even at one time spoke in a disparaging way of the first Liberty Loan. In talking informally with a group of Congressmen she said she was sorry the Treasury Department had resorted to putting out war bonds in $50 denominations and selling to poor people when there was no intention of ever paying them back. Her refusal to vote for the draft and for measures that meant the honor of America were usually accompanied by feminine tears.

Serious thought or attention to important matters in Congress never engrossed Miss Rankin. As a debutante at a ball she approached her career underneath the dome and posed in the limelight of the publicity that bathed the first woman to come to Congress.

Her legislative decisions were emotional and some times almost hysterical and ofttimes indicated the shallowness of youth and inexperience. In her whole record as it stands to date there is no evidence of poise, maturity or political sagacity, and her character as a public personage is indicated by her decision to run as an independent candidate for the Senate after being defeated in a fair primary.

As an experiment in American politics Miss Rankin does not reflect credit on fair-minded, able and capable business women and will disapper from the center of the political stage without a protest in Washington or elsewhere.

MISS RANKIN DEFEATED.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

HELENA (Mont.) Aug. 31.—With more than 1200 precincts reported in the State-wide primary held last Tuesday, the count for the Republican nomination for United States Senator shows Dr. O. M. Lanstrum of Helena leading Miss Jeannette Rankin, Representative in Congress, by 2513 votes. Dr. Lanstrum polled 17,645 and Miss Rankin 15,132 votes.

YAQUI INDIANS QUIT ARMY, GO ON WARPATH

ATTACK MEXICAN FEDERAL ARMY, BUT IN TWO INSTANCES ARE DEFEATED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOGALES (Ariz.) Aug. 31.—Yaqui Indians have revolted at Ortiz and Culiacan, in the Mexican State of Sinaloa. An American traveling man arrived here today by automobile from Torres and reported that 300 Indians at Ortiz on Monday fought an engagement with the Federal garrison at Torres and had taken to the hills. This was officially confirmed today.

Three hundred Yaquis of another command near Culiacan were also reported to have revolted on the same day and attempted to loot the city, but were driven off.

While the Yaqui revolt has no direct connection with the shooting here Tuesday, it became known here tonight that Gen. P. Elias Calles, Military Governor of Sonora, held his political enemies responsible for the trouble.

SACRAMENTO RACING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 31.—The opening day's racing card at the State Fair was not particularly brilliant, but there were some close finishes. The feature was the 2:14 pace, won by J. C. L. in three straight heats.

Lawe River from Vielle Chapelle to Lestrem on the southern side of the salient.

TWO-MILE GAINS.

In certain vital sectors of this battle area the British have gained from one to two miles during the last day.

In the sector north of the Arras-Cambrai road, the British have occupied the St. Servins farm, close to the highway, and moved into the village of Eterpigny, to the northeast. This village is on the east bank of the Sensee River and its capture marks the passage of that small but important waterway at a vital point.

The British official statement says that the town of Clery, which is located on the Somme to the northwest of Peronne, has been taken from the Germans. Advices reaching London today, however, state that Mont St. Quentin, a mile and a half north of Peronne, has been captured by the British. This report would seem to indicate that Peronne is being surrounded by the British, Field Marshal Haig's men having forced their way across the Somme to the south of Peronne yesterday.

EXPECT RETREAT.

The capture of Mont St. Simeon and the crossing of the Canal du Nord by the French is expected to force the Germans to retire to a new line running from Ham to Berlincourt, the only tenable position before the old Hindenburg line is reached. The Canal du Nord was crossed in two places by the French, who now threaten the western angle of the Aisne salient.

French and American forces, under Gen. Mangin met with bitter resistance in their advance on the plateau north of Soissons and the capture of Cuffies and Chavigny. Between the Ailette and the Coucy-Chauny road, the French also occupied Champs, Praast, Villaette and the Daast Wood. Significance is attached to the capture of a strong foothold on the north bank of the Ailette by Gen. Mangin because of its importance to future movements.

DRAFT BILL LAW; ENROLL SEPT. 12.

ed. This does not mean that their calling will be long deferred, however, inasmuch as it has been announced that all men in the new registration accepted for general service will be under arms by June 30, 1919. The man-power bill makes no specific provision for separate classification of 18-year-old boys, and War Department plans for their treatment have been made on executive initiative.

Although the work-or-fight clause, which would have affected striking workmen, was taken out of the bill before passage yesterday, Provost-Marshal-General Crowder has planned to apply vigorously existing regulations relating to idle men, or those engaged in nonessential employment to the newly-registered men.

PLANS TO MOBILIZE YOUTHS AT COLLEGES.

WAR DEPARTMENT WILL SEND YOUTHS TO 300 PICKED SCHOOLS FOR TRAINING.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Members of the Students' Army Training Corps, consisting of youths between the ages of 18 and 21, will be mobilized October 1 at more than 300 colleges selected for that purpose by the War Department, according to details of the plan announced tonight.

The members of the Students' Army Training Corps will be "soldiers on active duty" a statement issued by the War Department says. Upon their induction into service their subsistence, quarters, clothing and tuition will be provided by the government and the student soldiers will receive the pay of privates in the army.

High School graduates will be eligible to the collegiate training division of the corps and grammar school graduates may enter the vocational section. As the students show ability they will be transferred to new divisions and those showing special qualifications will be sent to officers' training schools. Others will be assigned to noncommissioned officers schools.

The War Department, in its statement advises youths now ready for college entrance or already enrolled in a college to adhere to their plans and obtain voluntarily induction into the corps.

DRAFT MAY PRODUCE THIRTEEN MILLION.

CALIFORNIA'S QUOTA TO BE REGISTERED UNDER NEW BILL IS 398,552 MEN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—An official estimate by the War Department today places the number of men who will register for military service on September 12 at approximately 12,778,758.

This is on the basis of the last census, and the figures, in the opinion of some officers, may be exceeded.

CALIFORNIA, 398,552.

The estimated total number of males is 13,190,000, but from this number 410,000 is deducted to cover the men of the new draft ages already in military or naval service. Based on the ratio shown by the registration of men from 21 to 31, June 5, 1917, the shares of the new registrations expected in each State as estimated include:

Arizona, 49,794; California, 398,552, and Nevada, 16,116.

SUPPLIES FORWARDED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SACRAMENTO, Aug. 31.—Supplies for the registration, September 12, of Californians affected by the man-power bill signed today have been forwarded to the 125 local exemption boards in the State, Adjt.-Gen. J. J. Borree announced.

Approximately fifteen carloads of materials were required for the registration of the 400,000 men who come within the provisions of the bill, he said.

Flowers Victor.

RANDALL BADLY BEATEN IN FINAL VOTE COUNT.

THE complete count in the contest for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Ninth District, finished in the office of County Registrar of Voters Lyons last night, clinched the victory of Montaville Flowers over Charles Randall, pacifist. The semiofficial totals give:

Flowers, 8791.

Randall, 8242.

The complete vote for justice of the peace was: Summerfield, 29,338; Hinshaw, 22,105; Forbes, 21,713; Brown, 20,347; Baird, 18,436; Hanby, 17,050; Wood, 16,163; Palmer, 15,386; Lincoln, 13,884; Brady, 11,884; Dougherty, 11,615; Grossman, 7038; Widman, 5389.

The Enemy Within.

KERN COUNTY ORGANIZES TO FIGHT PRO-GERMANS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

BAKERSFIELD, Aug. 31.—Nine haystacks, aggregating 250 tons of hay, valued at $7500, were destroyed by fire this morning on the ranches of the Kern County Land Company and Philo S. Jewett, near Rosedale, eight miles west of Bakersfield. The local officials believe that the fires were started by enemy agents or in protest by sympathizers with or members of an organization recently prosecuted by the Federal government. The fires started almost simultaneously, and investigation afterward disclosed the use of phosphorus, which was found in a can of water. It is thought that phosphorus was put in cans, which were set in the stacks of hay, and when the water evaporated the phosphorous ignited.

A small gray car with several occupants was seen on the ranches a day or two before the fires. Bakersfield citizens held a meeting this afternoon and organized a committee headed by Capt. F. N. Scofield and Harry W. Thomas to deal with the situation.

Judge J. W. Mahon, chairman of the Kern Council of Defense, called a meeting of the council and citizens interested to be held at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon in Bakersfield. At this meeting ways and means will be devised for combatting the alleged Pro-German menace which has found expression in destruction of property.

Sheriff Newell and Chief of Police Munsey, who are heading the local investigation, have called on the United States Deputy Marshal at Fresno for assistance, and he will be here tonight or tomorrow.

Last Saturday fire destroyed fifty tons of alfalfa and barley hay on the H. S. Knight ranch, twenty-two miles west of this city. This fire was also of suspected incendiary origin.

These are believed to be the first instances of destruction of property in Kern county to be charged to the work of enemy propagandists.

"Mardi Gras."

HAMBURGER'S DAY NETS MUCH TO THE RED CROSS.

BY OLIVE GRAY.

PACKED to capacity were the grounds at Eighth and Alvarado streets by early afternoon yesterday upon the occasion of Hamburger's Red Cross day. When the evening festivities commenced, standing room was at a premium and many watched the affair from afar.

Fun unalloyed, such fun as that known to the days of '49, seemed to permeate the place, and even though the crowd was so dense, each individual seemed to feel at home and to enter into the spirit of the Victory Mardi Gras.

The Fairyland programme was highly appreciated, the dainty geniuses being loudly applauded throughout the afternoon. The Fairyland Orchestra did its best, which means that a fine musical treat was spread for its hearers. Moving pictures were made of the wee ones during their performances, which fact seemed to inspire them to extraordinary effort.

Smiling Billie Mason was omnipresent, urging everyone to be merry and affording them opportunity to be so, both by the outdoor performances and by those in the theater.

The '49 Camp was rife with genuine "atmosphere." From the big bar, bemottoed with wild-western mandates, to the most remote corners where gambling of several sorts was in progress, the old days were revivified. Tom Mix presided at the bar, and from him the secret was learned as to the wonderful surprise raffle brought by him from Arizona. A pinto burro, named Victory, answered when called for to be raffled by the best-known celebrity present, and $1 for every "pinto," was the mark set as his price.

A favorite amusement of the day was to guess how much money would be turned over by Hamburger's Mardi Gras to the Red Cross fund. The guessing ran from $10,000 to $15,000, and more guessed the latter than the former. Certainly money was freely spent, and it received full value, even when its return was merely in "experience" at the gaming tables in the '49 Camp.

There were some wonderful costumes, Hawaiian, oriental, gypsy, which lent charm to the varied scene, and when the lights blazed forth with their myriad colors, words could not paint nor the camera catch the effect.

The fried chicken dinner was fine and was partaken of by hosts of patrons.

The Home Defense League, Maj. P. H. Evans commanding the University division, 400 strong, was on guard throughout the grounds to see that all was well.

All in all the day was everything that the most exacting could have asked; and when the receipts are counted, there is no doubt that the high guess will win. Announcements of winnings and the amount of net receipts will be made later.

Aerial Warfare.

AIR RAIDS NOT SO GREAT WHEN HUNS ARE VICTIMS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

GENEVA, Aug. 31.—At a meeting of representatives from eleven Rhine towns yesterday at Saarbrucken, called to discuss means of protesting to the government against Allied air raids, it was decided to appeal to German headquarters to come to some arrangement for both sides to abstain from air attacks upon open towns. The question of air defenses if the appeal fails also was discussed as were measures for the repair of property damaged and the payment of indemnity to the families of persons killed and injured. Meanwhile, insurance rates have increased 38 per cent.

BRITISH AIR ACTIVITY.

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The official statement on aerial operations issued tonight says:

"The weather was cloudy on August 30, but the various activities of our air service were fully maintained all along the front. There was much useful observation by airplanes and balloons. Twelve enemy machines were destroyed during the day and five driven down out of control. Four of our machines are missing.

"The Bruges docks and the Zeebrugge mole were heavily bombed, as well as a number of selected targets opposite the battle zone. In all, twenty-five and one-half tons of bombs were dropped during the twenty-four hours."

KENNETH MOORE HELD PRISONER IN GERMANY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Names of 130 enlisted men of the American Expeditionary Forces who it has been ascertained are now prisoners of war at Langensalza, Germany, were announced tonight by the War Department. Practically all the men are from Pennsylvania.

The western names include Kenneth Moore, Third and Hill streets, Los Angeles.

OPPOSITION PREVENTS PASSAGE OF DRY BILL.

AGRICULTURAL MEASURE WITH PROHIBITION RIDER CALLED AGAIN TUESDAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Opposition to items in the emergency agricultural appropriation bill carrying the amendment for national prohibition beginning next July prevented the Senate from disdisposing of the measure today and postponed final action until next week.

The measure, according to arrangements made late today by Senate leaders, will not be called up again until Tuesday, as Monday is a holiday and the only business proposed then is memorial services for the late Senator Newlands of Nevada.

Senator Kenyon of Iowa proposed to strike out items in the bill aggregating more than $500,000 which he said are totally unnecessary in stimulating food production. Senator Johnson of South Dakota said the measure proposed an extravagant outlay and he could support it only because of the prohibition provision.

Failure of the Food Administration to prevent extortion was charged by Senator Sherman of Illinois who said the administration's only real attempts were in regulating flour and a few other prices.

BIG INCOMES TAXED 52 TO 65 PER CENT.

REVENUE BILL TO GO TO HOUSE TOMORROW; SENATE HEARINGS START THURSDAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The new revenue bill will be reported to the House Monday, according to plans announced tonight by Chairman Kitchin of the Ways and Means Committee. The measure will be taken up for consideration Thursday or Friday, and final disposal is expected within ten days.

Senator Simmons, chairman of the Senate Finance Committee, announced hearings will not be started until Thursday.

Surtax rates on large incomes became known today. They are: On incomes from $200,000 to $300,000, 52 per cent.; $300,000 to $500,000, 54 per cent.; $500,000 to $1,000,000, 58 per cent.; $1,000,000 to $5,000,000, 60 per cent., and all incomes above $5,000,000, 65 per cent. These rates are in addition to the normal income tax rate of 12 per cent.

The Riddle.

CHECKERBOARD OF WAR ON BOTH SIDES' PLANS.

Foch will Keep on Swatting—Germans will Keep on Backing.

BY HARRY CARR.

HOW much farther is Foch going to drive the Germans?

Are the Huns falling back with a settled plan in view, or is it a mere rout?

Are the Allies driving forward on some scheme for the invasion of the German-occupied Belgium?

These questions are naturally uppermost in the mind of the reader of the daily war dispatches.

There are only half a dozen men in the world, of course, who really know the answers; possibly less than that number. Nevertheless, it is possible to make a few adventures into the land of conjecture.

It goes without saying that Marshal Foch has in mind a plan for the invasion of Germany.

It also goes without saying that this plan must include a thrust through Alsace-Lorraine and another thrust to be made at the same time from the English Channel in through Belgium, striking the flank and rear of the German army, whose line of advance into France is like the stalk of a tall plant whose roots are on the Rhine and whose top is blown by the wind to the south and west into France.

As though he were an agriculturist weeding out a pest, it is natural to suppose that Gen. Foch will attack the obnoxious German plant as near the roots as possible—and these roots are assailable through Belgium and Lorraine.

It does not require the services of the seventh son of a seventh son to prophesy that 1919 will witness a tremendous naval bombardment to cover the landing of Allied troops in Belgium at the channel ports, and at the same time an American invasion of Alsace and Lorraine with the tremendous artillery now being manufactured in the great gun foundries of the East.

THE WEAK PLACE.

Gen. Bernhardi, the German strategist, who is hot-footing it for the rear somewhere in France as the commander of a German corps that is in a great hurry, has frankly set forth what he considers the weak point of the defenses of the German empire.

This weak point is a strip of land running across Belgium, including Antwerp in Belgium and Cologne in Germany. Having gained sufficient power to invade Germany through this gap, it would be possible, as he points out, for a British army of invasion then to turn north, destroying the Krupp works as Essen and attacking the great naval stations back of the Kiel Canal from the land side. This is, of course, the real way to smoke out and destroy the German navy.

As for the invasion of Lorraine, there is historical warrant for selecting that route into Germany. Both Caesar and Napoleon selected Mainz, on the Rhine, as the jugular vein of the German defenses. And Mainz will lie directly in the pathway of the American invaders.

These invasions will be accompanied by an air campaign, the like of which the world has never dared dream.

For the present, however, it is extremely probable that the Allies are proceeding upon a fierce campaign, the events of which depend more upon what the Germans do next than upon what the Allies plan to do.

In other words, I imagine that the Allied plan is not very much more than to keep swatting the Germans at so furious a lick that the Huns cannot recover and make a stand.

The concrete and specific idea is to prevent effective rear-guard actions being fought by the Germans. By driving in the rear guards upon the main body the escape of the German artillery is made difficult and the problem of feeding the German retreat is enormously complicated.

This retreat cannot be read in terms of battles of the past. It has special problems of its own, never before experienced.

The numbers of the retreating army are so vast that the chief problem is one of supply.

To put this in very plain terms: Suppose that the cities of Los Angeles and Pasadena and San Diego were being slowly moved away and that their food had to follow them by wagon train.

HARDEST JOB.

The most essential part of that terrific riddle would be to carefully keep everybody where he belonged. If some family from the Westlake district got mixed up with the people who belonged in Highland Park the food delivered in the Westlake district would be a little too much, while the food delivered in Highland Park would be one family ration shy. If 2000 Westlake families got scattered into the wrong places, the result would be chaos and starvation.

That is exactly the present problem of the German army. If they can conduct this retreat in an orderly manner with the organizations intact, it will be possible to lose a great deal of ground and still arrive at some previously-selected line of battle in a condition to make a great fight. If, however, the Allies press in upon them with such violence that the organizations are broken up and supply arrangements thrown into confusion, it will be inevitable that the fighting power of the Huns will drop materially.

The effort of the day and the minute on the part of the Allies is to wrest from the Germans certain important ridges and railroad centers. Mont Kemmel has already fallen to the British; the great hill lands of Flanders south of Ypres will probably fall soon.

In the south the French are outflanking Chemin des Dames.

The possession of these points by the Allies will give to Gen. Foch important bases of operation from which to continue his flanking operations against the invading army.

Although it is certain that the Germans could not stop the retreat if they wanted to, it is clear that the Germans have resigned themselves to a retirement to a position near the border of Belgium where their flanks will not be in so much danger.

THE HINDENBURG LINE.

Although in a few places, the British have crossed or touched what was known as the old Hindenburg line, at the same time the Germans have not yet fallen back to any extent to the Hindenburg trenches.

It is possible that they hope to delay the advance of the Allies as much as possible in the hope that the snow will fall and the severe winter set in about the time they get back to the Hindenburg line, thus making it difficult for the Allies to move their guns and giving the Germans some chance of being able to alight for a while on the bough from which they departed when they began at the great offensive on the morning of March 21.

The Germans are praying for an early winter—and the Hindenburg trenches.

Border Trouble.

NOGALES BATTLE INQUIRY SEEKS CAUSE OF CLASH.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NOGALES, Aug. 31.—Mexican Consul Zertuche today obtained an affidavit from Refugio Garcia, a Mexican Federal soldier in Nogales, Sonora, stating that he was fired upon by a white American in the uniform of a soldier Thursday morning at 6 o'clock while at customs station No. 6 on the Mexican side.

Consul Zertuche stated that he had reported the incident to Ambassador Bonillas at Washington.

The soldier who made the affidavit is now in the military hospital on the Mexican side.

Following the shooting early Thursday morning in which the Mexican soldier was shot, Private Edward Stiller, who was slightly wounded in the leg during the shooting Wednesday night, was placed under arrest by order of Brig.-Gen. Cabell, commanding the American forces, and is awaiting trial by court-martial on the charge that he fired a shot across the international line in direct violation of orders.

Private Stiller made a statement that he had fired only when he saw the Mexican soldier draw his rifle on two American soldiers who were turning out the electric lights along International avenue at the time of the shooting and that he believed the Mexican was preparing to fire on his comrades.

Two official investigations of the shooting are in progress here today. One is being made by a board of United States Army officers, appointed by Brig.-Gen. De Rosey C. Cabell. The other was ordered by the Treasury Department.

The Army Board has been examining witnesses from both the American and Mexican sides of the border since it was appointed.

The Treasury Department investigation is being made to determine the exact part the United States customs guards had, if any, in the origin of the shooting Tuesday.

STATE PLANS TO END FOOD PROFITEERING.

GROCERS SELLING AT EXCESSIVE PRICES WILL BE VIGOROUSLY PROSECUTED.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Machinery to enforce food marketing laws and to stop profiteering is to be set up without delay through the various county food administrators, Preston McKinney, acting Federal Food Administrator for California, announced here today. Any grocer or other tradesman found selling foodstuffs at excessive profits will be vigorously prosecuted, he said.

Investigation in San Francisco, which resulted in the questioning of thirty-nine grocers by McKinney, should result in an immediate decline of the prices of many staples in this city, he said.

McKinney discovered that in some instances sugar was being sold at 10 cents a pound, when 9 cents was the legal charge, and that there were even more striking differences in the legal and the prevailing prices of commodities in many other instances.

ISLANDS PROTECTED IN FOREIGN TRADE.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—Foreign selling combinations, authorized by the Webb act to promote export trade, cannot engage as such in trade between the continental United States and the Philippines, Porto Rico, Hawaii and Alaska, according to an opinion announced today by A. L. Thurman, solicitor of the Department of Commerce.

GOVERNMENT SITS ON UNION LABOR GREED.

DENIES ATTEMPT OF BOSTON WORKERS TO FORCE UP LOCAL SCALE OF WAGES.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—In denying today a further increase in wages to laborers employed on terminal at South Boston, Mass., the War Department announced its intention of seeing to it that the government's agreement with union labor to "pay prevailing local scales" is not used to force local wage scales upward.

E. M. Hopkins, assistant to the Secretary of War and chairman of the Cantonment Adjustment Commission, made the department's attitude clear in a telegram to D. d'Alessandro, president of the International Hod Carrier Building and Common Laborers' Union.

The government had agreed to pay 47½ cents an hour for a ten-hour work day, or 43½ cents per hour for an eight-hour day, with time and a half for overtime. Mr. D'Alessandro protested in a telegram to Frank Morrison, vice-president of the American Federation of Labor, declaring that the local scale had now called for 47½ cents for eight hours' work.

In reply Mr. Hopkins said the union officials had misrepresented the department's attitude and denied that there is any intention of establishing a ten-hour work day on any government projects.

WAR STAMP PURCHASE URGED ADMISSION DAY.

GOVERNOR DESIGNATES SEPTEMBER 9 SPECIAL OCCASION TO AID VICTORY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Admission Day, September 9, was designated by Gov. Stephens as a special day for the purchase of War Savings Stamps and the redemption of pledges for the purchase of such stamps in a proclamation given out here today.

The proclamation said:

"I have been asked by the War Savings Committee for Northern California to designate Admission Day, September 9, as a special day for the purchase of War Savings Stamps and for the redemption of pledges made heretofore for the purchase of such stamps and for the anticipation of such pledges insofar as possible.

"In the enthusiasm aroused by the victories of our men on the west front we must not forget our duty to continue to save and to lend our savings to the government for only by so doing can we keep our strength at its highest point. I feel that we cannot over-emphasize the importance of the investment of every dollar we can spare in war savings securities.

"I do, therefore, take great pleasure in designating September 9, 1918, as a special day for the purchase of War Savings Stamps and trust that on that day all of those who have heretofore pledged themselves to purchase such stamps will redeem their pledges in so far as possible and those who have already redeemed their pledges will purchase additional stamps to the extent of their ability."

Advance Formal Showing of Early Autumn Styles in FOOTWEAR

This showing is remarkably distinctive because of foresighted merchandising, planned months ago. At that time we realized that, owing to the shortage of desirable materials and to other upset trade conditions, a great scarcity of fine leather and almost unsurmountable difficulties were going to prevail in obtaining fall shoes. All the force of our mighty buying power was brought to bear—the excellent trade relations we enjoy with leading manufacturers serving to overcome these difficulties. As a result we are enabled to show at this time assortments of new fall and winter shoes of such unusual variety, extent and value, that we understand them to be absolutely unequaled.

BABE DEAD IN BURNED HOME.

Gasoline Explosion in Stove Cause of Tragedy.

Three-Year-Old Also Nearly Loses its Life.

Poverty of Father of Six is Indirect Cause.

One baby was burned to death and another was saved from a similar fate in a fire last night at No. 1969 South Los Angeles street. The dead child is Edith Loretta McWilliams, 11 months old, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert McWilliams.

The fire started in the family home, when John, the oldest of seven children in the McWilliams family, attempted to pour gasoline into the reservoir of a lighted gasoline stove. The flames from the burners leaped to the reservoir and caused an explosion, which spread to the entire building, burning it to the ground.

Mrs. McWilliams, who was in the front room, heard the explosion and saw her son rush in, badly burned. Immediately she called to her six other children, who were in the house, and assembled four of them in the street while her home burned down.

SEARCH BURNING HOUSE.

When the fire and police department units arrived, Mrs. McWilliams discovered that her youngest child, Edith, and another baby, Bertie Myrtle, 3 years old, could not be found. Patrolmen Jack Phillips and A. C. Spinner, accompanied by Battalion Fire Chief Andrews and Detective Corporal Walter Krug, searched the burning house, while the nozzles played on the building.

In a corner of the kitchen Detective Krug and Chief Andrews discovered the charred body of little Edith. Officers Phillips and Spinner, in another room, found little Bertie under a table, where she had crawled to escape the heat. The officers rushed her to the Receiving Hospital, where her injuries were found to consist of severe burns on the legs. She will live.

Mrs. McWilliams, when she heard of the death of her baby, collapsed, and because of her condition fears are entertained for her. The father, Bert McWilliams, was at work at a cannery when the tragedy occurred.

GAS WAS SHUT OFF.

According to the police, the father is hard pressed to support so large a family, and, being unable to pay his gas bill, the gas was shut off. The family bought the stove that caused the tragedy last Friday. On Wednesday, the police say, the furniture was taken from the little home by the furniture company because Mr. McWilliams was unable to meet the payment due on it.

John McWilliams, who poured the gasoline into the tank, miraculously escaped serious injury when the stove exploded. The remains of the baby are at the J. D. Faris parlors.

LOS ANGELES DOCTOR GIVEN FRENCH MEDAL.

R. G. WHITLOCK FIRST AMERICAN TO RECEIVE AWARD FOR WORK FOR CHILDREN.

Dr. R. G. Whitlock, a former Los Angeles physician who is recuperating from diphtheria in a hospital in France, according to word received here yesterday. Dr. Whitlock was sent to France a few months ago under the auspices of the children's welfare division of the American Red Cross. There he looked after the fatherless tots, gave them medical treatment and supervised the food they were given. The Red Cross has received a letter from Dr. Whitlock saying that he is getting along well and will soon be ready to go back to work.

Just after he left Compiegne, where he had a clinic, the Germans bombarded and destroyed his place of treatment for the children. He says that children only 1 year of age eat pork and beans, bread and drink black coffee. Dr. Whitlock is the first American doctor to be awarded the "Medaille d'Epidemics" by the French government. He received this medal while sick. When able he will take charge of the Sulpice, an old sanatorium which was given over to the refugees. There are from 2000 to 4000 persons at this place every day.

War Booms Mushroom Profit!

Unusual Opportunity for Those Living in City and Country by Using Spare Time.

There is no better time for making money growing mushrooms than right now, says the Bureau of Mushroom Industry. War conditions have materially reduced the Mushroom supply, and the demand has steadily increased. The importation of mushrooms has dwindled to almost nothing. America must now rely entirely on her own mushroom industry. Almost any one—men, women and children—in city or country, can grow mushrooms successfully by using cellars, basements, sheds, barns, boxes and so on. Mushrooms grow quickly, they sell at high prices and the market is at hand everywhere. Mushrooms are an article of great food value and accepted as a substitute for meat. Nearly every household has a place that can easily be used for growing them and in this simple industry from $10 to $75 a week can be made by using one's spare time. We suggest that you learn the simple facts from the greatest mushroom authority in America, who will send you their new official book, "The Truth About Mushrooms"—free. Write to Bureau of Mushroom Industry, Dept. 4, 5005 W. North Ave., Chicago, Ill., and take advantage of the present exceptional opportunity.

Why Gray Hair Is No Longer Necessary

New, Clean, Easy, Harmless Treatment. First Bottle Gives Satisfaction.

After having been tried and proven successful by hundreds of their customers, leading stores are recommending "Canute Water for Gray Hair" to those who wish the color of their hair restored. Owl and Sun Drug Stores sell it and all questions one naturally asks are here plainly answered.

IS IT ABSOLUTELY SAFE TO USE? By all means—Yes. You may use Canute Water for Gray Hair without the slightest fear of injury to the hair, scalp or eyes, as it contains none of the injurious elements of the ordinary hair dye. Being entirely FREE from acid, sugar of lead, sulphur, or coal tar products of any kind—making it as harmless to the hair and scalp as ordinary water. It is for external use only.

WILL IT SOIL THE HANDS OR SCALP? No, it will not. Our own patented hair process prevents it from staining the hands or scalp. Canute Water for Gray Hair is an especially clean, convenient treatment—not being sticky or greasy. It restores so naturally and evenly no one will be able to tell you are using anything.

IS IT A DYE? Positively not. That is just the thing it isn't. Canute Water is a simple and natural method of reviving the youthful color of hair that has turned gray from age, illness or other causes. Proof that Canute Water is not a dye is that it has no numbered shades—the same bottle is good for all shades of hair; while, as the reader knows, dyes are numbered 1, 2 or 3.

HOW IS IT APPLIED? Very easily. Just wet your hair with it and allow to dry in good, fresh air. Nothing hard about that, is there? Apply on hair once daily and day by day observe the hair becoming darker and darker. And by the time you have finished the first bottle the youthful color of your hair will be restored. It will then remain that way and simply requires a retouching once every week or two as the hair grows.

CAN THE DARKENED COLOR WASH OR RUB OFF? The color will not wash off. Shampoo the hair all you like—you may even use a hot curling iron, as not even that will affect the color. On the contrary, the more you shampoo the hair the softer and fluffier the hair will become. Remember, it will only be necessary to use Canute Water for Gray Hair afterward once every week or two on the new hair that grows.

Believe us, after a week you'll thank yourself for having tried it. Sold at the above mentioned stores for $1.10 a bottle. Owl drug stores and Sun drug stores of Los Angeles. Friedman Canute Co., 18 E. 17th st., New York, N. Y.

GREAT CARGO CARRIERS GLIDE INTO THE SEA.

THE great steel hull of ship No. 34 was launched at the yard of the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company at 7 o'clock last evening. As it glided down the ways it was showered with champagne and named the West Zucker. The sponsor was Mrs. George Greenwood, wife of the superintendent of hulls for the shipyard.

The West Zucker is the tenth of the great 8800-ton cargo carriers to be launched at the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company's yard, and the last of the first contract for eight vessels of this type. There were present at the launching only a limited company of friends of the shipyard officials and representatives of the United States Shipping Board.

This shipyard is now launching vessels at the rate of two a month.

Long Beach's fourth contribution to the Emergency Fleet Corporation was made at 6:45 o'clock last evening when the 6000-ton steel freighter Oshkosh slid sidewise down the ways of the Long Beach Shipbuilding Company, formerly Craig's, into the Pacific. The launching was successful in every detail.

"I christen thee Oshkosh," cried Mrs. Eugenia Swayne, wife of Lloyd Swayne, chief engineer of the Long Beach Shipbuilding Company, as the huge hulk was released from its berth. At the same time she released a be-ribboned bottle of champagne that crashed against the side of the ship as it rolled into the water.

The Oshkosh is a sister ship of the Ozaukee, recently launched at the Craig plant and which will be delivered to the government in September.

The vessel is 360 feet long, has a beam of 48 feet and a draft of 24 feet. Her turbine engines will deliver 2500 horse power. The Oshkosh carries a complement of seventy-five men.

The launching of the Oshkosh makes a total tonnage of 18,400 tons in the four vessels built in Long Beach for the Emergency Fleet Corporation thus far since the war started. In addition to the Oshkosh and Ozaukee, the Craig plant has turned out the Silverado and Eldorado, both of which are now in the government service. A third 6000-ton ship will be ready for launching in about one month. The vessels of this type cost $1,000,000 each.

The West Galeta, one of the 8800-ton cargo carriers that was launched at the Los Angeles Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Company's yard on the Fourth of July had a very successful trial trip yesterday afternoon. At its conclusion she was formally turned over to Capt. Guy Whitlock of the naval training station, representing the navy.

The launching of the steel freighter Oshkosh at Long Beach last evening.

Commander J. L. Ackerson.

LOCAL MAN IS NAMED TO STANDARDIZE ALL SHIPS.

COMMANDER JAMES L. ACKERSON, U.S.N., a Los Angeles man, recently appointed assistant to Director-General Schwab of the Emergency Fleet Corporation, has been elected vice-president of the corporation and into his hands will fall the important duty of the standardization of the different types of ship construction in the United States. This information was received yesterday by the commander's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Ackerson of No. 1810½ North Van Ness avenue.

Commander Ackerson, who is called the "baby" of the board of directors of the corporation, as he is the youngest member, being only 37 years old, has advanced rapidly since he graduated from Annapolis in 1901. He is a naval constructor. He was born in Michigan in 1881 and entered the naval academy at 16 in 1897. He spent two years as a midshipman. In 1903 he was selected for the Construction Corps and was sent to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology for a postgraduate course in naval construction. Graduating in 1906 he became successively naval and aide to Admiral Schroeder, was assigned to the design branch of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, remaining five years.

In 1915 he was ordered to Mare Island to duty as superintendent of new construction, and in 1917 was ordered back to the Bureau of Construction and Repair at Washington. He was aide to Admiral Capps when the latter joined the Emergency Fleet Corporation last August. When the admiral left the corporation, Commander Ackerson remained as aide to Mr. Piez. Only last June 2 he was made assistant to Mr. Schwab. The commander's parents have lived in Los Angeles for fourteen years. When Mr. Schwab came West, Commander Ackerson was left in charge of the affairs of the corporation.

Commander Ackerson has been given more and more responsibility by Mr. Schwab and by this appointment has one of the biggest jobs in the country, the standardization of types of ship construction of the fleet and cutting down of the great number of types built. At present the Shipping Board is building ninety-one different styles of ships. The new vice-president will have to simplify the process and in this speeding up of the work will have the support of Mr. Schwab and Mr. Piez.

State Politics.

SEEK LOOPHOLE TO SAVE HENEY.

Dockweiler and McNab Scout for Court Route.

Democrats Demand Gubernatorial Representation.

Primary Law and Precedent Against Contention.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—Isidore Dockweiler, national Democratic committeeman for California, arrived in San Francisco today with Francis J. Heney to ask of the courts a gubernatorial nomination for Heney that was denied him by a 20,000 plurality in the State primaries Tuesday. In this he is supported by Gavin McNab, the Col. House of California.

McNab occupies no official position in the Democratic party in the State, but he has come to be regarded as the personal representative of the national Democratic administration. McNab is personally friendly to Mayor Rolph; but he doesn't want any court decision that will make Rolph the Democratic candidate for Governor.

Heney, however, wants naught of McNab and today publicly repudiated him as a Democratic leader.

It now appears that the whole strategic campaign of the National Democratic Committee for the Far West went awry when the Democrats of the State repudiated Heney in the primary. The national committee figured on electing a Democratic Governor in California this year and using him to keep the West in line for the Democratic party two years hence.

Despite his political supporters, however, Heney's chance for getting his name on the ballot this year seems to have gone glimmering. The State primary law specifically prohibits the filling of the vacancy on the ballot when the one receiving the highest number of votes is disqualified.

LAW BARRIERS.

The following citations are self-explanatory:

"Section 23 of the primary law of 1917 contains the provision that if a candidate fail to be nominated by his own party he shall not be entitled to be the candidate of any other political party (Stats. Cal. 1917, p. 1357.)

"Section 25 provides that a candidate nominated at a primary election can withdraw in the manner specified in that section (Stats. Cal., 1917, p. 1361.)

"Section 26 then proceeds (p. 1362) as follows:

"'The vacancy created by the withdrawal of such person as aforesaid, or on account of the ineligibility of such person to qualify as candidate because of the inhibitions of subdivision 9 of section 5 of this act or of section 23 of this act, or by reason of the failure of a party to nominate any candidate for the office at the primary election, or for any other cause except the death of the candidate occurring after the primary election, shall not be filled.'"

HENEY ELIMINATED.

Garrett McEnerney, one of the ablest members of the local bar, expressed the opinion Thursday that Heney might get his name on the Democratic ballot. But after reading the sections of the primary act quoted here he said that it would be impossible for Heney to get on the ticket. He said that, if the Supreme Court should attempt to offer relief, the only way open would be to give the nomination to the candidate receiving the highest number of votes. That would eliminate Heney.

One man, however, has become convinced that Heney's name should go on the ballot. That man is Heney. In a statement to the press this afternoon he said:

"I have come to the conclusion that my name should go on the ballot for the Democratic nomination for Governor."

He qualified this by adding: "I took the position that I was out at first, but I have been convinced to the contrary by my advisers."

With all due regard to Mr. Heney's opinion, however, in this primary game the people are the umpire, and the umpire declared him "out at first" in no uncertain tone last Tuesday. In politics, as in baseball, Mr. Heney may discover that it is the opinion of the umpire that prevails. Many a better batter than Heney has been declared "out at first," although "convinced to the contrary."

Senator Phelan is reported to be on his way West to help straighten out the Democratic tangle. Phelan's term expires in 1920, and his political fences were badly shattered by Tuesday's primary. He came out with a statement before the primary indorsing the candidacy of Heney.

PHELAN'S HOLD SLIPPING.

The big vote that Rolph received indicates pretty clearly that Phelan's hold on Democratic politics in the State is far from secure. He probably recalls now the assertion of his junior colleague in the Senate: "Frank Heney is a Jonah; the sooner we cut loose from him the better."

The Heney fiasco certainly has not increased Phelan's popularity in the State.

O. K. Cushing, chairman of the Democratic State Central Committee, issued a statement today asserting that "the party organization is fully preserved; and, irrespective of the gubernatorial contest, need give the members of the party no uneasiness."

Chester Rowell declares that "it is only fair that the Democrats should have an opportunity of having a candidate on the ballot at the November general election." This is the original Chet Rowell, who urged the disfranchisement of the Republican in 1912, urging that "if the law permits this, we should not be squeamish about it."

HISTORY CITED.

There are several instances on record in which a party has been left without a candidate for an important office because someone won the nomination of another party, but lost that of his own. In 1914, William Geary, a registered Progressive, ran for Congress in Alameda county on the Democratic and Progressive tickets. He won the Democratic nomination, but lost his own. His name did not appear on the November ballot, and the space reserved for the name of the Democratic nominee was left blank.

In the same year the Republicans were deprived of a nominee for the Assembly in Riverside county because George Craig, a Progressive, won the Republican nomination and lost that of his own party.

Secretary of State Jordan is debating what course he shall pursue in making up the State ticket. Unless he reverses himself, as well as the Attorney-General, the vacancy created by the disqualification of Rolph will not be filled.

Later in the day Jordan announced that he might place a candidate's name on the ballot and let the courts decide the legality of the move.

Rolph's fling in State politics smashed Senator Johnson's political fences, and at the same time stampeded the Phelan corral. Johnson threw his whole bi-party support back of Rolph in an endeavor to sink the political craft of Gov. Stephens. When Rolph lost, the Senator's colors were lowered. "Sunny Jim" proved a cloudburst.

Lemon Juice For Freckles

Girls! Make beauty lotion at home for a few cents. Try it!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

TAP CASH REGISTERS.

Burglars Secure Over Thousand Dollars in Night Raid at Terminal Market.

Gaining an entrance to the Terminal Market at Seventh street and Central avenue on Friday night by cutting a screen door, burglars secured over $1200 in checks and currency from four cash registers after they had failed to open several safes with an ax.

The losses reported to the police include: Sang Hoop Company, $20; T. G. Hung Company, $65; Joseph Longo Fruit Company, $85; Cory Fruit Company, $100 in currency and checks totaling over $1000. In attempting to open the safes the burglars left many fingermarks, which leads the police to believe that the cracksmen were amateurs.

LAD BADLY HURT IN FALL FROM TRAILER.

While riding the trailer pole of an auto of the California Truck Company, driven by W. H. Dratcher, Jesus Salazar, 7 years old, living on Staunton street, received serious injuries late yesterday when he fell off at the corner of Washington and McGarry streets.

The front wheels of the heavily loaded trailer passed over his legs. At the Receiving Hospital it is said that he will probably lose his right leg.

Sturdy Womanhood is the demand of to-day

In the Health and Strength of the Wives and Mothers Rests the Future Integrity of the Nation.

We must preserve our womanhood. There is need, greater than ever for strong women. Apparently, the race is not as sturdy as formerly or our women are victims of an over-civilization and less able to resist disease.

Thousands suffer and thousands more are destined to suffer from that most insidious of diseases, catarrh. Ninety-seven per cent of the people have catarrh. It is not confined to the head, nose and throat as many suppose. Catarrhal inflammation may attack the stomach, bowels or any portion of the body where there are mucous linings. It is no respector of persons or position. Everyone is liable to attack.

Mrs. Mary Fricke, 507 Bornman St., Belleville, Ill., was one of its victims. She says: "I have weighed as little as 100 pounds. For years I suffered with my stomach, cramps and severe headaches. After reading Dr. Hartman's Health Book, I decided to try Peruna. The first bottle brought good results, but as I was bound to get well, I took twelve.

Fifteen years ago, I started with Peruna and I wouldn't be without it. My weight is now around 200 pounds and I am hale and hearty at the age of 63. I can do as much work as my daughter."

The use of Peruna for forty-five years in the American family has proved its worth. If you are sick, do not give up, try Peruna. Write The Peruna Company, Dept. B, Columbus, Ohio, for Dr. Hartman's Health Book. It is free. Peruna is sold everywhere in liquid and tablets. Insist upon having Dr. Hartman's Famous Peruna Tonic. Ask your dealer for a Peruna Almanac.

ALLEGED BETTOR NOT ALLOWED VOTE.

DENIES CHARGE; WANTS COMPLAINT ISSUED AGAINST MEMBER OF ELECTION BOARD.

Dist.-Atty. Woolwine was yesterday looking up authorities, anent election abuses.

The mooted question was whether O. E. Tiffany, 82 years old, election board inspector at precinct No. 221, at Eleventh and Burlington streets, acted legally when he refused to permit Edward Hagopian, an Armenian, to vote at the primaries on the allegation that he had placed a bet on the results of the election.

Hagopian, who denies the charge of betting, appeared at the precinct Tuesday morning to register his vote. According to his story to Deputy District Attorney Powell, he was confronted by Tiffany, with a charge that he had a bet on the election and was, therefore, disqualified. He remonstrated with the inspector without success, so he consulted his attorney, Robert Russell, and the pair resorted to the office of the District Attorney. They were informed that if Hagopian returned to the precinct and took an oath to the effect that he was not interested in the election in a betting way, he should be permitted to vote.

As the story goes, both Hagopian and his attorney returned to Eleventh and Burlington streets, but Tiffany refused to accept the oath. Hagopian lost his vote in consequence. He returned to the District Attorney's office yesterday with a request that a complaint be issued against Tiffany. No action was taken in the matter, pending further investigation. Tiffany was a member of the 1915 county grand jury.

THREE INVESTIGATED AS TO THEIR LOYALTY.

VIOLENT LANGUAGE AGAINST PRESIDENT CAUSES ARREST OF GERMAN-BORN MEN.

Dr. Wilhelm Madsen of this city, German-born, naturalized American, and 62 years of age, was arrested yesterday afternoon by Deputy United States Marshal Dolph S. Bassett, on complaint sworn out by a special agent of the government. He is charged with violation of the Espionage Act. He furnished bond in $5000 before United States Commissioner Long.

It is alleged against the accused that he declared that President Wilson permitted Great Britain to dictate America's participation in the war, that Rumania and Eastern Russia are entirely satisfied with the rule of Germany, and that the only honorable course for the United States to pursue was strict neutrality.

M. L. Wueller, indicted by the Federal grand jury for violation of the Espionage Act, was brought here from San Diego by Deputy United States Marshal W. C. Carse, yesterday. It is charged that he used violent language against the President and the United States government. Wueller is 57 years of age, and claims to have been a resident of this country thirty-nine years.

Hans Leinwebber, aged 29 years, a chauffeur, born in Germany, is in the County Jail, on the charge of being an alien enemy. He was taken into custody by officers of the Department of Justice. He is suspected of anti-American activities.

DENIES IDENTIFICATION.

Man Arrested for Great Gem Robbery Still Held Incomunicado in Jail.

Still refusing to admit that he is George Brown or Leo C. Wende, although many persons have positively identified him as the man, Oscar Henderson, who was arrested on Friday as a former employee of Donovan and Seamans jewelry firm who stole $50,000 in gems and $450 in cash on August 17, is being held incomunicado in the City Jail while detectives are trying to locate the cache of jewelry.

That the man may have shipped the loot to Mexico, where it is known he had numerous acquaintances, is a point being investigated by the Federal authorities. According to Lieut. Moffit, acting in charge of the Detective Bureau, Wende, Brown or Henderson is trying to have the government take charge of his case, believing that an internment camp is preferable to the State Penitentiary. Yesterday morning Department of Justice officials decided that at present they would not interfere, although they will continue to investigate the man's record.

BIG SALE OF STAMPS HERE.

Record Shows Large Increase Over Last August.

Reduction is Shown in Both Imports and Exports.

Loss of Approximately Sixty-eight Per Cent.

The fiscal operations of the government at the Federal Building, for the month closing last night, show a healthy increase in every department, in spite of the midsummer quiet, with the exception of the collection of customs.

At the local postoffice the sales of War Savings Stamps for August amounted to $302,859.96, making the total sales since January 1, last, through the postoffice alone, of $2,947,725.94.

This does not include the sales of Thrift Stamps sold in Los Angeles that are not accounted for through the local postoffice.

The receipts from the sale of postage stamps, with two days estimated, amount to $249,295.56, as compared with $242,421.54 in July, and $199,043.19 for the month of August, 1917. The gain for the month just closed over the corresponding month of 1917 amounts to more than $50,000.

The total receipts of the first seven months of 1918 are $1,732,633.44, as compared with $1,428,030.83 for the corresponding period of 1917, or a gain of more than $300,000.

The exports reported by Collector Elliott indicate the departure of goods valued at but $242,347, as compared with $607,022 for August, 1917; imports have dropped from $420,560 in August, 1917, to $136,212 during the month just ended. But the collections show the greatest decrease, from $34,972.55 in August, 1917, to $10,995.05 for August, 1918, or a loss of approximately 68 per cent.

TRADE RESTRICTIONS.

The reduction in both exports and imports arises almost entirely on account of the trade restrictions in force everywhere, the matter of imports, from which the larger amount of the tax is collected, showing a tremendous dropping away. The war has had the effect to reduce the business in the local customs district ever since the regulations limiting the shipment of goods either in or out of the country have gone into effect.

In collections Los Angeles leads with $10,557.40 for August, 1918. San Diego comes next, with $191.50; Calexico, $101.16; Campo, $120.90, and Tia Juana, $24.

The internal revenue collections for August, 1918, are reported at $678,999.47, as compared with $213,837.10 for the corresponding month of last year. The great bulk of the collections arise from the payment of the income tax by persons who were either delinquent or came within the category of large taxpayers closing their reports at the close of the fiscal year.

It is estimated that the collections for September will mount over the $1,000,000 line, especially if the pending war revenue bill becomes a law within the present month and it contains proviso that the tax, in some instances, shall take effect immediately or be retroactive as to certain commodities and rates.

SUE UNIVERSITY CLUB TO RECOVER ON NOTE.

HARRY R. CALLENDER and Dr. West Hughes filed suit yesterday against R. L. Horton, H. H. Kerckhoff, Fielding J. Stilson and other stockholders and the University Club to recover $3000 paid by the plaintiffs on a note given by the University Club Holding Company, signed by Charles F. Edson, vice-president, and Fielding J. Stilson, secretary. A trust deed on property owned by the club and encumbered by a mortgage, was given as security. Payment of the note was guaranteed by Harry R. Callender and Dr. Hughes. Upon demand of the University Club Holding Company, the plaintiffs paid the interest.

The total shares of the holding club number 1687½. The number of shares held by each of the defendants, aggregating fifty stockholders, is set out in the complaint. Mr. Edson holds 100 and Mr. Stilson eighty. The money represented in the note was borrowed of the Continental Security Company.

The University Club Holding Corporation was formed to finance a clubhouse for the University Club on a lot running from Clay to Olive streets, between Third and Fourth streets. Fielding J. Stilson, former member of the Los Angeles Stock Exchange, was the promoter of the company. Various members of the corporation paid for stock, and with this money the lot was to be bought and the clubhouse built. The club turned the proposition down and the District Attorney was called upon to untangle the affairs of the corporation in an effort to get back the stockholders' money. The suit filed yesterday is an effort to recover money paid in.

ARRESTED ON BIRTHDAY, CONFESSES BIG ROBBERY.

VICTOR KLINGENSMITH was arrested at a local hotel yesterday, on his twenty-first birthday, charged with robbing the Sterling Furniture Company of San Francisco of money, Liberty Bonds and checks to the value of $2200.

"I've made a good start," he said to Deputy Sheriff Nolan and the William J. Burns detectives who had trailed him since his arrival. "I'll bet they give me ten years."

He confessed, and all of the stolen money was found deposited in a local bank. Some of the bonds had been spent for jewelry.

Klingensmith wore a white cotton glove to conceal his fingerprints when he opened the safe on the night of August 17. "Don't blow the safe. Here's the combination," is the sign on the walls of the furniture company, and the correct combination is given there. The company posts the sign to prevent burglars from blowing the safe and destroying the $50,000 credit-account records which are kept there.

The young man had worked for the furniture company a year, and had come to San Francisco from his home in Marysville. He will be taken back to San Francisco charged with the burglary.

ALLEGES DESERTION.

Mrs. Carrie P. Groves discovered that Frederick G. Groves did not love her when, after sending her from their home in Vancouver, B. C., to Salt Lake City on a visit to her parents, he did not send her money to return to him. This was in January, 1915, and since that date she told Judge Shenk yesterday in divorce proceedings, she has not heard from her husband. Mrs. Groves came to this city as time passed and brought suit on the ground of desertion.

Tonight! Take Dodson's Liver Tone! Better Than Calomel For Liver

Calomel sickens! If bilious, constipated and headachy read my guarantee.

Listen to me! Take no more sickening, salivating calomel when bilious or constipated. Don't lose a day's work!

Calomel is mercury or quicksilver which causes necrosis of the bones. Calomel, when it comes into contact with sour bile, crashes into it, breaking it up. This is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. If you are sluggish and "all knocked out," if your liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour just take a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful tonight, and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous by morning, I want you to go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it is a real liver medicine; entirely vegetable, therefore it cannot salivate or make you sick.

I guarantee that one spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone will put your sluggish liver to work and clean your bowels of that sour bile and constipated waste which is clogging your system and making you feel miserable. I guarantee that a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone will keep your entire family feeling fine for months. Give it to your children. It is harmless; doesn't gripe and they like its pleasant taste.

Lift Off Corns!

"Freezone" is Magic! Lift any Corn or Callus right off with fingers—No pain!

Drop a little Freezone on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then you lift it right out. It doesn't hurt one bit. Yes, magic!

Why wait? Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of Freezone for a few cents, sufficient to rid your feet of every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and calluses, without soreness or irritation. Freezone is the much talked of ether discovery of a Cincinnati genius.

URBAN Military Academy
12th Year
Fall Term Sept. 16th
Exclusively for Young Boys

ANNOUNCEMENT

We take pleasure in announcing three new members of our Faculty, each a master in his particular work.

French, Choral Work and Athletics will be three of the distinctive features at the Urban Military Academy this season.

They will be under the direction of Jules Cabin Cacciottoli, B. C. L., University of Rome; Mr. Roy Brignall, pupil of Prof. Charles Demorest; Henry W. Ralston, Master of the Art of Gymnastics, Harvard University. These courses are part of the regular curriculum for which there is no extra charge.

FRENCH

Realizing the pressing necessity of acquiring a thorough knowledge of the French language, we have arranged our courses so that each boy is given a daily lesson in this language under Professor Jules Cabin Cacciottoli, who comes to us highly recommended by prominent people in Europe as well as in the States.

CHORAL AND BAND WORK

The Choir Singing and Band Work will be under the direction of Mr. Roy Brignall, who has won much praise for the excellent training of the choir in St. Anthony's Church, Long Beach, where he is also organist. He is a pupil of the well-known church and concert organist, Charles Demorest.

ATHLETICS

The finest outdoor gymnasium on the Pacific Coast is at present under construction on the campus of the Urban Annex. Some of the equipment will include a giant stride, a slide thirty-two feet long, six swings, four teeters and a gymnasium outfit, comprising horizontal bars, rings, sliding poles, etc. All made of galvanized iron in concrete foundations.

Professor Henry W. Ralston, Master of the Art of Gymnastics, Harvard University, will have charge of the athletics and recreations at the Urban this year.

A Big School for Little Boys

The new term opens September 16. We have increased our accommodations so that we can take care of twenty more boarding pupils than a year ago. This constant growth is due to merit.

The new "Handbook of American Private Schools" has arrived and once more only two schools for boys in Los Angeles County are listed as first class schools. They are Harvard and Page. This honor is especially gratifying to Page for the reason that schools below high school grade are not ordinarily listed in this volume, and the preface explains that grammar schools are so listed only when of "exceptional merit." Page Military Academy is for boys from six to fourteen years of age and has no high school course.

We do not believe, however, that the other schools for boys in Los Angeles County are poor schools. On the contrary, we think that every one of any standing at all is doing a noble and unselfish work. Without doubt every one has letters, as we have, from prominent men and women who write from appreciative hearts of good work accomplished. Still they have not been able to convince Mr. Sargent, the great authority on American private schools, that their standard is up to the best.

This man Sargent gathers his information year after year from sources unavailable to the casual investigator. It is his business and he can neither be fooled, bribed nor brow beaten. A perusal of his handbook convinces one of its absolute integrity. From more than two thousand private schools, he has selected the best and as a basis for this selection he says, "Merit, as determined by the opinion of the better-informed educators who have intimate knowledge of the schools in question, has been the only deciding factor."

What can you tell about the quality of meals served, the nature of the discipline, the caliber of the teaching force, the general spirit of the school by a casual visit and perfunctory investigation? Sargent has more information on these points on file in his office at 50 Congress street, Boston, Mass., than can be found anywhere else in America. Write and ask him some questions before you make the momentous decision in regard to your boy's schooling.

Seven-acre campus; five semi-fireproof buildings; sixteen resident teachers; no high school boys, but everything adapted to meet the needs of the little folks; the largest school of its class in America. Fall term opens September 16; rates for boarding pupils, $450 to $550 for the school year; day pupils, $185 per year. Ask for catatlogue. Address Robert A. Gibbs, Head Master, Page Military Academy, R. F. D. No. 7, Box 950, Los Angeles, or phone 74216.

MEDIUM USED FOR SWINDLE?

"Girl with a Thousand Eyes" in Strange Story.

Electric Company's Cashier Her Alleged Victim.

Thousands Stolen for Fake Project, it is Said.

How a beautiful spirit-medium lured a young cashier to embezzle thousands of dollars from his company to finance an imaginary shipbuilding project was disclosed yesterday after a nation-wide search had been instituted for the medium, who is known as "The Girl with a Thousand Eyes."

J. F. Hubbard, the cashier, is now in the County Jail. The Southern California Electric Company is the firm charging him with falsifying their books. Estimates of the defalcation are placed at various sums up to $10,000. Rivaling a melodrama of fiction, an alleged confession is said to have been made to Dist.-Atty. Woolwine in which black magic is interwoven with "high finance."

An investigation conducted under the direction of John J. Hill, Jr., deputy District Attorney, shows that Hubbard was a competent and trustworthy employee up to about eighteen months ago. At that time a "promoter" appeared in his life.

Hubbard and the promoter became fast friends. One evening the latter told Hubbard that fortunes were to be made with incredible speed in the shipbuilding industry. He revealed plans whereby government contracts could be obtained, money borrowed to construct ship plants and huge profits realized. The only drawback was in getting a sufficient sum to deposit to prove financial reliability.

A few evenings later, according to the reputed confession, the promoter invited Hubbard to witness a seance. Wonders of the spirit world were unfolded before Hubbard and he was completely entranced with the supposed power of the medium, a beautiful girl apparently not much more than 20.

Just as the meeting was about to adjourn, the woman turned to Hubbard and in low tones said, "A man born to fortunes, but lacking in decision; the spirits bid you to venture."

Mystified, but impressed, Hubbard thought the words over for several days. He then sought out the medium. Before he had spoken to her she told him that he was thinking of a great patriotic project, one that would bring him a vast fortune and one that he must not hesitate longer to promote.

"The spirits give you but one chance—accept it," she said.

It was then that Hubbard began to apply the system he evolved in his mind during the days of indecision, according to the alleged confession. He is said to have admitted that he remembers taking $100 in forty different instances by adding the figure 1 to his book accounts when drawing checks in the tens of dollars.

NO CONTRACTS APPEAR.

Other instances of smaller sums are said to have been disclosed in the statement. These alleged embezzlements extended over a period of several months. The promoter was given the money and went to Washington. But the contracts for ships were not obtained.

The firm is said to have become suspicious that their financial affairs were not as they should be. Hubbard's books were experted and the discrepancies discovered. Hubbard then is alleged to have admitted the embezzlement.

At the suggestion of Deputy District Attorney Heinecke, Hubbard agreed, it is said, to write out his confession. He is said to have told how he sought the medium when the contracts were not forthcoming and she suddenly disappeared.

An effort is being made to locate the young woman, to ascertain whether she worked in conjunction with others to play upon Hubbard's credulity, and to obtain other evidence for the hearing in Justice Brown's court Tuesday.

Put Away.

TROUBLE-MAKER TO BE RETIRED.

"Gen." Zogg Must go to Federal Prison for Ten Years.

Pinchon to Serve for One-fifth of that Period.

Motions for New Trials are Overruled by Court.

The bunco firm of "Gen." Nicholas Senn Zogg, Ltd., dealers in fairy tales calculated to separate the gullible from their money, went into a receivership yesterday, when United States District Judge Trippet put away the active number of the firm for ten years in the Federal penitentiary at McNeil's Island.

Edgecombe Pinchon, who lately allied himself with the corporation, and whose sole efforts, so far as the evidence went, was limited to assisting in getting $1000 from Mrs. Maude Huber, of Owensmouth, in return for getting her son, Berthold Huber, across the line into Mexico, so as to avoid the selective draft, was given two years at the same penitentiary. The attorney for this defendant asked that he be sent to the Leavenworth (Kansas) military prison, and he may be accommodated.

Zogg was sentenced to two years on the first count of the indictment charging him with violation of the selective draft law, and ten years on the second count, alleging that he violated the Espionage Act. Zogg was also found guilty on the third count of the indictment charging that the defendant had caused insubordination in the ranks of the army and navy, but the court granted him a new trial on that count. Whether he will be tried on this is yet to be determined by the District Attorney's office. The terms run concurrently, and that means Zogg will serve ten years, less what he may be able to gain on account of good behavior.

PINCHON GETS TWO YEARS.

Pinchon was sentenced to two years on each of the first and second counts of the indictment, and as the sentences run concurrently that means he will be restrained for two years.

Motions were made in arrest of judgment and for a new trial in both cases, but both were overruled, except as to the third count of the indictment in the Zogg case.

An appeal was taken in both cases, and a stay of execution of the sentences for the term of twenty days, was allowed.

Zogg evidently expected the jo and when judgment was pronounced, his black hair stood up bit more stiffly, but beyond that h made no sign. Pinchon paled somewhat.

The sentence given "Gen." Zo will remove from the ken of th United States District Attorney individual who has given the government no end of trouble for several years. He has been connect with a number of cases involv violations of the neutrality la but this is the first time he has be convicted in the local Fede courts.

Equipped with a vivid imagination and a total lack of conscien Zogg has been able to impose up the unsuspecting, and has made good living out of his various campaigns. AUTO THIEVES BANK ROBBERS.

Car Stolen at South Pasadena Found in Indiana.

Mrs. Col. Holmes Discharges Servants During War.

Chaffeur in Army, Street Cars Displace Automobile.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

PASADENA, Sept. 1.—Bank robbers who escaped after robbing the South Side State Bank in Indianapolis of $17,000 in cash on August 8, are the same individuals who, last April, stole a Hudson automobile from the garage of Mrs. J. E. Pierce, No. 1140 Stratford avenue, South Pasadena, it was learned by Chief of Police W. S. McIntyre yesterday.

The car of Mrs. Pierce was taken on the night of April 3, with extreme boldness by an unknown man who unlocked the garage, ran the car out, and who, when he saw Officer Hooker standing across the street, returned and locked the garage. He acted with such coolness as to completely disarm the suspicions of the policeman.

No word was heard of the stolen car until yesterday. It had been left by three men in a garage at Indianapolis who failed to call for it. After several days the police of that city were notified by the garage owners. The fact that it had been left the same night as the bank robbery led to a search for finger prints and three good impressions were discovered on the door of the car. These impressions tallied with finger prints found on the door of the rifled bank vault.

According to the Indianapolis police the stolen car is in excellent condition despite the fact that it probably has been used in extensive drives around the country in the past four months. This leads the police to believe they are on the track of a highly skilled gang of cracksmen. Since the theft, Mrs. Pierce has purchased another car of the same type.

WAR TIME ECONOMY.

Col. and Mrs. Edwin F. Holmes, the latter known as "The Silver Queen," who are here on a few days business trip are telling their friends that they have dispensed with the use of an automobile for mere pleasure trips and that they have found that the street cars are perfectly enjoyable. They are guests of the Hotel Maryland for a few days and are planning to return to their home in Salt Lake City.

Amelia Palace, once the residence of Brigham Young's favorite wife, and more recently the Holmes's residence in the Utah capital, is now the headquarters of the Red Cross Society. Mrs. Holmes says that she was only to glad to vacate it for the period of the war. She describes the present scene in the art galleries where scores of white gowned women are busy forming surgical dressings and in the other spacious chambers and wonders what Brigham Young would think could he return to live and enter the beehive of war workers which have taken possession of his Amelia's abode.

"Utah has been a wonderfully efficient State in all branches of wartime endeavor. The State has furnished minerals and man power and has been foremost in the financing. Even the stockings the women of the State knit are said by the War Department to excel in quality—perhaps for the reason that knitting has not been a lost art among the women," says Mrs. Holmes.

She tells of a "war conscience" that is already well developed throughout the country. Mrs. Holmes is traveling without her usual maid and her chauffeur is in France with the Utah Field Artillery. Lorenzo Snow, protege of Col. and Mrs. Holmes, who is well known among the local younger set, is now an aviator in France.

LIFT FOOD EMBARGO; MEXICANS CELEBRATE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, Aug. 30.—Expressions of joy over the decision of United States authorities to lift the embargo on food and permit the citizens of Mexicali to continue their purchases on this side of the line amounted today in the Lower California capital city to little less than a celebration.

The announcement made by Frank D. Hevener, E. R. Brown, C. T. Wardlaw and Thomas Daly on their return this morning from Los Angeles, where they consulted with Collector of Customs Elliott, dispelled clouds of gloom that had been gathering in both the twin cities. The rescinding of the order, it is believed, will become effective early next week.

LIEUT. ROCHESTER'S WAR EXPERIENCE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, Aug. 31.—Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Rochester of this city have received a letter from their son, Lieut. Alex Rochester, who is in service as an eye specialist at one of the evacuation hospitals in France, in which he says war has opened his eyes, metaphorically speaking, and never again will he judge a man until he knows what he has been through.

He tells of removing the eyeball of a wounded soldier while another surgeon amputated his arm. When his recovery had progressed to a point where the eye bandage could be removed and he discovered he had lost the sight of the eye and that his right arm was gone, he philosophically remarked: "Well, I'll have to teach my old left wing to do business."

Lieut. Rochester has had some very narrow escapes, as the hospital where he is stationed has been bombed, and a train on which he was riding to Paris was attacked by a German airplane.

Enormous Yield and Wine Variety Bringing Growers $30 a Ton.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

SAN BERNARDINO, Aug. 31.—Highest prices in history are paid grape growers for the crop now being harvested, and the receipts in this county will be almost 100 per cent. greater than last year.

Wine grapes are bringing more than $30 per ton, and the vines are yielding a full crop under ideal weather conditions. If prohibition sweeps the nation next year, this will be the last wine grape crop for the thousands of acres of vineyards in this county.

BARKER EMPLOYEES THRONG SEASHORE.

OVER 2000 ATTEND PICNIC AT SANTA MONICA; MANAGERS POUR THE COFFEE.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, Aug. 31.—Like one big happy family, as W. A. Barker expressed it, the employees of Barker Bros., their wives and children, came to Santa Monica Beach for an all-day outing. It is estimated that there were 2000 persons in the picnic party.

The store uptown, of course, was closed all day for the fourth annual picnic. Everybody had a ticket, from the members of the firm and department managers to the humblest errand boy or scrub woman. The managers waited on the rest, poured the coffee, looked after the children and helped in other ways. A corps of five trained nurses were on duty all day to look after tired mothers and kiddies with banged fingers and sunburned bodies.

Lawrence Barker, son of W. A. Barker, came down from San Francisco to be at the picnic. He is in the navy. Earl Barker, son of C. H. Barker, wired his congratulations from his naval post in Philadelphia. The youngest representative of Barker Bros. was Robert Truax Barker, aged 15 months. In the arms of his grandfather he cooed his approval of picnics in general.

After a bountiful al fresco lunch under the shades of palm branches on the pier, the crowd dissolved into groups and scattered along the beach. Many went in bathing. Others played games and patronized the amusements on the pier. Special trains took the picnickers back to the city at a reasonable hour this evening.

"One of the best-natured and finest crowds I have seen this season," said Manager Robert Brown of the pier company.

POMONA ROAD PAVING UP TO GOVERNMENT.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Aug. 31.—It appears now that the Federal government will step in and decide the controversy which has arisen over the paving of Philadelphia street, according to a report sent out from Washington, which states that on and after September 10 of this year no street or highway work requiring the use of cement, brick, asphalt, oil, tar, crushed stone or steel as material shall be started until the approval of the United States Highways Council is secured.

On Philadelphia street there is a difference of opinion over the question of paving, some desiring it and others opposing it. The City Council by a vote of three to two decided to lay the matter over indefinitely. Since that time it is understood that those desiring the paving have been quietly at work and that they have secured a petition with the names of 75 per cent. of the property owners.

HUNTINGTON PARK MAN FROM OVER THERE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

HUNTINGTON PARK, Aug. 31.—News was received Thursday by Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Kistler of No. 469 South Pacific boulevard that their son, Lieut. Roy E. Kistler of the Engineer Corps, United States Reserves, had arrived in New York City from France.

While over there he was engaged in electrical construction on the Ypres front. In Paris every man is in some nation's uniform and almost all women in mourning, he writes. He also declares that New York seems very quiet after being at the front, but the quiet nights for sleep are a real treat.

Lieut. Kistler is one of the squad of lieutenants sent back to drill the new draft army, and is at present stationed at Humphreys, Va., but will probably visit the Coast in the near future.

FIRE AT CAMARILLO DESTROYS 3 STORES.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, Aug. 30.—Three store-buildings in the heart of the business district of Camarillo were destroyed by fire about midnight last night. The heaviest loss of stock was that of Johnson and Freeman, butchers, $1500 worth of meat and some cash and fixtures. This was partly covered by insurance. The three buildings were the property of A. E. Cawelti, and were not insured. Other occupants were Ed Richardson, barber shop, and Ed Hayes, poolroom. Stock and fixtures in these buildings were removed. The fire started from a motor in the butcher shop.

WELCOME NEW PASTOR.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

WHITTIER, Aug. 31.—After being without a regular pastor for some four months, the United Presbyterian Church of this city will tomorrow welcome its new pastor, Rev. C. E. Hanna. The new pastor comes here from Mammouth, Calif., where he has been located for some years. He succeeds Rev. Louis Tinning who, last spring, terminated a long pastorate here to enter army Y.M.C.A. work.

BALLOON SCHOOL SEES FILM STAR AT WORK.

CHARLIE CHAPLIN STAGES COMEDY SCENES NEAR CAMP AT ARCADIA.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

ARMY BALLOON SCHOOL (Arcadia) Aug. 31. — Charlie Chaplin was an added attraction today at the balloon school. Soldiers had an opportunity to see the film star at work and enjoyed the sight. The Chaplin company was taking scenes in connection with a new film being prepared and the country around the balloon school was included. Some Griffith films of camp life were shown at the post Friday evening for their first appearance. The films will go from here to Washington for approval of the War Department before being shown at any other place.

The new officers' quarters has been completed just in time to provide quarters for the newly-commissioned men at the school. The building is located along the north side of the grounds near the main gate. It is fitted up with all modern equipment obtaining in the best club buildings.

Maj. Wrenn, formerly of the artillery branch, has been transferred to the balloon school as an instructor in observation work. He has seen several months' active service in France both in the artillery and in the air service.

C. H. Poole, member of Parliament for New Zealand, told a balloon school audience Friday evening what the Anzacs had done in the war. He spoke under the auspices of the post Y.M.C.A. and made a good impression. He compared the men from New Zealand, Australia and that section of the British empire with the American soldiers, declaring democracies produced the best soldiers no matter what the amount of training given.

Eight special religious services have been arranged for tomorrow at the post. There are seven companies and one cadet detachment and service will be held at 8 a.m. in the mess hall of each unit. Five of the leaders are officers at the post and the others are furnished by the different religious organizations interested in the army work. Dr. Palmer of Honolulu will lead the service for the entire post at 10 o'clock in the morning. At this service the post band will make its first appearance in gospel work. It will play a concert of strictly religious music.

Lieut. McDonald, post chaplain, has organized classes in English, algebra, geometry and trigonometry among the enlisted men at the post and a large number are availing themselves of the opportunity to earn promotion.

GLENDALE GIRL WEDS OFFICER OF NAVY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, Aug. 31.—A simple but pretty war wedding was celebrated this morning at 11 o'clock at the home of Stanley Frentz, a well-known resident of this city and prominent member of the local Elks' Club, when his daughter, Miss Meryl Frentz, was united to Ensign William Crawford, senior officer of the United States steamer Vicksburg. Rev. W. E. Edmonds, pastor of the Presbyterian Church of this city, officiated, and the only witnesses were the parents and brother of the groom, who resides in San Francisco, the father of the bride and her sister, Mrs. John Dunn, who was herself a bride one year ago.

Following the wedding dinner, Ensign and Mrs. Crawford left in a beautiful new automobile, the gift of the bride's father, for a wedding trip. They will reside in San Diego, where the Vicksburg is now stationed. Mrs. Crawford was graduated from the Glendale High School last June. She and Ensign Crawford met for the first time this summer and it was a case of love at first sight.

GIRL WEIGHMASTERS IN SUGAR FACTORY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

OXNARD, Aug. 30.—The Misses Cecelia and Dora Maulhardt are believed to be the first women to act as weighmasters in the beet sugar industry in the State, thus aiding in relieving the labor shortage. Owing to the eight-hour law, it is necessary for the girls to work in two six-hour shifts for the twelve-hour day. Together they receive the same pay as one man for the full shift.

They are in charge of the beet receiving station, or dump, at Debo in the Oceanview district, and like the work, which consists of weighing the loads as they are brought in, and keeping records for the American Beet Sugar Company and the ranchers. The girls are sisters, daughters of a prominent pioneer family of the county, and Miss Cecelia is an accomplished violiniste, having appeared in public on many occasions.

PLAN STREET DANCE FOR NURSE'S FUND.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SOUTH PASADENA, Aug. 31.—A street dance under the auspices of the Cecilian Club, a music club of South Pasadena young ladies, will be held Saturday evening, September 7, at the corner of Monterey road and Windsor place, near Fremont avenue.

The entire proceeds from the dance will be turned over to the army nurse fund. This will be the first street dance given in South Pasadena and the club expects to make a great success of it, because of its good cause, its novelty and the pleasure it will afford.

An invitation has been extended the boys at the balloon school at Arcadia, and, without doubt, from the enthusiasm which has already been shown, there will be a large number of men in uniform present.

POMONA DRAFT MEN ENTRAIN WEDNESDAY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Aug. 31.—Next Wednesday, September 4, forty-four men will entrain from the Pomona district for Camp Kearny. They have been ordered to report at the Pomona board at 8 o'clock on Wednesday and will entrain early the next day.

BUSY BEACH WOMAN TO SERVE ON JURY.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, Aug. 31.—Mrs. J. C. Urquhart, president of the Santa Monica Bay Woman's Club and secretary of the local Civil Service Commission, has been summoned to appear as a term trial juror in Judge Willis's court Tuesday next.

Though a very busy woman, Mrs. Urquhart said today she will gladly serve on the panel for a month or so, but hopes to be excused later on account of the almost daily sessions of the club as well as frequent meetings for various war activities.

Besides her club duties, her work at the City Hall and Red Cross, Mrs. Urquhart is noted for her cooking and dainty little teas.

HUN PROPAGANDISTS CIRCULATE RUMORS.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

VENICE, Aug. 31.—Another Hun lie is being circulated in Venice today. A rumor passing from house to house where service flags hang, was to the effect that an epidemic has broken out in the camps and that thousands have died or are mortally ill. The beach newspaper offices were besieged for news today and it is evident that some German propagandist was busy.

Chief Raymond is using every possible means of finding out if the lie emanated here.

WILL DEDICATE ORGAN.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

GLENDALE, Aug. 31.—The installation of a beautiful pipe organ, the gift of M. Ambrosini, who has large property interests here, to the Glendale Presbyterian Church, has been completed, and its dedication will take place Sunday, September 8, when a fine musical programme will be given. It will be a jubilee Sunday for the church, which will celebrate its freedom from debt by burning its mortgage. Another gift of $2500 has made possible this double celebration. The church was dedicated seven years ago. Rev. W. E. Edmonds is its pastor.

ALLEGED SEDITIONIST.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 31.—Andrew Tazer, an Austrian 60 years of age, was arrested by the police this morning, on a charge of uttering seditious language. Detective William Sandlin is making a complete investigation and if the circumstances warrant, Tazer will be turned over to the Federal authorities. Tazer has relatives in Jackson, Mich., and prior to coming to the beach was in the ladies' tailoring business in Bakersfield.

FRENCH JOIN PROTEST TO MEXICAN OIL TAX.

[BY A. P. DAY WIRE.]

WASHINGTON, Aug. 31.—The French government was included among the nations which formally protested against the oil decree of the Mexican government, according to information which has reached the State Department.

As there are no French petroleum companies operating in Mexico the French government based its protest on the ownership of stock in British and American companies by French citizens.

Protests were also made by the United States, Great Britain and Holland.

CURSES UNCLE SAM; ALSO HATES KAISER.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

CALEXICO, Aug. 30.—John Weise, who acknowledges that he loves the German people, with the exception of the Kaiser, was arrested by Patrolman Boucher this morning as he crossed the line from Mexico, and turned over to the military authorities at Camp Beacom.

While employed on a ranch in Mexico, Weise is alleged to have cursed the United States bitterly on several occasions. Asked by Patrolman Boucher why he did this, Weise said: "Yes, I did it; I don't like the United States because they kill my people."

A short time after his internment at the camp, Weise denounced the Kaiser and said he would fight with the Allies if given the chance.

Defends County Management.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 31.—[To the Editor of The Times:] Your editorial of Tuesday, last, headed "Hamilton Tripped," quotes an unnamed reader of The Times as raising the question of my integrity and the consistency of my statement that there was a deficit of $1,243,478.72 on July 1, 1915, the first day of my first fiscal year as chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Supervisors with a resolution introduced by me November 3, 1915, in which it was declared that the county was carrying over from year to year a cash balance of not less than $1,300,000 . . . and had a total reserve fund of about $3,000,000. Your correspondent says he "would like to know whether these statements made by Mr. Hamilton, as head of the finance department of the Board of Supervisors, are the result of incompetency or misrepresentation."

Strangely enough, in advertisements in the evening papers of Pomona, Whittier and Pasadena on Monday evening, it was said that, quoting the same declarations by me, "Mr. Cogswell would like to know whether these statements made by Mr. Hamilton as head of the finance department of the Board of Supervisors are the result of incompetency or mismanagement." The identity of the language in which my honesty and competency were assailed suggests the possible source of your correspondence.

Mr. Cogswell's campaign management would have had a perfect right to raise the question of my personal and official integrity at any time during the late campaign when I would have an opportunity to answer the attack; but I submit that the publication of such garbled and disconnected statements and imputations on the night before the primary ranks morally with the Morey letter and a kind of politics which honorable men no longer resort to. The advertisements unquestionably cost me hundreds of votes at the primary election.

It is true that I accepted as true the statement of Auditor Lewis in a letter to the Board of Supervisors in July, 1915, that provision had been made in the tax levy of 1914 to cover the overdrafts constituting the deficit, which later was discovered to be untrue; and that I believed the statement of the expert auditor of the grand jury of 1914 that the cash carried over from year to year, never less than $1,300,000, was surplus funds; that the bonds carried by the Treasurer, $1,630,000, represented surplus county funds, as stated in his reports, the two together amounting to about $3,000,000; and that I at that time advocated the building of the Mint Canyon road from that alleged surplus; but the first section of that highway was built out of the automobile license money; practically the entire appropriation of $325,000 was turned back into the general fund, and not a dollar was added to the deficit by the transaction.

These being the facts, and the truth being that every dollar of the deficit existed before July 1, 1915; that, instead of levying for money enough to protect the old overdrafts in 1914, a levy of $346,000 below the estimates was then made; that it was I that discovered and made public the fact that there was a deficit, whereas, the board of control experts did not announce it till March, 1917, eight months after I did; that I warned the Board of Supervisors of the dangerous condition of the accounts in February, 1915, immediately after I became Supervisor; that I personally introduced the budget system in 1915, making certain future control of expenditures; that I made the fight which resulted in putting the accounts in expert hands, and have supported Supervisor Woodley in the economies which have already nearly, if not quite, wiped out the deficit, assaults on my integrity and competency have no justification at any time. And gentlemen will not make such charges against their political opponents the night before an election.

JOHN J. HAMILTON,
Chairman of the Board of Supervisors.

James Furey, president of the Cooks' Union, Chef of the Los Angeles Cafe, 415 S. Spring St., Los Angeles, writes:

I have been troubled with very bad feet for the past ten years, and I have tried every foot preparation that I have ever heard of. Am now using LIBERTY FOOT POWDER and have obtained instantaneous relief from its use.

H. E. Waddell, 730 Oakwood St., Inglewood, writes: I have been a sufferer from sore and calloused feet for several years, during which time I have used most of the powders sold in drug stores for this condition, and most of these preparations gave me little relief.

Seeing your ad. in the newspaper, I thought I would give LIBERTY FOOT POWDER a trial, and I want to tell you that I obtained relief from the very first application.

I have now used it three times and I now feel that I will not have to use it again this summer. Believe me, it is the best powder on the market for sore feet. I know.

Buy a can today and be convinced. No need of suffering from sore, aching feet.

After Vacation Peel Your Discolored Skin

Women returning from the seaside with browned, reddened or freckled complexions will be wise in immediately taking up the mercolized wax treatment. Weather-beaten skin had best come off, for no amount of "beautifying" will ever make such skin pretty to look at. The surest, safest, easiest way to shed the despoiled cuticle is with the treatment suggested. Put the wax on before retiring, as you would cold cream, and rinse it off next morning with warm water. Minute particles of scarf skin will peel off day by day, gradually showing the healthy, youthful skin beneath.

One ounce of mercolized wax, obtainable at any drug store, is enough to make any discolored or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. Its action is so gentle no harm is caused and the face shows no trace of its use.

EXPECT OVER SIXTY THOUSAND TO REGISTER HERE FOR DRAFT.

Largest Call Since Country Entered War Likely to Add Twenty Thousand Angelenos to Fighting Forces; British and Italians are Also Liable.

HERE are a few of the high lights of the September selective service draft as applied to Los Angeles and surrounding territory.

The registration, originally planned to take place next Saturday, has been delayed until Thursday, Sept. 12, through the necessity of allowing more time for preparation than was anticipated.

Approximately 60,600 men are expected to register in this city for possible military service, of whom about 20,000 may qualify, making a total that the city will have given to the service of about 34,000.

Half a million cards and records will be required for the registration of more than double the total number of men now in the service from here.

Several thousand assistants to registrars will rush the making of records to expedite the calling of the men.

British and Italians are subject to the draft.

Nearly every home and every business house in Los Angeles will be affected by this draft.

All males between 18 and 21 and 31 and 45 years, regardless of religious convictions, physical condition, race, color or nationality, must register. This includes all who become 46 years old on the date of registration and those who become 18 on that date.

Draft boards will provide for Los Angeles city a comprehensive map and description of the boundaries of sections within the districts, giving the addresses of registration places.

The machinery of all the selective service boards in Los Angeles city and county is oiled, greased and ready for the registration on Saturday of the men subject to call in the September draft. Not before since the war began has Los Angeles been called upon to offer her manhood in such abundant numbers as in this registration. The bugle call, "Salute to the Colors," has been sounded and all men between the ages of 18 and 21 and 31 and 45 will be expected to jot down the first legal part of their service records as soldiers for freedom. How far these records will go toward the fight in France will depend upon a multitude of conditions, all of them human and all interweaving the hopes, ambitions, heroism, patriotism and timidity of human nature.

Los Angeles' share in the registration call is expected to bring out approximately 60,000 men. Of that number, it is estimated that about 20,000 men will be picked for the fighting forces in France, the largest number ever asked of this city. The service flag of Los Angeles now has 14,065 stars in it and is increasing rapidly. This will mean that Los Angeles will have about 34,000 soldier and sailor representatives at the front or on their way there or at sea.

NO SLACKING LIKELY.

Everybody, the halt, the lame, the blind and the physically fit man, between the ages mentioned will have to register on the day set. But a feeling of satisfaction will be felt among the red-blooded Americans who go to one of the many temporary offices set aside for the making of first military records regarding the new method of registration. Americans are more aroused for war now than ever before, say exemption board members, and this has brought a change of conditions regarding registration. A man will be classified purely upon his relative military responsibility, if he makes a claim for exemption.

All local exemption boards have been strongly cautioned "not make paupers." The classification of men as to their military responsibility has also undergone considerable changes, but mostly with the idea of being more just to individuals. For instance, a man who has a family, a wife and child, or a child, dependent upon him for support will be placed in Class No. 4 A. The boards are cautioned that, even if the parents of the wife are wealthy, they are not legally bound to support the wife of the registrant, and the boards are advised to view with more or less doubt the willingness of such parents to support the wife and child, or the child. The main idea is, "Will the removal of the registrant remove support of the wife and child or a child?"

JUSTICE TO ALL.

This fact and the fact that the men registering will be classified according to the Selective Service Act provisions will relieve many men and women of worry. The patriotic feeling of thousands of Angelenos, business men, judges, lawyers, doctors and others is such that they would not care to ask exemption, while as a matter of fact they should do so, as they might be of greater importance in winning the war right at home than abroad.

Judges and civil officials generally, of course, are placed in an exemption class. Many young men with wives and children dependent upon them for support do not care to ask for a deferred classification, yet they are needed here to care for their families. The old rule was that a man who did not claim exemptions by that act, providing he passed physically, was soon inducted into the service. The new plan puts this on a basis of military responsibility, after claiming exemption.

A freak phase of this part of the act, with its modifications and regulations, is that a woman is entitled to be supported as she was accustomed to be. If a woman were never taught to be able to make her living, if necessary, the support she might expect under the act is that to which she was accustomed.

FROM COMMON LAW.

This was probably taken from the common law, which upholds the same, or nearly the same principle. For example, one woman was not taught by her parents to iron her own clothes, to cook, to do work of any kind, least of all that which would bring her a revenue. If her husband has a large income, and she is receiving the same support to which she was accustomed, she is still entitled to that. If another woman, accustomed to earn her own living, and capable of doing so, or is doing so, her husband, relatively, has more military responsibility than the first woman's husband. In neither of these cases is a woman supposed to be forced into an occupation for her support, or that of a child.

A man with a wife and no children, the wife not wholly dependent upon him, will be placed in Class 2-B. The man with dependent parents will be in Class 3-C.

Should the draft pick with ruthless hands—which it will not—the men between the ages of 31 and 45 years, Los Angeles would be in a peculiar predicament. Most of our officials, judges and justices are within the new draft age. However, those placed in a practically exempt deferred class are judges, elected to the bench, police and firemen of three years' service, customs house clerks, United States mail employees, employees at armories or arsenals, and many Federal employees, duly ordained ministers, executive, legislative and judicial officers of the United States and the various States, students of divinity up to June 5, 1917, (with some modifications,) all alien enemies (Germans, Austrians, Hungarians and their dependents,) and all persons convicted of felonies.

PENALTY FOR FAILURE.

Chairman James W. Long of Board No. 17, which is in touch with all other boards, announced yesterday that all arrangements are perfected for the registration. Blanks, including cards, duplicates, questionnaires and records have been ordered from the Adjutant-General at Sacramento, and registrants will be notified by the boards, through the medium of newspapers, where to register.

As it is the duty of every man between the ages of 18 and 45, not now registered, or in the service of the United States as a soldier or sailor to register, failure to do so constitutes a misdemeanor punishable by imprisonment for one year. Failure to register also constitutes a waiver of any rights or privileges a man may have under the selective

JUDGE WORKS AGAIN SUED.

Second Action for Divorce Ends Hope of Domestic Reconciliation.

Hopes of a reconciliation between Judge Louis R. Works went glimmering yesterday when it was discovered that Mrs. Works had filed a new suit for divorce. The complaint was not placed in the file, but from outside sources it was learned that it had been prepared by Attorney K. A. Miller and that desertion is alleged.

When the first suit was brought by Mrs. Works, neither party would comment on the case. Judge Works, after the separation, lived at a club and Mrs. Works occupied the family residence on Kingsley drive. As far as could be learned, incompatibility seems to be the basis for the domestic trouble. No reason was given when Mrs. Works withdrew her first complaint.

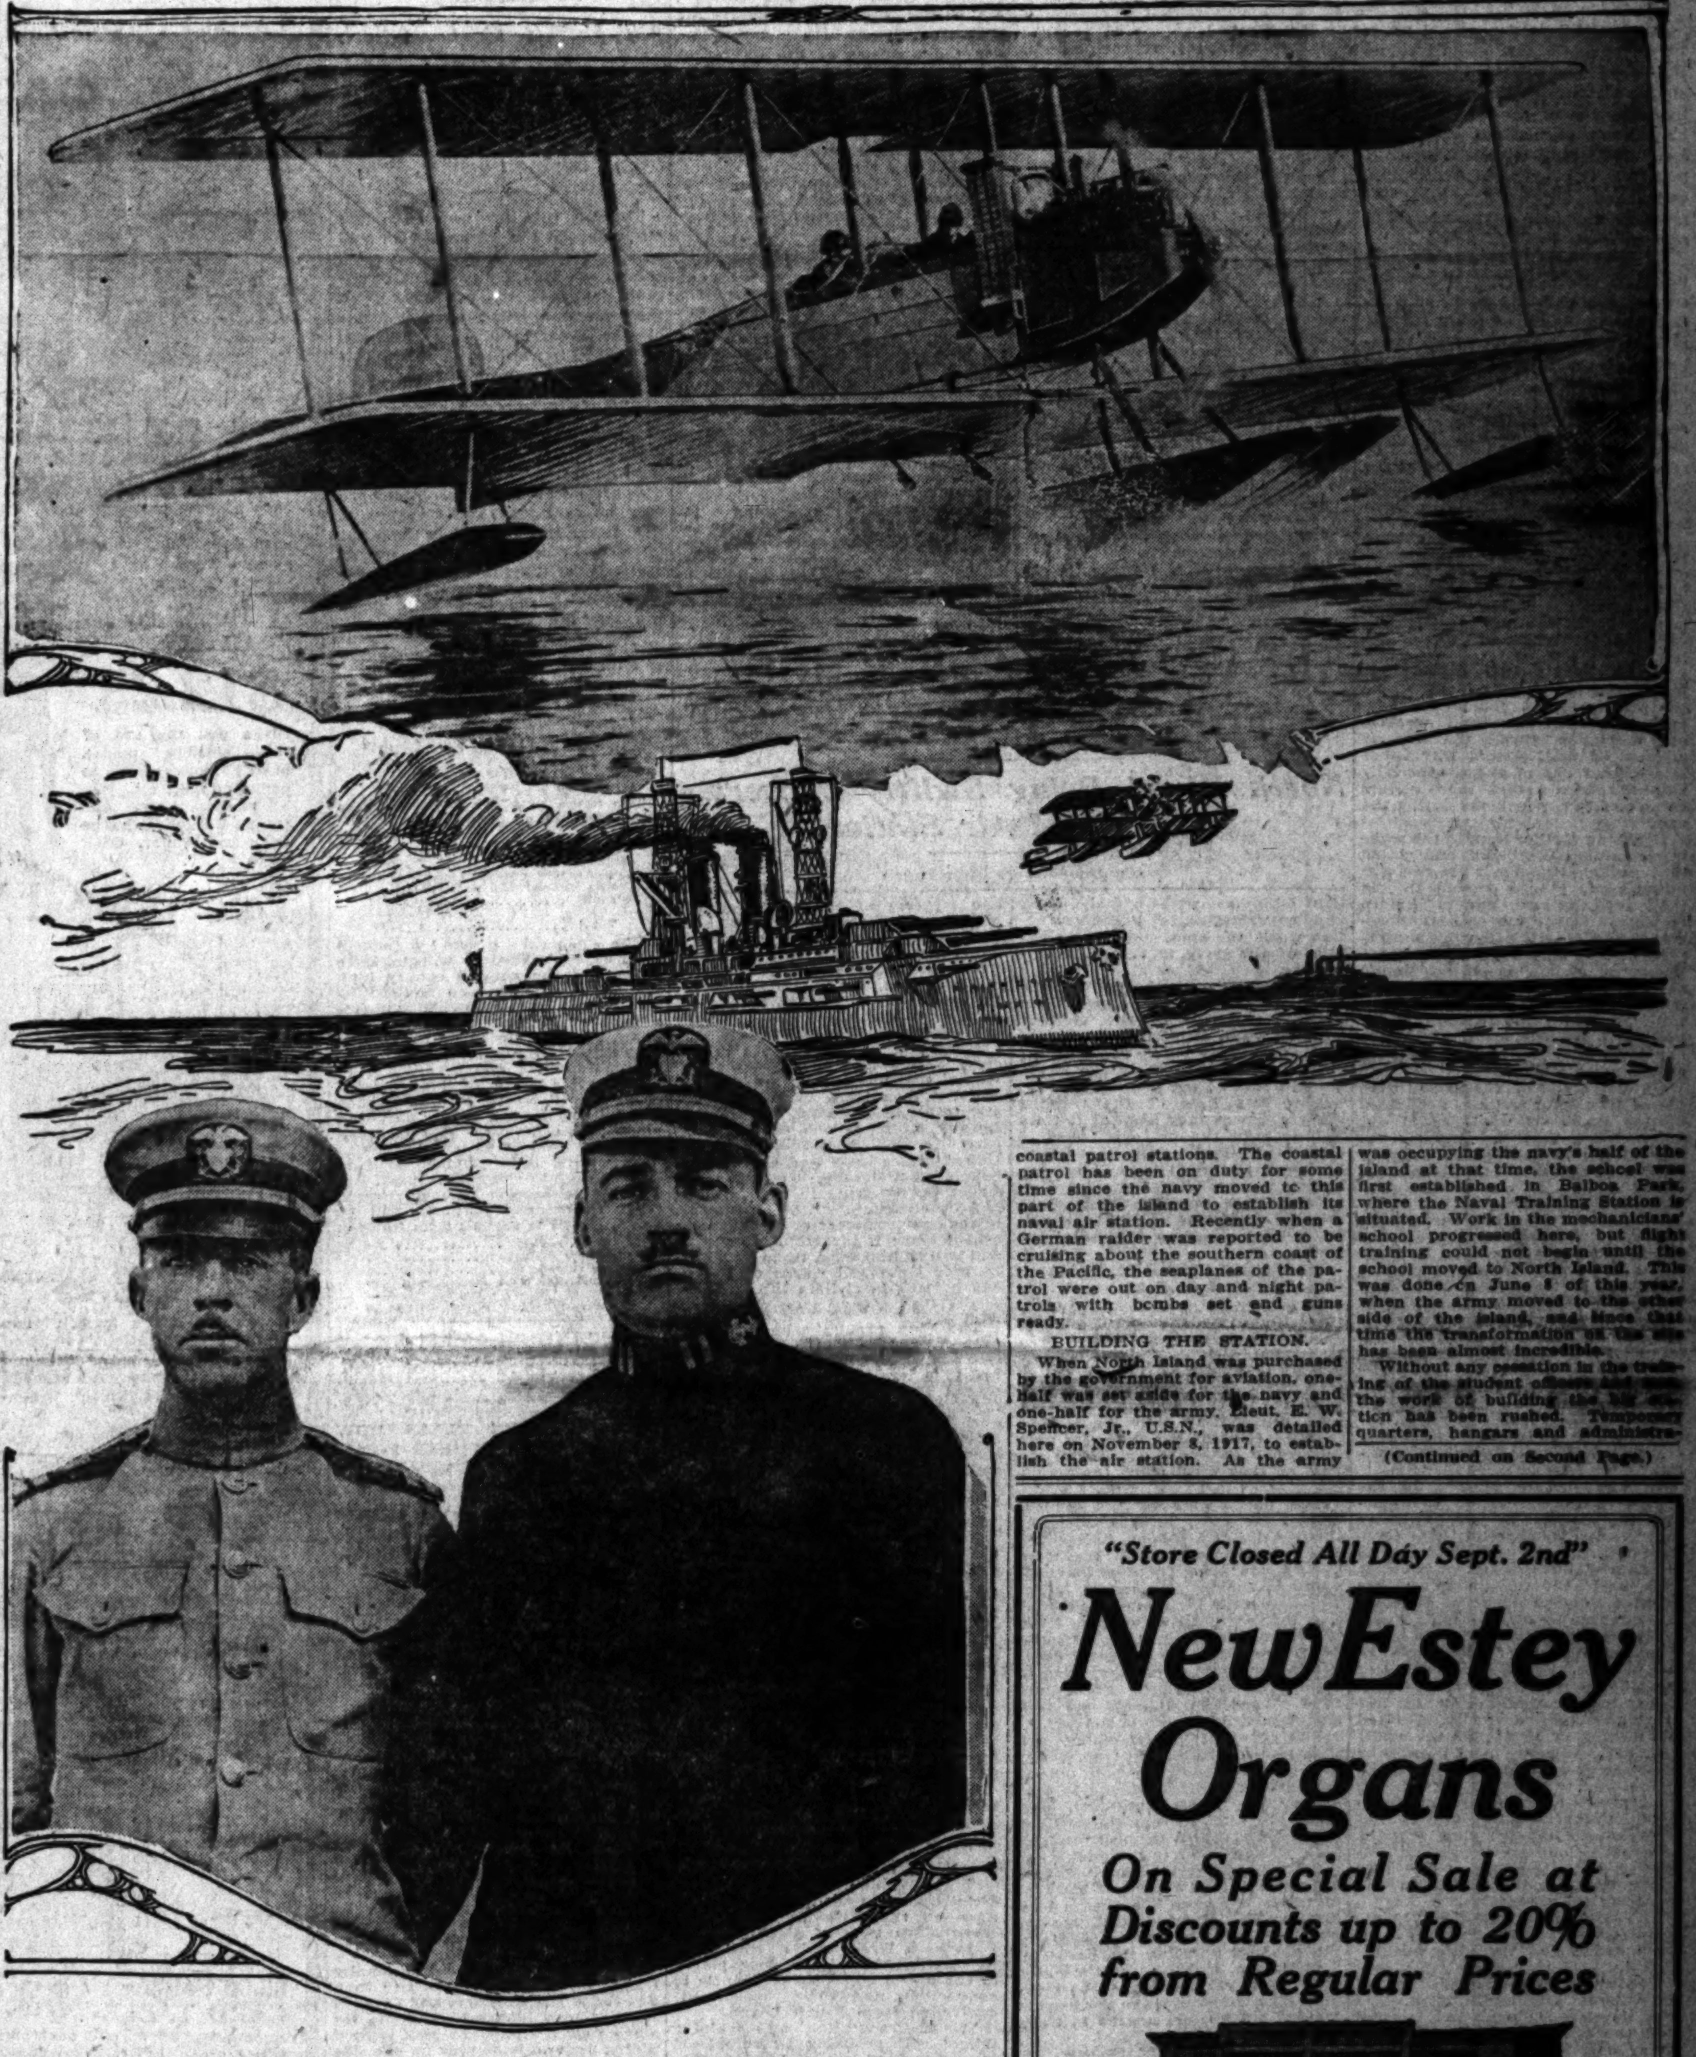
Famous Army Flying School Converted Into Great Naval Aero Station.



Of the San Diego Naval Aviation Training Station.

Enemies of the Hun.

MAKING AIR-AND-SEA FIGHTERS NORTH ISLAND'S NEW INDUSTRY.

Pacific Coast's Only Naval Aerial Station Planned to be One of the Nation's Greatest—Over Three Million Dollars Being Expended by Government.

BY MARY S. GULLIVER.

IF SOME of the American army aviators now bringing down Hun machines on the French front could fly over and take a look at their former training school on North Island, where they practiced before the war, they would scarcely believe their eyes. For on the site of the old army school a great naval air station is being built, while at the same time hundreds of mechanicians and naval aviators are being turned out under the stiffest training system imaginable.

Reaching high into the air like a city skyscraper is a great iron structure which will house a huge dirigible for coast patrol; in the hangars now are seaplanes instead of airplanes; hundreds of workmen are erecting other hangars and quarters, and officers and men in the olive green of the Naval Aviation Corps or the blue or white of the navy replace the officers and men in the khaki of the army.

This naval air station at North Island, the only one on the Pacific Coast, is a most interesting place. But not many civilians are destined to see it at present, for visitors interfere with the training and construction work. Besides, they may be German spies; at any rate they are treated in that light while on the island. As for women, they are quite taboo, though, of course, the gallant naval officers do not speak so ungallantly. They merely make irrevocable regulations about passes and about women holding civilian positions there. No girl stenographers or telephone operators are permitted to work in the construction camp on the half of the island devoted to the navy, even though some of them have managed to wriggle into service on the army half. A woman might have so many plans or sticks of dynamite hidden under her skirts!

MANY PRECAUTIONS.

A great board fence has been erected about the plot where the quartermasters' school and other buildings are going up, to fence off the civilian workmen from the temporary school buildings and training grounds. On the day of this visit to the navay station, one lone civilian was seen who had secured a pass, but he was carefully escorted by two six-footer marines armed with rifles. These precautions are all necessary, not only to facilitate with all speed the work of building the station, but for the sake of safety.

There has been $2,500,000 appropriated for buildings for the air station and a large sum for seaplanes and training. The station has a threefold purpose. There is a training school for naval aviators, a training school for mechanicians and a coastal patrol station. There are squadrons of seaplanes for training and for coastal patrol. In the coastal patrol are dirigibles and flying boats.

Hundreds of mechanicians and aviators have been turned out since the beginning of the school, and are now in service overseas or in harbor coastal patrol stations. The coastal patrol has been on duty for some time since the navy moved to this part of the island to establish its naval air station. Recently when a German raider was reported to be cruising about the southern coast of the Pacific, the seaplanes of the patrol were out on day and night patrols with bombs set and guns ready.

BUILDING THE STATION.

When North Island was purchased by the government for aviation, one-half was set aside for the navy and one-half for the army. Lieut. E. W. Spencer, Jr., U.S.N., was detailed here on November 8, 1917, to establish the air station. As the army was occupying the navy's half of the island at that time, the school was first established in Balboa Park, where the Naval Training Station is situated. Work in the mechanicians' school progressed here, but flight training could not begin until the school moved to North Island. This was done on June 8 of this year, when the army moved to the other side of the island, and since that time the transformation on the site has been almost incredible.

Without any cessation in the training of the student officers and men the work of building the big station has been rushed. Temporary quarters, hangars and administra-

STAND STAUNCHLY BY OPEN-SHOP PRINCIPLE.

Seventeen of the Largest Motion-Picture Producers Join in Statement.

SUBJOINED is the official statement adopted Friday by representatives of seventeen leading motion-picture producers regarding the demands of the striking stage hands, who walked out a few days ago. Without exception they stand fast for the open-shop principle, which has prevailed here since the industry was first established. The statement reads:

In an effort to learn the situation that has arisen in the motion-picture studios of Los Angeles as a result of the action of the I.A.T.S.E. in ordering a walkout of its members in certain of the film plants, because of failure to comply with the demands of the organization, the representatives of all the studios concerned held a meeting yesterday, at which Secretary Reynolds of the Producers' Association appeared and supplied information upon the existing conditions.

It was the consensus of opinion that the principle of open shop, upon which the picture studios have hitherto been conducted, should continue to be the basis of operations, in accordance with the proclamation of President Wilson of March 29, last.

It was found upon consulting this proclamation, which incorporated the principles and policies for governing relations between workers and employers during the war, as adopted by the National War Labor Board, that one of these, especially emphasized, was that there should be no strikes nor lockouts during the war.

Realizing further that, in the same proclamation, the board had stated that workers "shall not use coercive measures to induce persons to join their organizations, nor to induce employers to bargain or deal therewith," and that a policy by a company dealing only with its employees under "open-shop" conditions should not be deemed a grievance, the producers determined that they were fully justified in maintaining their position upon this point, which was one of three which formed the basis of the union's demands.

On the second point—that of time and a half for overtime, demanded by the union—it was pointed out quite clearly that the peculiar nature of the motion-picture industry renders an agreement to this demand unjustifiable. As one of the producers present expressed it:

"We cannot double up our expense and still live, and we believe that in war times we should not be compelled to employ additional men in order to avoid overtime. Although we are opposed, on general principles, to working our men overtime, nevertheless we think that labor should now be conserved, and that, as long as our men are satisfied, the unions should join with us to the end that we can release as many men as possible from an industry which, by courtesy of our government, has been classed as essential."

It was further elicited in the course of the discussion to ascertain the attitude of the producers that the studios generally have done their best to meet the conditions as presented to them from time to time, and that the producers are satisfied to meet expected increases in living cost by reasonable advances in wages.

In the matter of the scale of wages, which was the third point of the labor organization's contentions, it was learned that the studios had previously granted the scale asked for mechanics of $6 for an eight-hour day. In many cases more than the scale demanded was being paid.

The final agreement reached by the assembled representatives was to the effect that:

The open-shop principle will be adhered to on the foundation expressed in the findings of the War Labor Board and embodied in the President's proclamation.

The time and a half for overtime is inconsistent with the nature of the industry and therefore irreconcilable.

The wage scale demanded is being voluntarily complied with.

It developed during the meeting that the present situation is a peculiar one, and is occasioned by a controversy between the I.A.T.S.E. and the United Brotherhood, both of which unions are claiming jurisdiction over the motion-picture industry, and the union men embraced in and affiliated with the United Brotherhood have continued to work at the studios, being entirely satisfied with the conditions. As every studio has been run as an open shop, this has created a complicated situation, which all of the interested parties are endeavoring to straighten out.

The meeting was representative of the industry and included the following:

Vitagraph Company, represented by Mr. Smith.

Fox Film Corporation, represented by Mr. Wurtzel.

GREAT SEAPLANE SCHOOL FOR THE PACIFIC COAST.

North Island Being Swiftly Converted into Naval Air Station.

tion buildings were quickly built, and notwithstanding the construction work, the spick-and-span neatness of the navy is evident everywhere.

This means work, hard work and long hours for officers and student aviators and men in the training schools, while civilian workmen are just as busy in other parts of the station in their construction work. Union hours do not prevail with the officers and men of the training schools, where they keep at it from 5 o'clock in the morning until 8 o'clock at night. It is the theory of Lieut. Spencer, the commander, that if a man is of the right stuff he will come through the rigorous training prescribed all right. If not, he is of no use to the naval air service.

SHOWING THEIR METTLE.

So the student officers have liberty only from 6 o'clock Saturday evening until Sunday noon. Just long enough to go to San Diego "for a movie Saturday and attend church Sunday morning," is the way one of the officers put it. "But that is recreation enough," he said, "for the men are getting here in a four months' course what it took a man four years at Annapolis, before the war, so they must show their mettle."

The porgramme of the student aviator for a day is something like this: Arise at 5 o'clock, flying until 6:30, calisthenics until 7, breakfast, flying again, or instruction, gunnery, seaplane construction, naval indoctrination until 11, dinner, schooling and drilling until 5, supper, study from 6 until 8, bed at 9. The students alternate with the early flying before breakfast, some beginning at 5 and some at 7 o'clock. From 4 until 5 o'clock the students and men are permitted to swim in the bay.

The personnel of the officers and students is of the highest type. Young men—for all are young, both officers and students—with splendid physiques, fine heads, intelligent, alert faces are seen. From the dashing commander, Lieut. Spencer, and his aide, Ensign Reed, to the newest enlisted man studying his motors, they are good to look at and of the type of which the navy has always been proud. The rigorous drilling, the hours of study of difficult subjects, the physical exercise, the naval indoctrination, which is the time-honored naval etiquette, and the strict discipline, all go to make the fearless air and sea fighters needed by Uncle Sam.

THE QUALIFICATIONS.

When a naval aviator completes his course he must know besides his naval training, gunnery, radio work, seaplane erection and construction and seaplane motors as well as expert flying. If, after ten hours of instruction flying he cannot fly alone, he is dropped or transferred to some other branch. The student officer must first attend a ground school of the naval air service for ten weeks and then the elementary school similar to that of San Diego for three months. He must have a college education or its equivalent to qualify and must be 21 years of age.

In the mechanician's school, where enlisted men qualify for machinist mates, quartermaster and carpenter's mates, the machinist mates must learn thoroughly the supervision, assembly, maintenance and complete repair of various makes of seaplane engines, must be skilled internal combustion experts, must be able from drawings to manufacture or repair parts, must be skilled machinists, and electricians. The quartermaster's department requires a knowledge of the cutting, sewing and treating of the cloth for the wings of the plane, and all that goes to make up this part of the plane's structure. The carepnter's mates duties include the assembly, maintenance and repair of fuselage, pontoons, struts, propellers and so forth. So that men of many trades are needed in this section.

Motors of every type are in the class rooms and machine shops where the machinists are trained and the men learn to manufacture and to repair any part. The famous Liberty motor is one of the types carefully studied. Graduates of the United States Navy and Gas Engine School at Columbia University instruct the students in engine parts and construction. The instruction in the quartermaster or mechanician school alone is invaluable to a man and will fit him for a trade by which he may command wages of $30 or $40 a week in civilian life.

ONE OF THE LARGEST.

The only ground school for the naval aviators has been in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology where the course covers ten weeks. This month a ground school for the students on this Coast was opened in Seattle, in the University of Washington. The elementary schools are at San Diego and other stations. There are three classes of aviators, scout, flyers, bombers and reconnaissance flyers.

There are many coastal patrol stations in this country located on the Gulf and on the Atlantic and Pacific Coast.

This station when completed will be one of the largest. The buildings all of which are to be of mission style in concrete include a commandant's house of fourteen rooms, and the quarters of other officers built around a Spanish patio. Then come the student officers' quarters, recreation centers, storehouses, a a hospital, quartermasters' school, administration buildings, quarters for enlisted men and the great hangars.

The dirigible hangars are immence steel structures covered largely with glass. A large gas plant is to be installed for the dirigibles which will alone cost about $750,000. Here hydrogen will be manufactured for the dirigibles. An electrically operated door on the dirigible hangar has seventy-five tons of steel. There is to be a large radio station by which the dirisibles and seaplanes of the patrol will keep constantly in connection, and their movements controlled from North Island.

The entire station and training school will probably be completed in a year from now. The quartermater's buildings, administration building and officers' quarters will be done about the first of the year. The temporary buildings are now excellently equipped. The galley, sleeping quarters and offices are models of neatness. The galley is especially important as the navy believes that to make good aviators and sea fighters, good, nourishing food must be provided. The meals served are superior to those of most restaurants or hotels.

The staff officers are: Lieut. Earl W. Spencer, Jr., U.S.N., commanding officer; Lieut. John E. Lewis, U.S.N., executive officer; Ensign Jacob Reed, administrative aide to commanding officer; Assistant Surgeon Tema L. Eyerly, medical officer; Assistant Paymaster Homer E. Malaby, supply officer; Ensign Charles D. Ingersoll, station adjutant; Lieut. Frank Simpson, Jr., officer in charge of flight school; Ensign Charles R. Farmer, squadron commander, Fifteenth Squadron; Ensign Henry J. French, officer in charge of mechianics' school; Assistant Civil Engineer Lewis N. Moeller, office of public works officer.

THOUSANDS TO REGISTER HERE.

service law, waiving claims of dependency and agricultural or industrial exemption. It is extremely important, say the draft officials, that men between those ages know that they must register, regardless of race, color, religious convictions or nationality.

It is the belief of draft officials that not so many cases of failure to register will come up from the coming draft as from the first. The many cases of punishment that have followed attempts of slackers to evade service, they say, will have a salutary effect upon the few would-be evaders.

WORKERS ARE WANTED.

The big cry of the War Department is: "Send men to France," and all draft boards will rush duplicates of all cards to the Adjutant-General as fast as possible. Because of this necessary haste, an appeal has been made by the draft boards, for volunteer workers, typists, clerks and others, who can give part or all of their time on the day of registration.

The so-called friendly alien, who has not taken out his first naturalization papers, is not subject to call, unless he waives the right of exemption, but he must register. This, however, does not apply to the British and Canadians, in accordance with the terms of the British-American conference on the subject, nor does it apply to the Italians, according to the terms of a more recent convention. British and Italians here, still subjects of those countries, may now be drafted into the United States Army.

There are many other deferred classes, following out the lines of the previous drafts.

TO SHOW PICTURES BY CALIFORNIA ARTISTS.

INTERESTING EXHIBIT TO OPEN NEXT WEEK AT SIERRA MADRE CLUB.

An exhibition of pictures by California artists will open at the Sierra Madre Club on the 12th inst. Forty-six artists will have canvases at this exhibition, which is given under the auspices of the California Art Club. Rodney S. Hurd of the Sierra Madre Club has been mainly instrumental in securing the collections of paintings for this exhibit, and the club is working to keep alive the spirit of art during the streasful war times.

Discussing the situation and the forthcoming exhibition one of the prominent local artists said yesterday:

"We must keep the constructive spirit of art alive through these trying times. The government has recognized art as a necessary force in putting forward its aims—through posters, medals and in every pictorial expression which carries the message forcibly to the eye as well as the mind of the people.

"The same idea should appeal to the business man. The beauty of California is best depicted by our own painters, who know her every mood, and their paintings are a better advertisement even to the real estate man than all the printed matter they can get out.

"This seems like combining business and art; but why not? If we can keep the spirit of art alive during the present crisis, we can look forward with hope to conditions after the war."

COUNTY TAXES WILL BE LESS.

Ten Per Cent. Under Last Year for General Purposes.

Will be Fifty Cents on Each Hundred Dollars.

Efforts of Supervisors Make Saving Possible.

The tax rate for general county purposes for the year 1918-19 will be 50 cents on each $100 of assessed valuation. This is 5 cents, or 10 per cent., less than the preceding year, the reduction being made possible by the supervision over financial matters by Supervisor Woodley. This supervision has been the means of putting the finances of the county upon a sound basis and in the best of condition and giving relief to the taxpayers by a material reduction in the rate for county purposes.

Appreciating that the burdens are very heavy upon the taxpayers at this time, the Supervisor has put forth every effort in his work as chairman of the Finance Committee to eliminate all expenditures not necessary to the immediate needs and best interests of the county.

This tax rate of 50 cents for general county purposes is composed as follows:

General fund	$ .235
Salary fund	.212
Exploitation fund	.002
Highway fund	.02
Los Angeles county highway interest and sinking fund	.03
Total rate for general county purposes	.50

The same rate for last year was .5496, divided as follows:

General fund	$ .29273
Salary fund	.1944
Highway fund	.02
Los Angeles county highway interest and sinking fund	.03247
Total	$ .5496

The general county school rate, which is fixed by statute, is 16 cents, and the general county high school rate, which also is fixed by statute, will be 14 cents. This makes a total of 30 cents for school purposes, which is levied on all taxable property in the county, excluding railroads, banks, etc.

The rate inside of incorporated cities will, therefore, be the 50 cents, which is for general county purposes, plus the 30 cents for school purposes, making a total of 80 cents inside of incorporated cities as compared to 85 cents for the preceding year.

The rate outside of incorporated cities for county purposes will be $1.20, which is made up as follows:

General county	$ .50
Common school	.16
High school	.14
Supervisoral road district tax	.40

HUNT FOR SLAYER OF THREE IS DESCRIBED.

GAME WARDEN TELLS HOW INDIAN WAS TRAILED FOR DAYS IN CANYON.

S. P. Allen, game warden of Kern county, who participated in the posse's hunt for, and final capture of Frank Elariro, murderer, was in Los Angeles yesterday, and gave further details of the man-hunt and its outcome last Thursday. The young Indian, who is generally known as "Sand Canyon," is now in the County Jail at Bakersfield. He must answer to the charge of shooting and killing of two Indian girls, Ysbell and Alfedo Yuca, and Francisco Lava, who undertook, it is said, to protect the sisters.

The killing occurred early last week and from that time until Thursday afternoon, a Sheriff's posse watched the canyons and searched the trails. A moving-picture concern was operating on the Tejon Rancho, and it also was pressed into service, covering one side of Tejon Canyon.

The young Indian was finally trailed up Toluca Canyon, and then he evaded the searchers and doubled back. These tactics he kept up for some time. Finally he was located hiding under a huge rock on one side of Tejon Canyon, and when the party closed in toward him, he fired a shot at Kale Logan at close distance, missing him by only a few feet, and then another at Deputy Sheriff Davis. A posse of eleven men converged on the Indian behind the rock, and about a half dozen shots were fired in all, when "Sand Canyon" crept out from his shelter and slid down the canyon's bank. He was closely followed by the searching party, and made his way to the Indian chief's house, where he gave himself up and was turned over to the county officers.

CITY FACES SUIT.

Must Defend Action for Damages Brought by Man Injured at Exposition Park.

The city must defend the suit of L. B. Daniels for personal injuries and show why it was not negligent in failing to prevent automobiles crossing the race track at Exposition Park at the time Mr. Daniels was exercising a race horse. The result of this alleged negligence was a collision in which Mr. Daniels was injured. He saks $10,115 damages.

The suit came before Judge Shenk on the demurrer of the city, which held that the complaint did not state a cause of action. Judge Shenk yesterday overruled the demurrer, and the city will now file its answer.

It appears that when it was discovered that automobiles were crossing the track through an opening, the city was notified and the Park Commissioners closed the opening with a rope. An employee let the rope down, and when Mr. Daniels drove "The Proof," owned by M. C. Keefer, on the track to exercise it, he reached the opening as an automobile passed through.

The city charged a fee to those using the track; it also maintained racing stables and the racing track. Mr. Keefer rented one of the stables.

NEW MEMBERS RALLY TO CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

WITH the receipt of 5124 Glory Pledges, the Chamber of Commerce war drive closed last night. Although the official record for the week is closed, hundreds of additional memberships are expected to come in within the next few days, as hundreds of possible members could not be reached in the time allotted to the workers.

Gratification over the result of the drive was expressed generally last night by leading members of the chamber and officers of the organization. President Oscar C. Mueller said that he was highly gratified over the showing because it demonstrated conclusively that the citizens generally approve of the chamber's work and are willing to share its responsibility.

The big drive was in commemoration of the thirtieth anniversary of the chamber and was under the direction of a "Till Berlin Falls" Committee, consisting of nearly 200 members. As chairman of this committee, Sylvester L. Weaver acted as director-general of the drive and had lieutenants in William Henry, president of the Sales Managers' Association, and Chester Thompson.

Approximately 2000 new names were added to the chamber list, but in the drive it was necessary to obtain the re-enrollment of the old members, as the dues of the organization were raised from $12 to $25 a year.

"I feel that Los Angeles now understands better the ideas of the chamber and its important work in winning the war," said Mr. Weaver lastnight. "We are now equipped to do the big work that is demanded of us and to keep our community going, so that the men now in the trenches will have a live, bustling city to return to after Prussianism is crushed. I can't find words to express my appreciation of the invaluable aid given our committee by the members of fifteen different organizations represented by volunteer teams. They went at the job as though Gen. Foch himself had ordered them to go over the top."

Mr. Weaver will rest a few days before returning to his desk at the chamber to begin work on the plans of trade extension and industrial expansion that are a part of the chamber programme. The chamber will be closed all day tomorrow.

EXHIBIT TELLS OF CZECHO-SLOVAKS.

Attention is called by the Los Angeles Public Library to the remarkable exhibit on the eighth floor of the arts and crafts of the Czecho-Slovak people, whose important contributions to civilization, scholarship and freedom are little known. They are our latest allies and three Czecho-Slovak armies are now fighting side by side with the Allies in France, Italy and Russia.

Those who see the wonderful examples of their skill in art, music, metal work, glass, woven and embroidered garments and other articles typical of the artistic ability of these hitherto oppressed peoples, will realize how necessary it is to afford them every encouragement in the struggle they have for centuries carried on against the Austrian dominance, it is stated.

Nerve Center.

EEDING MILLION MEN AT FRONT BIG WAR JOB.

ntral Storage Depot of American Forces in France is a Marvel of Efficient Organization.

BY HARRY A. WILLIAMS,
Staff Correspondent of The Times.

OMEWHERE IN FRANCE, Aug. 16.—"This is —— sector speaking. Can you give us 75,000 ra- by tomorrow morning?"

ite a nifty little order for food mething like providing a square for the entire population of Diego or Sacramento, with a hungry tourists thrown in for measure.

t when the request filtered in the wire the lieutenant at the ving end showed no more ion than a grocery clerk tak- he order of one of his regular mers. He is accustomed to food mentioned in large dimen-ye, aye, sir," he replied, and of two hours assorted grub ,000 men was on the way to front.

ring the next hour an order in for 5000 shovels, the same ber of picks, four light locomo- and rails and ties for ten miles arrow-gauge railroad. These supplemented with one for 00 rounds of small arms am- tion. Each request came from ferent sector, and in each case articles or material ordered on flat cars as fast as a thou- hands could place them there on the way to the front.

ITS DAILY FUNCTION.

other words, the general in- ediate storage depot of the rican force—one of the gang- or nerve centers in the net- of our line of communica- —was merely performing one daily functions. Feeding and lying 1,000,000 men with the ities of army life is no small , and one soon gets accus- d to speaking in fat figures.

e layman's popular conception depot is a dinky little building to a railroad track, with well- gravel walks and a border of niums surrounding it, or per- ce a building of considerable ensions and hustle in a large supply depot is a different sort thing, and it is difficult ment- to visualize one unless you have seen it. If possible you might try to picture miles of warehouses, hundreds of miles of railroad switches and sidings, scores of locomotives and enough freight cars to start a new transcontinental system. In this particular storage depot there are more storehouses than you could count on your toes if you had as many feet as a centipede, and they are still building. As at this season of the year in France they have only about eighteen hours of daylight, they put on a night shift for the other six. In that way they keep the supply depot growing and keeping pace with the ever-increasing demands being made on it by the constantly enlarging expeditionary force.

WORKING SOLDIERS.

Just now there are something like 15,000 soldiers engaged in one kind or another of construction work here. When the job is completed these will all be released for service on the firing line. Then there are several thousand Chinese. These were imported by France from time to time, who in turn allowed the Americans to employ their able, although somewhat unskilled, services.

Today a catastrophe befell one of these Chinese. He tried to board a moving train in the yards and was cut in two. For every Chinese killed while engaged in work to which he has been assigned the French must pay the government of China 17 francs. That is in the contract. However, in this case the United States must foot the bill, as Lung Lee, that being the name of the decedent, was working for Uncle Sam at the time. This places a $3 nick in the last Liberty Loan. It is such unexpected expenses as these that make it difficult to estimate the high cost of war.

Strictly speaking, this depot is six and two-thirds miles long and one and a fourth miles wide. In appearance it resembles a vast manufacturing district, with its huge metal buildings and criss-crossing railroad tracks.

WONDER AT DETAIL.

The erection of these buildings and the grading and laying of the tracks was an immense undertaking, which is not yet entirely completed. The colonel in charge of this is a wonder at organization and detail. I passed the better part of a day riding about with him in pursuance of his usual duties. Of the countless squads employed over this vast area he seemed to know exactly how many men should be at work at each point, allowing for the possible 10 per cent. of sick cases and others incapacitated; and if the full quota was not on the job somebody heard about it.

One thing that has impressed me all along the line is the aggressive, business-like attitude of army officers in executive positions, such as this. There is none of the kid glove stuff. They know what is to be done if this war is to be won, and they see personally that it is done. And as far as I have seen there is no "passing the buck."

As showing how provident Uncle Sam has grown to be, it need only be mentioned that within the confines of this depot site, where a building has not yet been erected, the ground is given over to growing grain or garden truck, the same being tended by our own soldiers or civilians, to whom the land is alloted.

MANY BUILDINGS.

In addition to the immense warehouses, some of which are 240x500 feet, there are 200 barrack buildings, four large Y.M.C.A. huts, with a fifth under construction, and the possibility that a K. C. building may be erected.

In the cold storage plant can be refrigerated 5200 tons of meat, while it can also produce 500 tons of ice per day.

Thirty big American locomotives are in operation on the switches and sidings of this depot, and these locomotives "buck" something like an average of 1000 freight cars a day.

At present the bakery turns out 150,000 pounds of bread a day, and this will eventually be increased to 1,000,000 pounds.

There is artesian water in this section, and the army is sinking its own wells, by means of which it will have an abundant supply of good water.

STYLES OF SHOVELS.

Entering one of the warehouses one would think that Uncle Sam regarded shovels as souvenirs, and that he was engaged in collecting all the shovels in the world. There is one stack of them something like 300 feet square and sixty-five feet high. They are of all shapes, sizes and styles—shovels for digging straight up or straight down, shovels for tunneling and shovels for digging around curves. There are enough shovels in that one pile for the American Expeditionary Force to dig its way straight to Berlin.

This depot on short notice can supply anything from a doughnut to a horse collar, from the nerve-like wire of a radio to a road-grading machine. With the exception of heavy ordnance it can supply every need of the army. And it is only one of several supply centers.

MUST NOT PLAY GERMAN SONGS.

Musicians' Protective Association will Fine Members Who Do.

German music has been banned by the Los Angeles Musicians' Protective Association, Local No. 47, A. F. of M. In a resolution passed by the body, leaders, contractors, managers and members of the order have been advised that playing of German music will result in fines of $5 for the first offense, $10 for the second and $50 for the third. The playing of any music of the Central Powers is forbidden, as "we are in the midst of a bitter war against Germany and nothing German should be fostered in this country."

Compositions of Franz Wagner, Franz Lehar, Paul Lincke, Johann Strauss, Oscar Strauss, Richard Strauss and Edward Strauss and the following marches are prohibited: "Under the Double Eagle," "Kaiser Frederick," "Hoch Hapsburg" and "Prince Carl."

Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" may be played as a wedding march, as he was a Polish Jew. Compositions that have a German title, a subtitle printed in German or that refer to the Central Powers are prohibited. Requests to play of these will be refused.

UAKERS WILL ENLARGE RUSSIAN RELIEF WORK.

lifornia Members of Friends Society Aid by Contributions.

HE announcement that the United States, with the approval of the Allies and in co- tion particularly with Japan, is t to render active assistance to Russian people against Germany s that a vast undertaking of of the civil population will to be organized. In this con- n it is stated that the Society riends, or Quakers as they are known, has been conducting work on a systematic scale in for the last two years and a working in close touch with Red Cross Society, and is plan- to increase the scope of this to meet the new demands now to arise.

e first annual report of the work e Friends Church of California, bmitted at the yearly meeting recently at Whittier, showed the rial assistance that had been to relief work in France and by the Quakers of this State. U. Tomlinson of Whittier, of the California yearly meet- f the Friends Church, is chair- f the yearly meeting Commit- n Reconstruction Work, and his t showed that more than $5000 h had been sent to the Central ttee at Philadelphia, no fewer twenty-three Quaker communi- n California having contrib-

e Quakers have rendered nota- elief work in wars before the great struggle. After the o-Prussian War of 1870, the sh Quakers sent assistance to e, and almost at once after the reaking of war in 1914 they pre- to renew the service which had performed forty-four years , and sent to France a large f medical and social workers. workers were given a part of rritory between Paris and Ver- being the territory which had d most before and after the battle of the Marne at the be- ng of September, 1914. e work began in November of year, when a large maternity tal was established at Chalons e Marne, and from this center has sprung a large number of similarly-organized institutions for the cure and prevention of tuberculosis, the care of children who have lost their parents, and for surgical work of the most urgent character among the civilian population.

At that time, the Quakers in America felt that, though they had been forwarding funds to the English work, it was now incumbent upon them to take an active part in it themselves. About 250 Americans, chiefly men, but with a number of skilled women as social and medical workers, are at present in France engaged upon the relief of the civil population and of the refugees.

WITH THE RED CROSS.

The American workers, though connected in their work with the English Quakers, nevertheless are intimately associated with the American Red Cross, which has made generous contributions to the work, which it found well established upon its arrival on the field.

About two years and a half ago, a small unit of English Quakers proceeded through great hardships to the province of Samara, where they tackled the dreadful conditions among the refugees from Western Russia.

The London Times correspondent estimates that there are scattered through the Russian empire about 13,000,000 people who fled from the western provinces of Russia at the time of the great German advance. In the province of Samara, the district of Buzuluk was selected as the particular field of the Quaker work. This district has an area about the size of Belgium. Of its present population of 100,000, more than 20,000 are refugees, stationed there, 1500 miles from their devastated homes.

There are about 20,000 Quakers in the British Isles and about 100,000 in the United States. A very large amount of money for such a small denomination has been subscribed to this work, and there are about 500 workers now engaged in France, Russia, Holland and at certain ports in the Mediterranean, where similar work is being undertaken for refugees from the Balkan territory.

QUAKERS IN CALIFORNIA.

In California, almost every monthly meeting or local meeting of the Friends has its special committee on this relief work, with sewing and knitting clubs. Mrs. Harry A. Williams of Whittier, chairman of these clubs for the yearly meeting, reported thousands of garments, sweaters, caps, etc., forwarded to Philadelphia, where they are placed in the hands of the Red Cross, transported by the Red Cross to France and redistributed there.

The entire activities of the American and British Friends reconstruction work are under the immediate direction and control of the Red Cross. The interests of California Friends center largely around Whittier College, and it is therefore in the Whittier community that these reconstruction activities are most marked. Here the women of the church organized early for their sewing and knitting. From here also went several of the college young men to assist in French relief work.

In devastated France, Whittier College youths, together with Friends from other parts of America, are aiding in planting and harvesting crops, running saw mills, building temporary houses and otherwise rehabilitating where the work of the Hun has made such aid necessary.

BOND IS REDUCED.

Alleged Violator of Mann Act May be Freed Unless More Evidence is Adduced.

United States Commissioner Long yesterday reduced the bond of Christian Schaffer, charged with violation of the Mann Act, in having brought Miss Eddy Gillow from Des Moines, Iowa, to Los Angeles, to $500. Without deciding whether Schaffer should be held to the Federal grand jury on the charge, the Commissioner turned the girl over to the Juvenile Court authorities.

The court said that on account of the failure of Miss Gillow to answer certain questions, it might not be proper to hold Schaffer under the evidence so far offered. Miss Gillow will be sent back to her home, if the proper arrangements can be made. The government will offer further testimony.

Shipping Board Chairman Will Attend Convention of Pacific Port Authorities.

Edward N. Hurley, chairman of the United States Shipping Board, is scheduled to attend the convention of the Pacific Coast Association of Port Authorities, which will be held here on October 8 to 10, inclusive. Word to that effect reached Traffic Manager Matson of the Harbor Commission yesterday.

Mr. Matson has been informed that E. F. Carry, chairman of port and harbor facilities for the United States Shipping Board, will not be able to attend. Mr. Matson is secretary of the Association of Port Authorities.

A New "White Hope" Weighing In.

They'll Help.

SAVING THE BABIES AS WAR-WINNING MEASURE.

Two Thousand Los Angeles Children are Given Government Tests.

BY DR. J. L. POMEROY, County Health Officer.

NEARLY 2000 children of the rural districts and cities of Los Angeles county have to date undergone the national weighing and measuring tests, which were held under the auspices of the Children's Year Committee of the County Council of Defense.

The public response was unusually gratifying, each mother having seemed to recognize her patriotic duty in doing everything possible for her family. The parents are eager for more extensive work and demand the establishment of permanent centers throughout the county.

Of some 500 Japanese children examined the test showed them healthy in appearance, but not up to the standard of American weights. It is noteworthy that hardly half of the families have anything like an adequate supply of fresh milk, and few Japanese own cows even though living in the country. And there is no question, however, but that the time has come seriously to consider what shall be done to protect the milk supply of our own children.

FREE CLINICS NEEDED.

It is noteworthy that in England in all of the public schools hot lunches are served free, the idea being to offset the problem of lack of nutrition. This is a practical suggestion for our various Parent-Teacher Associations to take up.

Our American babies are far in advance of any other race. Nevertheless the occurrence of defective teeth is a sad commentary on the intelligence of the authorities. In the rural districts prompt dental attention is difficult to obtain, and there are no free clinics or dispensaries in small country towns such as the successful parent-teacher clinic here.

There is no question that the great saving of children to be made this year is a question of nutrition and scientific feeding, and the crying demand among mothers at this time is for the establishment of permanent centers throughout the county where educational work in relation to nutrition can at once be made available. The campaign is being waged in the name of the government, and is no private drive carried on by a particular organization.

No baby can be saved until every baby is made safe. In France the slogan is "No baby will be forgotten and no mother ignored." The work here, as there, is purely national.

Weighing and measuring is in no way a substitute for medical care, and it is not planned that actually sick children shall be cared for at these weighing stations. The great problem now is to prevent, rather than to treat illness.

The present success of the county campaign is due largely to the work of Dr. Margaret Farr and the nurses of the County Health Department. Since the beginning of the campaign in July, Dr. Farr and her assistants have examined nearly 2000 children and interviewed nearly 3000 persons on their work. The essential work in arranging the local details of getting the babies into the conferences as carried out by the local representatives of the Councils of Defense through the Women's Committees has been remarkable.

Some of the most unusual response to the movement has been from the Japanese residents of the county, of whom there are estimated to be more than 30,000. Through the Japanese Association of this city and the assistance of Dr. James Hara, a Japanese graduate of a Southern California medical college, about twelve conferences have been held in the rural districts at which over 500 Japanese children with their parents were in attendance. Undoubtedly these little ones with proper Americanization efforts will quickly absorb our national spirit, and they deserve our best efforts. Unfortunately the parents speak but little English and know but little about American foods.

The infant mortality rate among the Japanese is far higher than among the American babies, and it is along this line that active work will have to be done, for the accomplishment of which public co-operation is necessary. The Japanese Association has promised financial support for a Japanese nurse, and Dr. Hara has volunteered a part of his time to help his people.

EXTENSIVE WORK.

More than twenty points throughout the county have been visited by members of the committee and their workers, including Pasadena, Sherman, Willowbrook, San Dimas, Watts, Lyndale, White's Point, Compton, Gardena, El Monte, Monterey Park, Pomona, Monrovia, Glendora, Whittier, Norwalk, Redondo, Hermosa, El Segundo and Manhattan. Plans are under way for conferences at numerous other places and it is expected that before the end of the year the entire county will be covered.

The work of the larger cities has been separately organized under the various Councils of Defense, and the Board of Supervisors of Los Angeles county in response to the great movement have made an appropriation to further the work.

"Round-up Week."

BIG CAMPAIGN PLANNED FOR WAR SAVINGS WORK.

"ROUND-UP week," which the War Savings societies of Southern California have scheduled for the week beginning tomorrow, and concluding September 9, will be marked in Los Angeles city and county with a big programme of patriotic activities under the direction of Motley H. Flint, chairman for the National War Savings Committee.

The idea of round-up week is to effect a complete inventory of every phase of War Savings work to stimulate interest, organize additional War Savings societies, and to secure, so far as possible, the fulfillment of War Savings pledges before the Liberty Loan campaign begins.

The general programme will be prefaced by a series of patriotic community gatherings to be held today throughout Southern California. In Los Angeles these meetings will take place in the various high schools, beginning simultaneously at 8 o'clock.

Patriotic speakers have been assigned to the high schools as follows: Normal Hill Center, Reynold E. Blight; Manual Arts, R. E. Chadwick; Polytechnic, A. W. Frye; Hollywood High, R. J. Shoemaker; Lincoln High, Frank Hammond; Jefferson High, Lieut. J. L. Carter, and Franklin High School, Fred Spring. At each of these high school buildings and at Normal Hill Center, there will be presented a concert programme, contributed by the best talent.

Tuesday has been designated for organization night, plans being to organize War Savings societies in every precinct in Los Angeles city and county, where none has yet been formed.

Motley H. Flint, in a general appeal to War Savings members and every patriotic citizen, has made the following urge:

"With the fourth Liberty Loan drive close at hand, it is desired that every possible effort be made by Los Angeles to clean up their War Savings pledges. It requires man power and money to win the war. Our boys are furnishing the man power. We here at home, must furnish the money."

PAINTER HERE.

Arthur Cahill, one of the prominent portrait painters of the State and a member of the Bohemian Club of San Francisco, arrived in the city yesterday and is domiciled at the Alexandria. Mr. Cahill has just returned from Coronado, where he went at the behest of the northern club to paint the portraits of officers of the "Grizzlies." While there he was commissioned by a number of families to portrait their sons before their departure for France.

BE SURE WEIGHT OF ICE IS RIGHT.

County Sealer Asks Help to Stop Short Deliveries by Drivers.

The campaign which C. M. Fuller, County Sealer of Weights and Measures, is making against short-weight ice deliveries has resulted in convictions in Belevedere and in the police courts here. The campaign has been on for about three weeks, and there have been seven convictions.

In order to check short-weight deliveries among drivers, Mr. Fuller asks the co-operation of housewives. He will act on their complaints.

INSTRUMENTS SOLD TO THE GOVERNMENT.

The engineering department of the city has arranged to sell twenty-six surveying instruments to the government for $2650. The government is sorely in need of surveying equipment, and in a communication to the City Council recently, it offered to buy all the instruments that could be spared.

City Engineer A. C. Hansen checked up his supply, and found that he could conduct the department with twenty-six fewer instruments than he has been using, so a fair price was placed upon them, and the Board of Public Works notified the government.

PASS THE BUTTER.
Lots of people who think they have dainty appetites are eating oleomargarine on their bread in happy ignorance. And if butter continues to advance they will stand for it when the awakening comes.

THE VILLAGE CUT-UP.
Uncle Sam wants fifty thousand doctors for the army—which is more than half of the visible supply. This ought to give some of the home folks a chance to save their appendixes—or is it appendices?

HARD ON JEFF.
Jeff McElvaine seems to have been made the goat for the forty fat commissions in the recent primaries. As a member of the Board of Equalization he was compelled to levy certain taxes, although he had nothing to do with fixing the tax rate. Enough electors blamed him for high taxes to defeat him.

REAL WOMEN NEEDED.
The nation is in a campaign to enlist 25,000 nurses, but the girl with a baby stare holding the hands of a handsome convalescent, while all right on a magazine cover, has no place in the hospitals of pain. She is probably an actress who would faint at the sight of pain and shun the seriously wounded as she would a pest. What is needed is women who have the strength, the will, the sympathy, the devotion, the utter forgetfulness of self that will not fail when the recovery and the very courage-to-live of the wounded soldiers depends upon them.

CHESTER ROWELL BREAKS IN.
Chester Rowell has issued a statement asserting that "It is only fair that the Democrats should have an opportunity of having a candidate of their party on the ballot in the November general election." This same Chester Rowell issued a statement in 1912 concerning the disfranchisement of the Republicans of the State in the Presidential election. Speaking of the usurpation of the Republican column by the Progressive electors he said:

"So long as the law permits this we should not be at all squeamish about it."

If Gov. Stephens were to submit Rowell's professed "staunch support" to an acid test he might discover something.

BULL-HEADED TACTICS.
California's vineyards are menaced by the squabble over the selection of party candidates for the office of Governor of California. In the primary campaign the liquor interests threw their solid support to Rolph in both parties. They are now becoming involved in the attempt to have the Supreme Court declare him the Democratic nominee, despite the inhibition of the State primary law. Such activity on the part of the liquor interests in favor of Rolph is pretty certain to solidify the Stephens vote in favor of the bone-dry initiative amendment on the November ballot. If the liquor interests would keep out of partisan politics the Rominger anti-saloon (but not anti-vineyard) bill would be pretty certain to carry.

THE VICIOUSLY VIRTUOUS.
At Grand Forks, B. C., a number of religious fanatics were sent to jail after having been convicted of entering barns, turning horses loose, stealing harness and setting fire to the buildings. Perhaps the asylum would be a more fitting place for them than jail. These men call themselves "sons of God" and declare they do not believe in working animals. Their case recalls the story of the strict vegetarian who was given a magnifying glass and told to look through it into some water he was about to drink. He did so and then, instead of refusing the water, he smashed the microscope and drank the water with gusto, swearing he had been tricked. "There's none so blind as he who will not see;" and, as a rule, any extravagant claim to a special virtue only indicates an effort to escape responsibility.

WEARING MOURNING.
It is interesting to note that the War Department is to prohibit mourning insignia on uniforms. The soldiers of the Allied countries are also being instructed to abandon the wearing of crepe. Even the civilians of England are not allowed to wear tokens of their bereavement. In connection with this subject it will be recalled that the mother of the first American killed in this war refused to wear a sign of mourning for him. "The trappings and the suits of woe" do not appeal to her, for she "has that within which passeth show," and, although she willingly gave her beloved son to America, her nature rebels at the idea of parading her grief for the purpose of exciting pity or of bringing sad thoughts to others who may be suffering similar heartaches. There is every argument against such a practice, and it is probable that there will come a time when society will abandon the custom in peace as well as in war.

THE LIST OF THE DEAD.

THROUGH the throbbing cables, under the heaving billows of the ocean, comes now day by day the list of the dead. It is the rosary of our sorrows; we wet its shining beads with our tears. The heartbreak that we dreaded is at last upon us.

It was the thing that we had hoped to put far off from us, although we knew that, sooner or later, it must come. We foresaw all too clearly this time when we would awake at morning to face dread tidings.

It was not that we cringed or failed to count the cost when we sent our sons forth from the happy pathways of peace to stalk upon the trails of death in the grim shadows of war.

Well we knew the price there was to pay. We knew that the altar would demand its sacrifice.

And now that time is come. Every day the names of the fallen are unrolled before us. And, as the days pass, more and more are the names becoming familiar.

Now and then, already, there are names that leave the list quavering in our hands. We look sadly at our neighbor's house where yesterday Death hung out its black plumes. We wonder across whose doorway the same black plumes will hang tomorrow. We pray God to give us the strength to bear it if that house shall be our own.

It is not that anyone, God knows, prays that his neighbor will be stricken to spare himself. It is only that each one hopes—as, indeed, he is permitted to hope—that it may be God's will to send back to him the son he gave out of his heart's sanctuary and the hearth fire of his home.

Very helpless do we feel, for we stand, as all who went before us in the countless ages have stood, face to face with the twin mysteries of life and death.

Why one should die before his time, and another live beyond it—this is the thing we cannot fathom and against which we make blind and bitter protest if the blow falls upon us and we have not God in our hearts to sustain us.

So, all we can say is peace be with the dead—the dear and beautiful dead who died that the world might be free. And to the aching hearts left behind we say also Pax Vobiscum, for they, too, have given the gift of gifts as immortal sacrifices on Freedom's altar.

II.

COMES now the Nation to read the list of its dead in high pride of possession and exaltation. Who are these who die under the starry flag for the freedom of the world? As we read that list we call from their field of azure every star on the flag, for the roll call is from sea to sea and from northern snows to the sun-swept portals of the south.

When in the dusk at close of day the bugles sound "Taps," heads are bowed low in the mansions of the rich and in the cottages of the poor alike, across the wide reaches of the land. They who were one in the Democracy of Life are one now also in the Democracy of Death.

Death has not spared one more than another for any human reason. The heir to millions and vast estate lies side by side with the washer-woman's son in those Flanders fields and on the Marne's red banks.

The lad who went out from the counting-house of the mart found marching with him the burden-bearer of the streets, when the colors called them both. And it well may have been that it was at the command of the humbler man that they met death together.

If favoritism was shown the one more than the other in life, certainly it is not shown them now in death. Equally glorified their souls stood at salute before the great white throne of God.

Motley they were when they marched away. Motley are they still on that shining list of the dead.

When, after the bloodshed, the suffering and the pain, we shall breathe again the air of peace, we shall see with what common touch death marks the white crosses above the graves in those far battle grounds.

Here shall be one who came out of the vast wind-swept plains of the west where he lived with sun and sky and the big mountains; yonder shall be the grave of him who loved the gentle gladness of a New England hamlet; in another place a spinner who left his loom; and in another a poet who closed his scroll of dreams. Here, one who builded with stone and iron; there, a poor mummer who will strut no more his little hour on life's mimic stage.

III.

AS WE read the list of our dead in these heart-breaking hours, let us not forget that long after we have followed on to meet them again, history will also read the list to unborn generations yet to come.

Nor have we to fear the voice in which history then will speak. There will be no other scroll in all Time's pages so bright with glory as this.

Each was a sovereign in his own right; each was a ruler in his own land.

When the cry came out of Macedonia, it was for them to say yea or nay. No king or khan sat throned above them to play them as pawns on the chessboard of fate. War could be decreed by their consent alone. If their voice was for peace, not even parliaments nor congresses could stand out against them.

They had never known anything but peace their whole lives long—these who are now on the list of the dead. They had never known the necessity for war; they had never acquired a lust for slaughter.

More than all that, it was imbued in them with their mothers' milk that they were never to take up arms except in defense of their own firesides and the integrity of their country.

Then came the call from France whose head was bowed and bloody—France who had befriended us in the far hour of our first need. The Hun was at her throat; his iron heel trampled her fields.

Came, too, the call from Britain, from Italy and the free peoples of the world in their agonies. The very soul of Freedom, everywhere, called to us.

It was America's trial hour. The great God of the Ages, sitting in His golden chair, looked down upon us and waited for our answer. All that we have ever been led up to that hour. All that we might hope to be depended then on what our lips would say and what our hands would do.

There was, thank God, no hesitation. There was no murmur. Like the eagle soaring from its aerie, America gathered her brood beneath her wings and spread her pinions on the winds of the sea.

There is no parallel to this in all history. Never before in all the records of the human race is it set down that a whole people took upon themselves a task that was at once so bloody and so great and, at the same time, so utterly unselfish.

For, history will not say of us that it was alone because the Lusitania was sunk and other brutal impudences committed against us by Germany that we went to war, serious as those outrages were.

No, it was in a higher resolve and for a far more sublime purpose that America unsheathed her sword.

Some brave spirits in France had once come to our help. At a later time brave spirits in Russia did the same. But, we have gone to war not only for France and for Russia, but for old friends and sometime foes alike.

It is for freedom, for the liberty of all men, for big and little peoples everywhere that they may have their places in the sun and live in peace and plenty, that America has gone to war.

IV.

AND it is for these things, and more, that they have died who are now on the list of our dead. Unspeakably tender in our hearts is the thought of them. There is no music in the world to voice the love we bore them. There is no magic of brush or pen to vision our memories of them as they fared forth in their strength and beauty to lie down with death.

Did Abraham more than this that we have done at God's command?

"And they came to the place which God had told him of; and Abraham built the altar there, and laid the wood in order, and bound Isaac his son, and laid him on the altar, upon the wood."

Wherefore, it was also written that in our seed "shall all the nations of the earth be blessed."

Well may they rejoice who have borne these sons, the living and the dead. And well may they be comforted whose sons shall not awake again on earth till the last trumpet blows.

For, it is not worth while for anyone to have lived at all, unless, by their lives they have made the world a better place than they found it. Thrice more blessed is the world today than it was before because of these lads whose names are on the list of the dead, and because of the mothers and fathers who bore them.

Grieve not for those who died. All is well with them. They bivouac with Peace. There are no burdens now for their shoulders. Their tasks are done.

"Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Hungry for Dove Meat.

THROW OFF THE YOKE!
For the first time since the regime of the forty fat commissions was inaugurated in California the candidate for Governor whom they indorsed has gone down to defeat. They deserted Gov. Stephens almost in a body and went over to Rolph. In the city of Sacramento, where they hold supreme control over State politics, Rolph defeated Stephens almost two to one. Senator Johnson joined his influence with that of the San Francisco plunderbund and Rolph was declared heir to the Johnson policies. He carried San Francisco by almost three to one; and for a few hours Tuesday night, when Rolph appeared to be in the lead for the Republican nomination, some of the purse-proud commissioners boasted openly of ditching Stephens and leaving Southern California out in the alley.

They have lost and they appear to be doomed to the fate of the loser in politics. Gov. Stephens owes them nothing. He now knows that they are his worst enemies; that their promises are no more to be trusted than those of their kindred beyond the Rhine. California taxpayers have paid $5,000,000 in tribute to them during the last three years. They have robbed the producers, harassed legitimate business and made the name of the government of our State a mockery on the lips of men. Like all predatory organizations success is the golden chain that binds them; they live upon the spoils of victory and to them defeat is deadly. The fates were against them in the last election and they are now compelled to beg where once they were able to command.

Lo, how hath the mighty fallen! One boss tried to lead his blue-sky contingent into the Rolph trenches, but about half his following deserted on their way, and they lost their part of the line, Riverside county, by more than 2500 votes. Al McCabe of the Insurance Commission asked for and received the management of the Stephens campaign in San Francisco. McCabe used to carry San Francisco for Johnson by pluralities ranging from 10,000 to 30,000 votes. Nearly half the State employees are domiciled in the populous districts about San Francisco Bay. But in Tuesday's election McCabe lost San Francisco to Rolph by 20,000 votes. McLaughlin of the State Labor Bureau deserted Stephens and carried organized labor away with him. Meyer Lissner was seen in conference with Rolph's lieutenants, and the territory entrusted to Lissner to guard for Stephens was lost. The San Francisco water front and fifteen minor commissions, located there, all threw Stephens over. But, despite these disloyal influences against him, Stephens won by a decisive vote.

Now is the time for the taxpayers of Southern California, who made Stephens's victory possible, to demand of him that he seize the present opportunity to help rid the State of the thraldom of so many fat and idle commissions. Most of them were framed for political purposes only. Their reason to be has disappeared, but they are still hanging on like dead limbs to a tree. The Times has pointed out repeatedly that these superfluous commissions are an unjustifiable drain on the State treasury, and that the commissioners injure business and industry much more than they help. But The Times can only act as a beacon light to show the way; it cannot descend to the street and follow that road; neither can it compel its readers to act. In the State eighty candidates have just been nominated to the Legislature. A majority of these will win, for in many districts there are no contests. If our State expenses are to be cut to the average of that of other States of similar population the movement to force the reduction must be launched before the State campaign is over. Now is the time for the citizen to begin to bombard his candidate for the Legislature with requests that he place in his platform a pledge to consolidate duplicating commissions and reduce State expense. Write to your candidate, telling him your views about Hooverizing State expenditures; write to the Governor and to any others whom you know to be influential in directing the trend of State legislation.

California has suffered more during the last year from exorbitant taxes and licenses than any other State. It is possible to reduce the cost of government by commission two million dollars next year without imperiling the public service; but it is not possible to do so if Carnahan and McLaughlin and McCabe are to be permitted to dominate the State administration.

Gov. Stephens is under no further obligations, political or otherwise, to help support in idleness at State expense the useless commissioners. The millions they waste are needed to help fill the Federal war chest. The bosses tried to defeat Gov. Stephens in the primary when they proclaimed Rolph as the legitimate successor of Johnson. They have ceased to be a political force while they continue to be a menace to independent labor and industry. The hour of the forty fat commissions has sounded. If the voters who gave Gov. Stephens his nomination will tell him plainly that it is their will that the reign of the commissions shall cease, the Governor may take part in a movement to abolish the idle commissioners and restore the government of the State to the people. Men and women, strike for deliverance!

RIPPLING RHYMES.

HINDENBURG.

They told me Hindenburg was dead, that he had kicked the bucket. "This life is such a bore," he said, "I have resolved to chuck it." They told me Hindenburg was down, that he was dead and crated; and I astonished all the town the way I celebrated. I painted all of Main street red, my soul was so enchanted; they told me Hindenburg was dead and in the boneyard planted. But Hindenburg still draws his breath, unsafely and insanely; it was a substitute for death that he indulged in, plainly. And now I celebrate the fact that Hindenburg is livin'; he lives to see his armies cracked and back to Berlin driven. He lived to see his armies win full many a red-hot battle; and he'll be here when they begin to run like locoed cattle. Big things will happen yet this fall, the tide of battle's turning, the Huns will hike for timber tall, for safety madly yearning. From now, methinks, until the end the Huns will have no inning; the Allies on their trail will wend, advancing still, and winning. And it would sadden me to know that Hindenburg was sleeping, while, hiking from triumphant foe, his warriors were leaping. I'm glad that Ludendorff survives, that Kaiser Bill's still lined up; may they not lose their precious lives until they've seen the wind-up!

WALT MASON.

THE LANCER.

IT MUST be quite a responsibility to have to run the finances and diplomacy of the world, and attend to the war and decide upon what terms peace shall be established, and fix it up as to what should be done with the Kaiser.

That's what Andre Cheradame, the French writer, has to do. At least Andre thinks so.

To tell the truth, M. Cheradame interests me, he fascinates me, but he appalls me.

I pick up a weekly magazine and here is Andre explaining how the Allied generals are all wrong in every particular. In the next monthly review, I find Andre setting right all the famous diplomats of the world and spanking them for their mistakes. In between times, I read newspapers wherein M. Cheradame is rearranging the errors of the anthropologists who have gummed all the race questions; and I find Andre sighing to find that the ecclesiasts have muddled up all the theological questions about the war.

It must be wonderful to know such a lot; but, my Gawd, how lonesome Andre must be.

If the illustrious Ty Cobb doesn't get over to France and win the Croix de Guerre, he better retire from the baseball field and just keep on going without looking back.

Because of the iron restraint that Tyrus has shown in being able to control his desire to hurry off to war, the great baseball star has queered himself for life with the boys in khaki over there.

The editor of the Stars and Stripes, the United States service newspaper published in France, is so indignant over the conduct of Ty in saying that he would go to war "after the baseball season" that he has discontinued the sporting page of the paper with a final swat of indignation at Eddie Ainsmith, the Washington catcher, who appeals to the Secretary of War to save him from the army.

As the "Stars and Stripes" remarks editorially, "There is only one kind of a big league now and that is in the trenches."

An indignant mother called me up on the phone the other day and asked if it were true that the German prisoners were being fed the same prodigal ration that is served to our own boys in France.

She wasn't quite sure what she wanted done about it, but she said she had two boys at the front and she didn't think the Huns ought to be fed as well as they.

When they begin calling the roll of those who agree with the lady, I want to register a loud "Aye."

I don't know what I want done about it myself. I don't want them to be starved; perhaps it might be well to find out what they don't like and serve it to them three times a day.

I have been the last to believe the stories of German atrocities, but the reports are so circumstantial and so thoroughly corroborated that you can't dodge the conclusion that our prisoners in Germany are treated with pitiless brutality.

The Allies talk about the terrible reprisals they intend to inflict upon the German people when they get on German soil.

Tush, tush! You couldn't get a Yank to torture a woman if you shot him for his refusal to do so. It just isn't in them.

On the contrary, all careful students of diplomacy recognize that the most serious of world problems will be the inevitable chicken-heartedness of the Americans toward a ruined Germany when peace is made.

It would be interesting to know how much the gallantry of the negro troops in France had to do with the selection of Fred Roberts, the colored man who was nominated Tuesday for the Legislature. A great deal, no doubt.

We will do a great deal for France. We will turn her dinky little tin pot railroads—tiny cars drawn by tea kettles—into great modern American railroads.

But France has also done a great deal for us. It looks very much as though she had solved for us our color question.

Irvin Cobb, who is a southerner to the core with all the prejudices of a southerner, says that the word "nigger" will never have the same meaning again when our colored boys come home from France wearing the Croix de Guerre.

If it is really necessary to help win the war, I am willing to get out on September 7 and teach little cherubs to play ring-around Rosy, puss in a corner, drop the handkerchief, etc.

But really I do not seem to be convinced as to the necessity of this National Play Day.

They say that to win the war we also have to have an expensive bureau to amuse the young lady clerks in Washington.

Well, we all want to win the war; but wars seem to be developing queer ways of getting won.

There is no boundary to the flowing sympathy of Francis J. Heney. Whenever he is defeated in an election, he always expresses the most touching compassion for the lot of the commonwealth which has lost him.

When he was heaved out by the wearied voters of Southern California, he only sighed and said "Poor San Francisco."

When the reporters went to see him on the occasion of his walloping in the campaign for Governor, he only said with great piety: "They (the poor public) needed me more than I needed the office."

Possibly the poor old State of California will contrive to struggle on in spite of its bereft condition.

NAVIGATION SCHOOL CLASSES INCREASE.

MANY TAKING ADVANTAGE OF FREE COURSES HERE FOR MARINE SERVICE.

Since the recent summons of Chairman Hurley of the United States Shipping Board to all eligible seafaring men to join the merchant marine, the attendance at the day class in the government free navigation school, in the old Los Angeles High School building, has been increasing steadily.

According to Instructor Oscar Littchen, beginning tomorrow there will be eighteen students in the day class and thirty-six in the night school. Seventy-five pupils can be accommodated, and indications are that more than this number will have applied for entrance within a short time. At the Chamber of Commerce, where applications are received, an average of more than one man a day has applied.

The new age limits fixed for merchant mariners have greatly stimulated attendance in navigation schools all over the country. There is a heavy demand for firemen, a recent announcement from Shipping Board headquarters citing the need of 1500 men for these places on government ships.

The Chamber of Commerce acts as enrolling station for places on training ships, in the marine engineers' school and the Los Angeles free navigation school.

WANT BOOKS FOR CAMPS

Reading Matter is Sought for Soldiers and Sailors in Detention Hospitals.

An appeal for reading matter for soldiers and sailors in the isolation camp hospitals, at and near San Diego, has been issued by Rev. Charles T. Murphy, civilian chaplain under the War Commission, whose address is No. 625 Pennsylvania avenue, San Diego. He will be glad to distribute any reading matter for the men that may be forwarded to him, through the libraries of the various camps.

It is pointed out that these isolated men find time heavy on their hands, being prevented temporarily from taking any active part in the war. All books sent will be properly catalogued and numbered and given out to the men for reading, and then returned to the librarian and reissued to other men. The books mostly wanted are standard works on travel and history and also along modern construction lines.

CHANGING WAR MAP AT PUBLIC LIBRARY.

A large wall map drawn to a scale of twenty miles to the inch has been placed in the corridor leading to the newspaper and periodical department of the Public Library, on the seventh floor of the Metropolitan Building. The position of the Allied line and of the American army is indicated, and will be changed from time to time to follow the fortunes of war.

It is an interesting study and will be even more so when the names of captured German towns appear on it.

POLITICS.

The American Game.

THE WATCHMAN.

TREND OF POLITICAL THOUGHT AND ACTION.

By the Sentry on His Beat.

Against what seemed to be insurmountable odds, Montaville Flowers defeated Charles H. Randall for the Republican nomination for Congress in the Ninth District. Now it appears that the Monrovia author-orator has a good chance for election, but it is not unlikely that Randall and his radical supporters will put up a strong fight, and it is the plain duty of the 100 per cent. Americans to use double the efforts they made in the primary campaign.

The elimination of Randall will be hailed with delight throughout the United States. The eyes of the nation rested upon Michigan, also upon Texas when pacifists of the Randall type were up for election. Their defeat was caused by the same thing that will retire Randall to private life. The majority of the citizens of the United States are honest-to-God Americans and this application may be made to the Ninth District.

While Randall received approximately 8000 Republican votes in the primary, I do not believe there are that many pacifists in the Ninth District. It must be admitted there are some; but nearly all of the people who voted for Randall are either radical church members or radical prohibitionists.

Undoubtedly the Ninth District is overwhelmingly dry and is the mecca for church-going people. But not all of them are radicals by any means. The majority are interested politically in clean government. With Mr. Flowers as his opponent, Randall cannot honestly assail his character nor impugn his reputation. He is a church man, a member of the Methodist church nearly all his life, and he has preached prohibition and contributed to its cause for thirty years.

Even if prohibition were to be an issue of the next Congress Mr. Flowers undoubtedly would fight for it as strongly as Randall. But it appears to be certain that the present Congress will dispose of the liquor problem within a few weeks. That the nation will be bone dry on and after next July 1 is practically assured.

With this issue eliminated, the only question for the 300,000 residents of the Ninth District to decide is whether they will send a pacifist to Washington or a stalwart, true blue American. We are all interested first, last and all the time in the gigantic problem of winning the war. We will win it even if Randall should stay on the job because he is of the hopeless minority, but California is too proud to stand for his kind of representation.

General elections have brought out about 75,000 voters in the Ninth District. If as many cast ballots on November 5, I predict that Mr. Flowers will win by a majority of two to one, or that he will receive at least 50,000 votes. The majority may even be greater because I doubt if very many Randall supporters will come out in the open this time. You know that anyone who proclaims himself friendly to a pacifist in these days places himself under suspicion, and Randall's friends are likely to keep in the background.

Someone resorted to malicious means to bring about the defeat of Supervisor E. J. Delorey. A few hours before the election a pamphlet was circulated throughout the Second District, referring to Mr. Delorey as an "alleged Catholic." True Americanism does not stand for the injection of religion into political campaigns and whoever is responsible for this unfair attack upon Mr. Delorey may suffer the penalty of the law. It is reported that the grand jury is to immediately investigate the matter and that someone is very nervous. It is unlawful to circulate an unsigned statement even in a political campaign. That someone went to several well-known people and asked them to contribute to a fund for the annihilation of Mr. Delorey is said to be true and those people are to be summoned before the grand jury.

A hot fight is assured in the First Supervisor District. Prescott F. Cogswell no doubt will give John J. Hamilton a hard run. With the election two months away, I would say that Mr. Cogswell now has a fifty-fifty chance of election. Hamilton's record is not A-1 and he deserves defeat.

What possessed the people in the Third Supervisor District when they allowed Miles Gregory to lead the field of seven candidates is more than I can figure. Of course, there is many a slip twixt cup and lip and I have an idea that Mr. Woodley will give him some beatin' in November.

Former Gov. Henry T. Gage may enter the gubernatorial contest as an Independent-Republican candidate. This was rumored in many quarters yesterday and Mr. Gage refused to either affirm or deny it. That he will depart today or tomorrow for San Francisco to discuss the matter was the statement of one of his close friends. It is the opinion of Mr. Gage that Gov. Stephens is not the choice of a majority of the people and that an independent candidate may make a strong race against him.

Charles W. Lyon beat Jack Steele so decisively for the Republican nomination for State Senator in the Thirty-fourth District that the anti-loan shark petitioner says he will not try to get to Sacramento over the Bourbon route.

I must say that W. C. Mushet is a good sport. Ordinarily a defeated candidate goes to the mountains to rest and hide after an election, but last Wednesday Mr. Mushet spent all afternoon at the harbor trying to get a job for one of the boys who supported him in his campaign.

There is some talk of a recount of the votes cast in the Sixty-fifth Assembly District. Just how Joe Pedrotti managed to get in the neighborhood of 100 out of 101 votes in one of the precincts is puzzling a few of his enemies.

It has been many a year since Tom Hughes got behind a loser. As he is always successful in his work for somebody else, politicians are wondering if he will ever go after something for himself. I understand that he may. As a matter of fact it is known that the veteran political manager has his eyes glued upon the United States Senate and may be a candidate to succeed Senator Phelan.

Little Walter Stevenson is circulating a report to the effect that Sidney T. Graves, who gave him and Herb Lewis an awful mussing, is disqualified to hold the position of Assemblyman. Walter says Mr. Graves has not lived in the district long enough. It's a safe bet that Mr. Graves will go to Sacramento, and that he will be seated.

I am not very strong for Tom Ambrose, the incumbent, in the Sixty-sixth Assembly District, but bad as he may be, he is an angel alongside one Lee Roy E. Keeley, who was nominated as a Socialist, Democrat and Progressive. Having registered as a Democrat, Keeley can run in November, though he evidently lost the Republican nomination.

Two women candidates for the Assembly—Dr. Jessie Russell and Bernice Edgar—were badly defeated. Evidently they were not even the choice of their own sex, because the fair voters were in the majority and could have selected them.

It is too bad they were not able to Stick it into Henry W. Wright, the Assembly candidate who said he does not favor a programme that calls for State retrenchment.

R. H. Norton got a well-deserved trouncing at the hands of Ed W. Hopkins, the popular County Assessor, who was re-elected by an enormous majority.

Sorry Joe Rominger didn't make it, but he can feel proud of the race he made in the South. He is one prophet who hath honor in his own country.

THE WATCHMAN.

SCHOOLS OPEN TOMORROW.

Many Institutions will not Observe Labor Day—Others a Week Later.

That many county schoolteachers are anxious to get back to work was evident in the statement made yesterday that, instead of observing tomorrow as Labor Day, or one more day of vacation, they will open school in the elementary and high school grades. The remainder of the county schools will begin work on September 9.

County Superintendent of Schools Keppel said yesterday that the county school boards feel the best interests of the pupils demand immediate organization for 1918. About 2500 children will register tomorrow. More than 100 teachers have been elected to take charge of the schools.

CONCESSIONAIRE NOW IN THE COUNTY JAIL.

IS ALLEGED TO HAVE ILLEGALLY OBTAINED POSSESSION OF BAIL MONEY AT VENICE.

Accused of forging the names of two motion-picture players to a receipt for $40 at the Venice Police Station, after representing himself as their agent in seeking return of bail money, D. V. Staley, an Ocean Park concession operator, was arrested in Venice yesterday and lodged in the County Jail.

The complaining witnesses are C. Dorety and C. H. Birdsell, the warrant of arrest charging misdemeanor.

Staley is alleged to have visited Judge Rennie and obtained an order on the police department for $40 after he informed the court that he represented the two boys.

Staley, it is said, called up Dorety and Birdsell and informed them that he could secure the release of a charge against them of disturbing the peace by "fixing" it with the judge, and that he had used $36 of their money with which to purchase "smokes."

The boys were arrested following a little "party" in Venice, and each put up $25 bail money. Judge Rennie imposed a fine of $5 on each.

FOR TRACTOR DISPLAY.

Location of Annual Demonstration Changed to Site on La Brea Ranch.

Largely because of the need for more room than the former field provided, the location for the third annual tractor demonstration, which starts September 17, has been changed from Whittier boulevard just east of the city limits to La Brea ranch. Officials of the Traction Engine and Implement Dealers' Association state that more exhibitors have applied for space than was anticipated, and the Los Angeles Creamery Company property was found too small. There are 450 acres in the new grounds, on Wilshire boulevard, at La Brea avenue, which are admirably adapted for the purpose and more centrally located.

Tractor dealers and users and farm implement men are warm in their praise of G. Allen Hancock, who has turned over the tract for their use during the show. Incidentally Mr. Hancock intends going back to the land in earnest. He will undertake the farming of La Brea ranch on a large scale this fall.

GOVERNMENT BLANKS CLASSIFY ENGINEERS.

Upon the recent establishment of the Division of Engineering of the United States Department of Labor, the Director of Engineering, A. H. Krom, declared that one of his first duties would be to effect a classification of engineers that would do away with confusion of terms, misconceptions and lack of definiteness in technical affairs. He is already making good his intention, judged by the registration blank that has just been published.

It is urged that every engineer call at the local United States Employment Service office for one of these blanks or write to the Director of Engineering, No. 29 South La Salle street, Chicago, Ill., for one of these blank classification forms.

Other Way Around.

OPPORTUNITY LOOKS FOR 'EM.

Army Training to be Offered by Southland Colleges.

Means Chance to Qualify as Officer Right at Home.

Students will Get Pay While They Pursue Courses.

High school boys, attention! You have been looking for a chance to make good; here is an opportunity looking for you. The cold, cruel world sometimes looks with disdain, not to say with distrust, upon a young man armed with a diploma. Not so Uncle Sam. His arms and his army are open to you and you are welcome to a soldier's pay while finishing your education at either Occidental or Pomona College or at the University of Southern California. Can you beat it?

Dr. Silas Evans, president of Occidental College, has just returned from San Francisco, where he participated in a two-day conference with the heads of the Student Army Training Corps, regarding the War Department's plan to utilize the plants, equipment and organization of colleges to maintain a reservoir of material to meet the enlarged needs for army officers.

"In the light of this fact," said Dr. Evans, "Occidental College, the opening of which has been postponed until September 30, will adopt the quarter system, instead of the semester, in order to co-operate with government plans. Under the new system the student will enter college as a soldier, receiving a soldier's pay from the very start. The remuneration will be $30 a month until the student's number is called by the government, when he will be given board and lodging in addition to $30 a month, with the regular allotment allowance for dependents.

"Military discipline will be maintained and equipment and officers to train the students are to be furnished by the government. Col. Daniel A. Frederick, professor of military tactics, will probably have charge of inducting men into the service, and the government aims to place an extra officer in the college for every fifty students enrolled. Occidental College now has twenty-five men at the Presidio in the officers' student training camp and many of these will return to Occidental College to assist in the new work. The registration of young men, 18 and over, is soon to become compulsory, but the induction of students into service will be a matter of volition. Young men of high school education will be permitted to enter colleges for advance training as officers and as technical experts of various kinds, according to their previous training and abilities. Those who show promise under this training will be kept in college until they are qualified to enter central officers' training camps or to go directly into service as technical experts.

"Every effort will be made to give each young man who enters the service under this plan an opportunity for the training best suited to his natural ability and preferences," said Dr. Evans. "I have just received word that Gen. March, Chief of Staff, by order of the Secretary of War, has approved the general plans for the organization of the S.A.T.C. as given in Occidental College."

REGIMENT WILL BE FORMED AT SCHOOL.

LOS ANGELES HIGH WILL LAY STRESS ON MILITARY TRAINING COURSE.

The Los Angeles High School will lay special stress on military training this term, according to plans announced by Vice-Principal E. W. Oliver and Commandant Lyon of the military department of the school.

Military drill will be required of every boy in school with the exception of the ninth-year students. Drill will be held three times a week, supplementary classes being held twice a week on military theory for all students who desire more military knowledge. The purpose of this extra training class work is to give youths under 21 and in the draft an opportunity to train to be noncommissioned officers upon entering the army.

Los Angeles High School has large and adequate drill grounds. According to the plans, a full regiment will be formed. The commanding student officer, having the rank of colonel, will be selected by examination from the officers of the preceding term's battalion. Guns will be furnished to the school by the government, the students being required to buy their own uniforms.

CHANCE TO JOIN THE STUDENT ARMY CORPS.

FREE SPECIAL TRAINING WILL BE OFFERED AT LOS ANGELES STATE NORMAL.

President Ray L. Wilbur of the Committee on Special Education of the War Department, has authorized Dr. E. C. Moore, head of the Los Angeles State Normal School, to form a student army training corps.

All students entering corps will receive $30 per month until drafted, after which they will receive quarters and rations in addition. By contractural arrangement between the government and the school the future of students will depend on recommendations of the president of school, the commanding officer at school and the committee at Washington. There will be a practically continuous session, probably of three-month intervals, at end of which the future of each student will be determined according to his record. Training best suited to the several students, either for officers or specialists, will be given.

The Los Angeles Normal School is a State institution. Its instruction is free. Its term begins on the 10th inst. It offers its shops, its classes, its laboratories, library, drill ground and its instruction free to the young men of Los Angeles who may wish to enter at once to join the Students' Army Training Corps to be formed there.

SEEK RECRUITS FOR MERCHANT MARINE.

SECRETARY OF WAR TELLS OF HIGH CHARACTER OF THE SERVICE.

Secretary of War Baker is in thorough accord with the recruiting service of the United States Shipping Board in its gigantic campaign to recruit thousands of youths for service on ships in the new American merchant marine. Enrolling headquarters of the Shipping Board, at No. 369 Pine street, San Francisco, has received the following statement from the Secretary:

"You can confidently say to the young men who are invited to go on board the merchant marine training ships of the United States Shipping Board that however spectacular other theaters of the service may be, the services which you are asking them to perform requires red-blooded, patriotic men. The service is of the highest character, both in its demand for courage and in its patriotic service to the nation at large.

"The War Department has a very deep interest in the recruiting of seamen for the American merchant marine, so as that great calling of the past and very necessary calling of the future may have a permanent outlook—a thing that will build up the American merchant marine after this war is over and the commerce of the nation begins to assume its rightful place.

"The men who are in the sailor trade, particularly those who sail the cargo steamers, are taking as high hazards and performing as perilous and patriotic service as any man anywhere. They themselves, perhaps, hardly realize it."

Those eligible at this time to enroll for service in the merchant marine are youths between 18 and 20 years of age, inclusive, and men between 32 and 35 years of age, inclusive. Applications will be accepted at Room 315, No. 369 Pine street, San Francisco.

WAR SHOWS VALUE OF GOOD HIGHWAYS.

ARMY ENGINEER WRITES CHAMBER OF COMMERCE OF EXPERIENCE IN FRANCE.

Interesting sidelights on France, not identified with the fighting, came yesterday in a letter to the Chamber of Commerce from Capt. Frank W. Harris, Co. B, Five Hundred and Seventeenth Engineers, A.E.F.

Before entering the army and serving in France, Capt. Harris followed his profession in Washington and is a pioneer advocate of good highways along the Pacific Coast. He has often pointed to the good roads system of Southern California as an inspiration to other sections of the country. In his letter he says in relation to roads:

"France is literally a network of first-class roads. They radiate in all directions. There are no roads that can be called strictly military roads, as the French do not use any one particular road. The average width of hard surface is about twenty feet, and then there is a wide dirt shoulder on each side. The roads are nearly all water-bound macadam, but very strongly built. They carry the heavy artillery very easily.

"The ditches on the side are much larger than with us. Of course, rainfall and local conditions govern the size of the ditches. The stone for the road is very durable and labor has been very cheap, with the result that good roads are everywhere. However, I can clearly see that we shall have much better success in meeting our road problems in our own way.

"Until the day of disarmament comes, we must consider the protection of our coast, simply as an insurance policy—a policy which we shall gladly cancel if our neighbors will do the same. Roads and railroads in war are nearly everything. We cannot have too many good roads along the border. If we had twenty parallel roads, they would all be jammed in the event of war. A main military road should be paved forty feet wide to have any real value."

DOLLAR AN HOUR; THIRTY MONTH.

WHAT OUR SOLDIERS GET VS. WHAT UNIONS ARE NOW DEMANDING.

The striking contrast of wages that are being paid to home-staying men and the men who have gone into service in the trenches—where they present themselves for the supreme sacrifice, if necessary—is set forth in a telegram sent to President Wilson by the Los Angeles Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association yesterday. It is a protest against the latest demand for $1 an hour. The telegram says:

"In order that the commercial and industrial interests of the country be protected from the ever increasing demands of shipyard workers, we respectfully request and urge that their latest demand for $1 an hour be denied, as such wage schedule is exorbitant and unfair in proportion to the compensation paid to our boys in the trenches at $30 per month and the hardship they have to endure and the risks they have to take.

"We believe that the wage schedule now in force is sufficiently high, and is being demanded in industrial establishments where no war contracts exist. The present wage schedule is more than just, and any further increase will, in our opinion, tend to disrupt all channels of business."

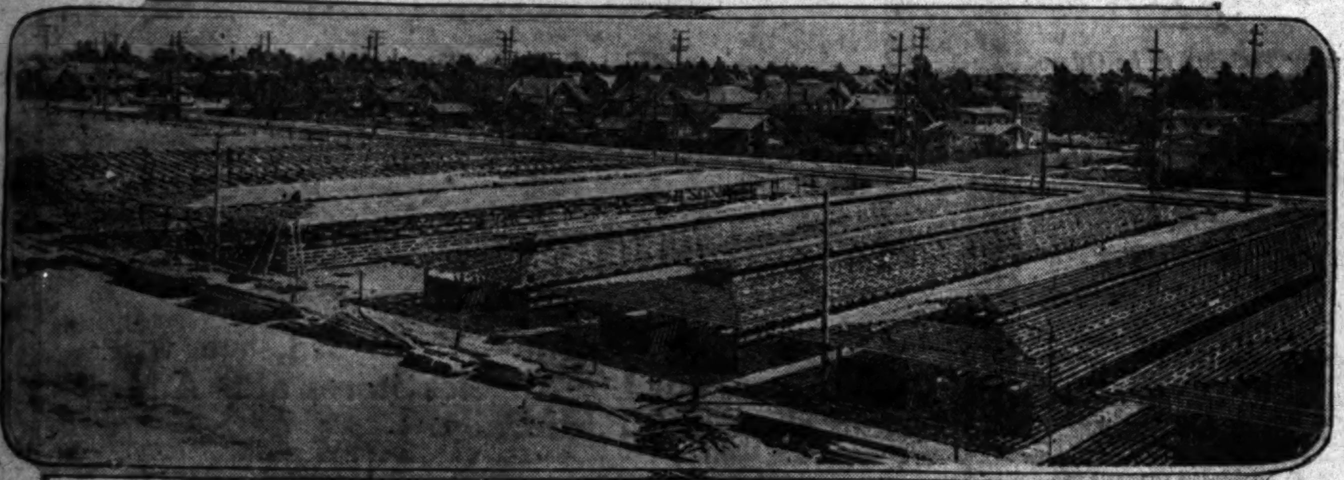
HUNTER GETS "DEAR."

City Council's Minute Clerk Sends Word of His Marriage at Portland.

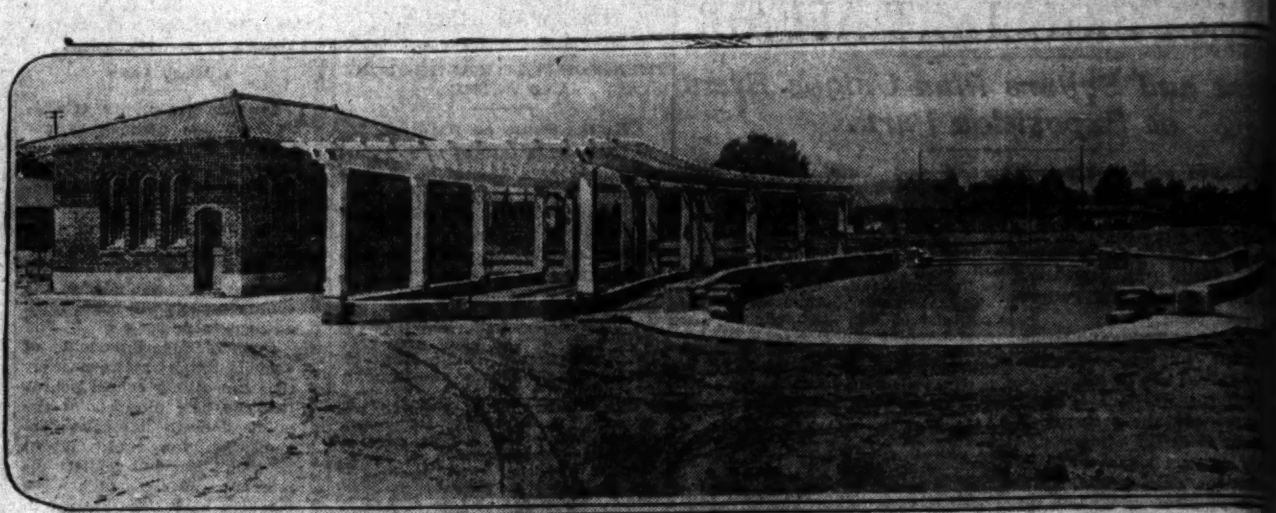
In a telegram to friends at the City Hall yesterday, David M. Carroll, minute clerk of the City Council, reported a successful "dear" hunt in Oregon.

When he left here a few days ago to take his vacation, he told his associates he was going deer hunting. On Friday, as told in The Times yesterday, word came from Portland that he had secured a license to wed Miss Mary B. Livingston of New York. Miss Livingston is a sister of Mr. Carroll's first wife, who died here about two years ago. The newlyweds will reach Los Angeles about the 9th inst.

Glimpses of the Elaborate Housing for the California Liberty Fair to be Held at Exposition Park Next Month.



Acres of barns where the immense live stock exhibit is to be housed.



Day nursery building where mothers may amuse the babies. Wading pool in foreground.

Already in readiness for the biggest exposition ever held in Los Angeles.

Over Thirty Thousand Dollars.

GREAT PRIZE LIST OFFERED FOR LIBERTY FAIR LIVE STOCK SHOW.

CHARLES ROCKWELL, 12 years old, who lives at Wilmar, made the first entry in the boys' division of the live stock show of the California Liberty Fair, to be held at Exposition Park, when he entered his four pigs, Poland Chinas. His brother, Jack, entered Himalayan rabbits. Both lads are Boy Scouts.

E. G. Judah, one of the fair directors, has received a German helmet from Lieut. (Dr.) H. G. Marxmiller, Los Angeles surgeon, who is now with the British Expeditionary Forces on the Flanders front.

"Use this helmet to take up a collection for the boys over here," wrote Dr. Marxmiller. "Pass it around, and may it boost your war work. It was taken from a Boche on whom I operated the other day, and I send it to you as an exhibit for the California Liberty Fair."

There is added stimulus at present at fair headquarters, owing to the many entries that are pouring in. Charles Wilson, superintendent of exhibits, is kept busy issuing the blanks, and as a result may not have time to visit the State Fair at Sacramento. Several of the directors are planning to go, however. Harold Janss will leave this morning by automobile, and will spend two days studying the live stock exhibits. Others who will go are C. R. Thomas of the live stock department, who will remain at the fair the entire week, and F. B. Davison, secretary of the Sixth District Agricultural Association, and Fred Bixby, chairman of the live stock committee. It is determined by the directors of the Liberty Fair to make the live stock exhibit a record breaker.

The fact that the small producer is to have the same chance to exhibit as the man with large herds has made a decided hit with the man who is trying to help cut down the high cost of living by raising either goats, pigs, fowls, rabbits or other stock that can be used to provide meat for the table.

Public auction sales of registered stock will be held on the grounds, under the auspices of the national or State organizations representing the breeds to be sold. These will give breeders an opportunity to secure new blood to add to their herds without going to the expense and loss of time of traveling from ranch to ranch or to other States.

The premiums aggregate about $35,000. These amounts include the special premiums offered by the various national and State live stock organizations. They ar lows:

SCHOOLS' PART IN WAR TOLD.

Board President Addresses Teachers' Gathering.

Millions Invested to Help the Government.

German Influence will not be Tolerated.

To welcome the teachers in the Los Angeles schools for the coming year and to outline the policy of the city system, a meeting, attended by some 3500 instructors, was held under the auspices of the Board of Education yesterday at Clune's Auditorium.

"Last year the Los Angeles schools were the best organized in their history," announced Lynn Helm, president of the school board, in his address. "Their response to the demands of the war was remarkable. Thousands of dollars were paid to war charities, $1,538,900 was invested in Liberty Bonds and $667,000 in War Savings Stamps. The Red Cross received $72,234 from our teachers and children, and $11,660 was taken out in Junior Red Cross memberships. Salvage brought some $7247, and Christmas toys made by the children themselves, $1586.

"At various times and for various patriotic activities last year there were made in our schools over 50,000 posters, and there have been numberless donations to every war activity. We have taken great steps in food conservation, and there have been established canning clubs, conservation societies and field and animal clubs.

"During the summer we conducted soldiers' schools with an enrollment of 680 men. In eight weeks they accomplished more in these institutions than they could possibly have done in four months of intensive training in camps. The men were sent away last week, fully prepared for their war duties, and will soon be overseas.

"We do not propose to let up at all. We shall go forward, as it is the duty of every one to help win this war.

"The salary schedule is not what we had hoped for, although we have been able slightly to increase the salary of teachers in the lower grades. Teachers receiving $1200 a year or more are not in dire need, we felt, and we have first had to look after those who are not so well paid.

"We feel that teachers should be as highly paid a class as any. The schedule we have been forced to adopt is by no means satisfactory to us. But our hands are tied and the Board of Supervisors has not granted us as large an appropriation as we hoped for. However, we shall all have to work together for the good of our offices and the betterment of the children.

"A questionnaire will be presented to each teacher and principal, who will be given the opportunity of giving his views on contemporary educational matters. In this way the Board of Education will have valuable, first-hand knowledge of up-to-date views.

"We have abolished from the schools things which we consider we ought not to have. Especially have we tried to get rid of all German influence. We want no teachers who have German tendencies.

"The recent quarrel over a history text-book is largely between the bookmakers. We propose to tell our children the truth about history and also to tell them its horrors and what the Germans have done and are doing."

In addition to Mr. Helm other speakers included the superintendents, Mrs. Susan M. Dorsey, J. B. Monlux, Arthur Gould and Harry M. Shafer. Community singing was led by Hugo Kirchhofer, with Lewis W. Curtis at the piano.

ON LABOR DAY.

Monday will be Labor Day, and there will be a cessation of all activities in every department at the Federal Building. In the local postoffice the usual holiday hours will be observed. On Tuesday, the case of George A. J. Howard, charged with making a false affidavit in the matter of his drafted brother-in-law, Edward B. Murray, will begin before Judge Trippet and a jury.

Our Boys in France and Home Protection

The men on the firing line represent the pick of our American youth. One in four of our boys at home was sick, rejected because of physical deficiency. Many times the kidneys were to blame.

If we wish to prevent old age coming on too soon, or if we want to increase our chances for a long life, Dr. Pierce of the Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y., says that you should drink plenty of water daily between meals. Then procure at your nearest drug store, Anuric (double strength.) This "An-u-ric" drives the uric acid out and cures backache and rheumatism.

If we wish to keep our kidneys in the best condition a diet of milk and vegetables, with only little meat once a day, is the most suitable. Drink plenty of pure water, take Anuric three times a day for a month. Send Dr. Pierce ten cents for trial packages. "Anuric"—many times more potent than lithia, eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you.

MR. REECE JONES says: "Just a few lines in regard to Dr. Pierce's Anuric Tablets which I took for kidney trouble. I am glad to recommend them to everybody. I know that they are good or I would not recommend them. After taking a few bottles I saw that the swelling was going down, so I continued their use. I have quit them now and am cured —getting along fine and dandy.

"One old lady, 65 years old, to whom I have recommended Anuric, says that it [illegible] good, took the swelling out of [illegible]

CHINESE PAYS FINE FOR HAVING OPIUM.

In Judge Trippet's court yesterday Quong King pleaded guilty to having smoking opium and was fined $200, which he paid.

An effort was made to have the court reduce the bond of Mrs. Marie Magon, who is being held in the County Jail under a bond of $10,000 for violating the Espionage Act, but Assistant United States District Attorney Palmer opposed the motion. The matter will be taken up by Mrs. Magon's attorney and the office of the District Attorney for further consideration. Mrs. Magon is the wife of Ricardo Flores Magon, who is serving a term in the Federal prison on McNeil's Island on a similar charge.

FAKE SPEED COP.

J. D. Unger of South Gate Gardens, in the suburbs, reported to Sheriff Cline yesterday that he had been victimized by a man who represented himself as a motorcycle officer and who assessed him $2 as a "fine" for speeding and then released him. Unger was hailed by the "officer" while driving an automobile along Pacific boulevard, near the Santa Fe tracks, accompanied by a young woman.

Playground Outings.

ECONOMICAL VACATIONS ARE POPULAR THIS YEAR.

CAMP SEELEY, the Los Angeles playground camp near Little Bear Lake, is this year one of the most popular resorts in the San Bernardino mountains. Los Angeles residents who took this economical vacation in order that they might have more to give for war work are finding that their outings have been fully as enjoyable as those of previous summers.

During the last two weeks the camp has taken on a military aspect. A volunteer bugler sounds taps, Boy Scouts raise and lower the flag while the campers stand at attention, and morning and afternoon men, women and children join in the military drill given by a Spanish War veteran.

Two days of last week the people at Camp Seeley experienced living in the clouds. With masses of fog rolling in from the San Bernardino Valley, the little ones and the lovers of indoor sports resorted to the assembly-room of the lodge, where the time was spent in games before crackling fires, while the more energetic went on swift tramps to the crest line and neighboring peaks to watch the clouds come in.

One of the interesting events of each outing is a lecture given by Mrs. Chandler, wife of the forest ranger, on the cone-bearing trees. She not only aids in recognizing the conifers, but also explains their economic value to the slopes and valleys.

On the sunshiny days, after the fog, the campers entered with renewed enjoyment into the usual diversions of camp life—swimming, tennis, organized outdoor games, and hiking. The evening entertainments have produced such varied talent that they have assumed an almost professional air. Skits with patriotic motives, music and original forms of amusement, have made the evenings the most attractive time of day. The entertainment is usually around the open camp fire; occasionally it is held in the lodge.

Answer.

"KAMERAD!" NOW SIGNAL TO "LET 'EM HAVE HELL".

Nurse Here from England Tells of Result of Hun Treacheries.

HER first vacation in three years of nursing soldiers at British war hospitals is now being enjoyed by Miss Daisy Yarborough, a young American woman visiting her sister, Mrs. W. A. Percy, at No. 953 South Gramercy place, this city.

Miss Yarborough has been through Zeppelin and Gothas attacks on England, and the veteran transport in which she returned made a twelve-day detour through the submarine zone, so she has seen her share of war dangers. She wears the star badge of the nurse's union and a medal from the British War Office for service and bravery, but more than either she prizes a heavy buckle cut off a Hun's sword belt and presented to her by a grateful patient. She has acquired also a store of anecdotes and thoughts on the war from new angles.

When a German soldier meets a British soldier, "Kamerad" is his word, but the Tommy says nothing until he has reported his capture to an officer. Then his words are "shell out—shell out." The Tommy, of course, keeps the souvenirs the prisoner "shells out." One of Miss Yarborough's patients had an iron cross taken from the enemy, and which he very proudly displayed. The iron crosses are really of bronze color, which she thinks is another German camouflage.

NO LONGER RESPECTED.

"But the word 'Kamerad' is not respected by our soldiers any more; they have learned the treachery latent in the Hun breast and pay no attention to that coward plea," said Miss Yarborough yesterday. "On one occasion a German advanced crying 'Kamarad' and holding his hands above his head. When he was surrounded, he let his arms fall and a bomb fell from his sleeve, killing the men in front of him. A companion at once buried his bayonet in the carcass of the Hun."

Now the word "Kamerad" is the signal for "Let 'em have hell," and the Germans don't use it quite so much.

Miss Yarborough found many of the wounded soldiers ready to tell of their experiences, although those with medals or service bars, she said, would seldom say a word about their exploits. Many patients at the war hospitals suffer with shell shock, and they are too dazed to understand much or to hold a conversation. From the men who talk she learned many exciting and interesting incidents, however.

THE AMERICAN WAY.

The Americans are treated almost with awe (over there because of the light manner in which they take life —and lives, in the case of Huns. Everything is a joke to them.

Many of the soldiers who are wounded come to the hospitals with their clothes almost torn from their bodies, and dirt thickly caked on them. Also they are troubled with "cooties" and it is customary to place a label on each man stating whether he has yet been "bloused."

The Zeps and Gothas (the new German airplanes) are frequently seen over England on their night raids. Miss Yarborough saw a Zeppelin destroyed. "It seemed like an immense silver cigar floating along," she said, "then it disappeared in a cloud, and came out, and suddenly burst into a great flame so bright that one could read a newspaper by it, and fell to the earth."

One Gotha containing seven passengers landed upon the soil of England and was captured. One of the men was accompanied by his wife, who had her hair cut short and was dressed like a man. Why the landing was made was not disclosed, but more than one shrewd guess was that they had come to get a good square meal—something that is rare in Germany these days.

ESCAPE TO HOLLAND.

Another German and his wife escaped in a small boat and made their way to the coast of Holland. These escaped Germans are interned with other enemy aliens, which means that they receive exceedingly lenient treatment. They are even allowed to drive about in carts with no guard whatever, according to Miss Yarborough.

Miss Yarborough went to England after completing a three-year nursing course at Birmingham, Ala. She was required to present recommendations from someone in England outside her own family, and also a certificate of health in order to get in the Nursing Corps. Many American women are serving in that corps, she says. Americans in England are also compelled to carry an identification book and to register at a headquarters every day. She served at the woman's war hospital for wounded soldiers at Hygat; the Paignton hospital, near Devon; and the hospital at Cirencester. The lowest sum paid nurses in the service is $60 a month.

On entering a new hospital a certificate of health must be shown, and it was this that required her to take a vacation. She sprained her foot badly, and in the damp climate rheumatism set in. The physician made her go to a warm climate to recuperate, and she sailed from Liverpool on July 1 in the Cunard transport that sank the first German boat in the first engagement between armored liners in 1915, and which carries 4000 soldiers overseas on every trip. Her foot is now fully recovered in the dry air of Southern California, and she is ready to go once more overseas and continue in her mercy work among the wounded.

SEWER FIRM COMPLAINS.

Charge Made that Price Monopoly Exists—Recent Action of Council is Basis.

Charging that a cement sewer price monopoly is in existence here, Howard Frost, president of the Pacific Sewer Pipe Company, yesterday filed with City Clerk Wilde a communication addressed to the City Council, in which he alleges that bids of the Cement Pipe Company on six sewer jobs under consideration August 26 were 40 per cent. higher than the last bids submitted.

The charges made by Mr. Frost grow out of a recent action of the Council, in which the Pacific Sewer Pipe Company was denied the privilege of furnishing clay sewer pipe in competition with cement sewer pipe, notwithstanding that the clay pipe complies with city specifications. Mr. Frost calls attention to the fact that the Council has barred his company, despite the fact that the City Engineer recommended that the company be allowed to furnish clay pipe in accordance with specifications until the end of this year.

The action knocking out clay pipe was based upon a recommendation of the Public Works Committee, which is composed of Councilmen Conrad, Farmer and Reeves.

Find Mascot.

CAVALRY ADOPTS FRENCH LAD WHO MAY COME HERE.

LOUIS MARTIENS, five and a half years old, a native of France, and living at Bordeaux, near Park Bordelaise, is the militant mascot of the Fifteenth United States Cavalry, in which there are 180 Los Angeles and Southern California men. The men of the Fifteenth are already providing the means for the support of their mascot, and planning for his future schooling. It is definitely decided that he is to be brought to America after the war by Chaplain Sutherland, probably to Los Angeles, as the California men want him to go to school here.

They have even begun to tell little Louis of the wonders of Los Angeles and what is in store for him here. Louis is an orphan, his father was killed in action in the first year of the war, and his mother died the following year. His picture has been sent to A. K. Tate of No. 5310 Templeton street, Sierra Park, by his son, Dick Tate, widely known here. Dick Tate is a member of Troop G, Fifteenth Cavalry, now located near Bordeaux, France. He enlisted in the United States Army in May, 1915, was sent to Fort William McKinley, near Manila, Philippine Islands, served two years there, and came back to the United States last November, returning to France in March.

ANOTHER FOUND GOOD.

Los Angeles Boy is Accepted as Candidate in School for Field Artillery.

Through his executive secretary, Ralph Baudine, Lieut.-Col. Stanton of Los Angeles has been accepted as a candidate to attend the school. Mr. Stanton resides at No. 808 South Rampart boulevard.

Knock for Senator.

WISCONSINITES HAVE NO USE FOR PACIFIST.

AT AN enthusiastic, patriotic gathering of 1500 members of the Wisconsin Societies of Southern California, held in Sycamore Grove yesterday, the least popular man absent was a certain pacifist Senator, whose name was not once mentioned, but who was caustically referred to by nearly every speaker on the programme.

One of the principle speakers was Paul Findlay, a four-minute man, who said, in part: "No State in the Union has greater cause for honest pride than has Wisconsin, for, although she has to bear up under the stigma of being the only State with 100 per cent. misrepresentation, she is showing plainly that she has been misrepresented, and none among her people show it more conclusively than those of German blood. They are demonstrating that the millions of Americans of Germanic antecedents have no sympathy with the Kaiser's brutal dream of world dominion. They are showing it by sending their sons to fight for democracy, and by filling their pockets with Liberty Bonds.

"In return for the blessings of freedom given to each of her sons, America demands but one supreme pledge—loyalty. Our duty today is to bring the Kaiser and his hordes to unconditional surrender, so that when around the peace table sit Belgium, Serbia, France, England, Italy, the United States and our other honored Allies, Germany will be compelled to stand at respectful attention, but with not one word to say."

Mr. Findlay pleaded for a more general teaching of the English language to the foreigners who come to America, and concluded by appealing to everyone to stop the mouths of scandalmongers and German propagandists who, by their insidious methods and slimy lies, are seeking the destruction of every noble principle for which America is battling.

Other speakers on the programme were R. A. Block, president of the Los Angeles Wisconsin Association; Col. Frank H. True, president of the Southern California Wisconsin Association; Edgar L. Thompson, chairman of the day; Eugene Chafin, Theodore D. Kanause, J. Wagner, Paul J. Watrous and Charles Milwaukee Sivyer, the latter being the first white boy ever born in Wisconsin.

Mr. Sivyer is now 83 years old. Mr. Chafin, probably for the first time in any speech of his life, did not mention prohibition, but for fifteen minutes kept his audience in an uproar of laughter with humorous anecdotes. Among other things, he said that Wisconsin is the greatest missionary State in the Union; that she has sent out more good men and had more bad ones take their places than any other State.

Paul J. Watrous presented a resolution, which was unanimously adopted, praising the Hon. John Coit Spooner, whose vision, initiative and splendid statesmanship made possible the Panama Canal.

"The importance of Mr. Spooner's service to his country will be appreciated," said Mr. Watrous, "when we realize that had the canal been started three years later, it could not have completed in time to perform its present important function of rushing Pacific Coast ships into war service on the Atlantic."

An enjoyable part of the programme was the rendition by Sidney K. Johnson, of a solo entitled "The Story of Our Flag."

ALLEGES DESERTION.

George Currier, an employee of a San Pedro ferry boat, was made defendant yesterday in a suit filed by Lawrence J. Myer, who demands $5000 damages for an alleged assault. Mr. Myer says he asked why the boat did not start on schedule time and was hit on the jaw and knocked unconscious, he claimed.

—How well it wears!

—How smart—how becoming—how comfortable!

—In the opinion of those who know, there should be at least one jersey dress in the wardrobe of every well-dressed woman.

—Sensing an increasing demand, as the season advances, those who buy for our garment department have provided well and have bought and bought and bought of these modish jerseys. Women's Suits for Immediate Wear Are Strictly Tailored

Which is as it should be. With the numerous war activities to take up one's time, what better than a real "business" suit for the woman of now?

—Don't you believe, too, that if you see what you want, early in the season, that then is the time to get it?

—My, such a state as the woolen market is in—who can tell WHERE prices will go!

—It becomes nothing short of an economic measure to profit by early season prices.

—The new Fall tailleurs are distinctive things—distinctive in their very plain simplicity—and their unmistakable air of perfect tailoring.

—Prominent among the materials are Velour de Laine, Silvertone, Gabardine, Serge, Tweed Mixtures—and Broadcloth is to "Come Back" stronger than for many seasons.

—Many of the new coats are in finger-tip length—these have the modified flare; and for those to whom the shorter coat is more becoming, there is a delightful selection of the various fitted-to-the-waistline models.

—Military effects are in the foreground—coats boasting of swagger pockets, belts and buttons.

—All coats are lined with peau de cygne, satin or novelty silk.

—Skirts are plain tailored, belted and conveniently pocketed.

—A tailored suit has the happy faculty of becoming the slight, the stout, the girl, the matron—is the very "backbone" of one's wardrobe — and always in good style.

—Early fall assortments have been carefully assembled here at The Broadway, at these prices—$29.75, $32.50, $35, $39.75, $45 and upward to $89.50.

—We're mentioning just a "handful" of some of the things we would like to have you see on Tuesday.

Silk Flounce Petticoats At $2.45 and $2.95

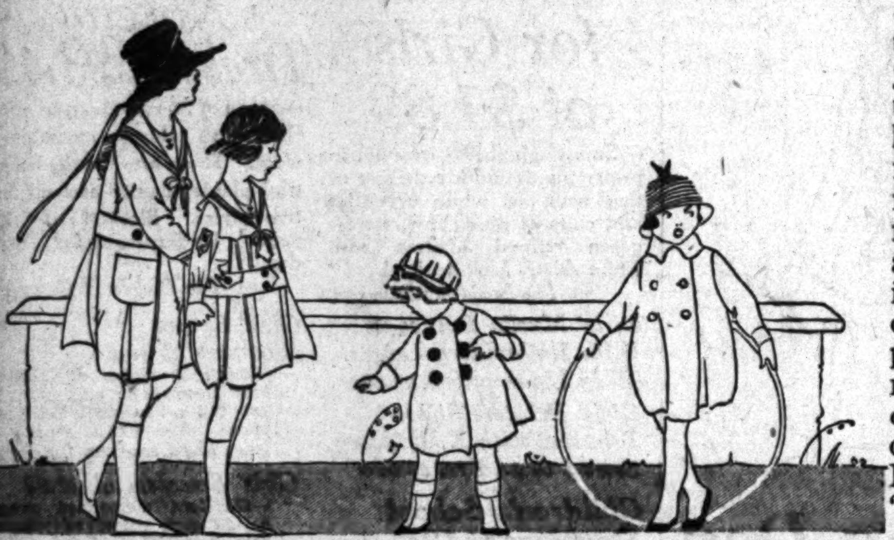
"So, Back to School the Kiddies Go!"

The Week of September 3 is Sure to Be a Busy One!



—All of the boys and girls—the wee kindergartners, the juniors and the nearly grown-ups to be outfitted for school; hats, shoes, frocks, skirts, middies, underwear, stockings to consider and to buy for them. Lots of the wear and tear of such preparation is eliminated when one knows of great, up-to-the-minute departments, all under the same roof, in which all one's purchases may be made—such departments as those at The Broadway, which are just "bulging" with new fall togs.

Fall Millinery for Little Folks at $3.95 to $10

—For the littlest folks there are such dainty, shirry, fluffy polk bonnets of velvet—perhaps with a bit of soft fur to frame piquant faces; or the tailored felts in various gay colors, but demurely, plainly trimmed with grosgrain band and bow; or the big, droopy, velvet hats for the juniors, with floaty streamers of ribbon or perky French flowers; and the hats of dark colors but brightly faced—all here, in the department on the Second Floor.

New Jack Tar Togs Have Come, Too

—For sister of 6 to 14, nothing is smarter or more substantial for school wear. An exceptionally staunch material fashions Jack Tar Togs this season—a very heavy material in dark blue, known as "Palmer Linene," and with white, red-embroidered dickie and red silk laces, the frocks and the middies make instant appeal to children and mothers alike. Price $6.75.

Gingham Frocks at $2.95 and $5.95

—Girls almost always like their wash frocks to have pleated skirt—and these are so made, that is, many of them. There are beautiful plaids, as well as plain colors; large pockets, button trimmed; white collar and cuffs.

White Middy Skirts at $1.95

—Some of these are attached to underwaist; sizes for girls of 6 to 16 years; material is a good galatea; skirts are full pleated.

Jack Tar Middies at $1.95

—These, too, are of white galatea, some with short, some with long sleeves; with light blue or dark blue collar and cuffs; sizes for girls of 10 to 20 years. Second Floor.

How Well We've Prepared for School Days with $60,000.00 Worth of American Boy CLOTHES

—Boys who wear them—(and mothers and fathers who pay for them)—have been fairly flocking to the Second Floor for days past, for school outfits must be assembled—and an American Boy suit is looked upon as the very "foundation" by hundreds of boys and their parents.

—We expected a big demand—and have prepared for it with a thoroughness of which you're sure to approve, for stocks are bulging!

—If there's a boy in your family, you're sure to be interested in the new fall American Boy Suit models—you'll like their modish semi-military trig and trimness.

—You'll like the new fabrics and patterns—the tweeds, cassimeres, cheviots, worsteds and serges.

—You'll be pleased to note that the suits still measure up to that standard of excellence that gained the approval of the boys and their mothers, when the suits were first introduced here at The Broadway, years ago.

—These suits are made for boys of 6 to 18 years of age. Second Floor.

Junior Norfolks for the Little Lads

For the boys of 5 to 10 years. Smart, serviceable suits in clever new models and materials.

Boys' Sweaters
Boys' Pajamas
Boys' Hats and Caps
Boys' Sleeping Garments
Boys' Underwear
Boys' Neckties
Boys' Bath Robes

Boys' Suspenders
Boys' Underwaists

Second Floor.

Never, Seemingly, Have Women So "Taken" to Middies!

—But the reason is obvious—with all the varied and different kinds of work that they're now called upon to do, to say nothing of the various strenuous sports in which they indulge.

—So we are prepared with well-filled racks of middies.

The Middies at $1.75 and $1.95

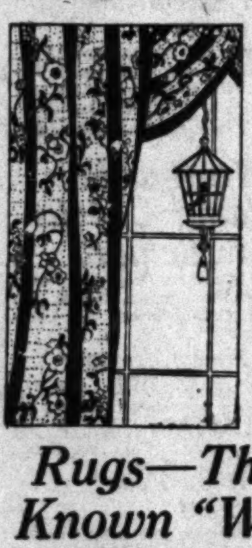
—Of these one is the coat style, has large pockets and belt and fastens with huge pearl buttons—$1.75.

—Another is the regulation style, large sailor collar, silk lacers; a fine quality of jean its material. This style is $1.95.

—Then, at the same price we have the white middies with blue serge collar and cuffs; regulation and coat styles; sizes 34 to 44—styles that will also please the school girls as well as women.

Third Floor.

The Art of House Furnishing



—is exploited and made possible on our Fourth Floor to all who are interested in making their homes attractive abiding places.

—High cost is not necessary—indeed, some of the most pleasing effects are obtained by the least expensive materials.

—Men who have had years and years of experience in their chosen work are in charge of our Department of Interior Decoration, and they have, at their disposal, imported and domestic fabrics—rich velours, velvets, damasks, brocades, madras, tissue silks, voiles, cretonnes—too many, by far, to mention specifically.

—Then we have a complete sample range from some of the Eastern importers—fabrics which we order in any lengths desired for individual decorations.

—This department and its ideas are at your service, whether your problem of furnishing and decorating concerns a bungalow, a room or a mansion—a gratis service, always.

Rugs—The Well Known "Wiltons" Pre-eminent

—The name "Wilton" has for long been considered the last word descriptive of all-round rug value—no others are to be compared when quality, beauty, durability must be covered with a single word.

—Not often do you have the opportunity to buy a "signed copy"—especially at the same price asked for a book without that distinction.

—The Gunner, himself, will be with us Tuesday, in our book department, Aisle 8, from 12 to 4 p.m. and—

—Why not have him autograph a book for YOUR library?

—The book, $1.50—

HEROINE IN LANDSLIDE.

DYNAMITED HILL DIDN'T ACT IN PROFESSIONAL MANNER.

What came near being a tragedy luckily turned out to be a wonderful effect in a motion picture in which Billie Rhodes is being featured in the first De Luxe production now being made at the National Film Corporation studios in Hollywood, and which is entitled "The Girl of My Dreams."

The scenario called for a landslide of gigantic proportions, following a frightful rainstorm in the mountains. After a day's search, last week, a location was found in one of the unfrequented side canyons in San Gabriel Canyon. An almost perpendicular hill was discovered with shale, loose rock, uprooted trees and big boulders. These probably were the accumulation of years of the terrific storms which this canyon is noted for. It was an ideal spot for an avalanche or landslide, and with that in view, the director, Louis William Chaudet, had the cabin, supposed to be the mountain home of Miss Rhodes, built at the foot of this hill. An expert in dynamite charges was called from Los Angeles, and on looking over the ground decided that to loosen sufficient rock to cover the hut at the foot of the hill a big charge would be necessary. Every precaution was made against all possible accidents, except the most important one—viz., the action which the hill might decide to take following the explosion of the dynamite.

Miss Rhodes stood in front of the hut, the rain effect was started, and the water was pouring down on all sides, the camera was grinding and the director was all ready with his megaphone, when the charge of dynamite was set off. There was a terrific roar, and it appeared to the onlookers as though the entire hill, 3000 feet high, was descending upon them. That is, it seemed so for an instant. Then they all with one accord went away from there.

A glorious rescue of the star was effected by Director Chaudet, who snatched Miss Rhodes and started to tear up the opposite hillside. Cameraman Walter Griffin made an attempt to rescue his camera, but he hadn't time, and even at that he was injured by a falling rock, whereupon he dropped his camera and sped for his life. The members of the company, running as never before, all reached safety on the opposite hillsides. By the time all were safe, the slide, with a roar, had descended and covered everything.

After hours of digging, the camera was found. The negative was developed, and what is probably the closest shot ever taken of a landslide was procured. The very last scene was proof that the cameraman stuck to his job, since the last few panels on the negative showed a great blur as though the falling rocks had covered the lens.

The shock to Miss Rhodes's nerves was so great that she was unable to work for a couple of days, and Cameraman Griffin's injuries also laid him up.

MARY MACLAREN GETS GOOD WETTING.

On a yachting trip with friends last week, Mary MacLaren, Universal star, had a harrowing experience, besides which the joyriders nearly lost that necessary adjunct, their chaperon. The yacht was a small affair, and held a party headed for Catalina Island. The boat left San Pedro early in the afternoon, and expected to make the trip by 6 or half-past at most. Instead of which it was 11 o'clock at night when she finally made port, with all hands drenched, weary and frightened.

Midway of the channel the small craft struck a squall, and as the owner had no assistant in handling the boat, it got about in a trough of the sea, and there was a lively time for a while. In shifting the sails, the boom struck the lady who was acting as chaperon of the party, knocking her overboard. She was speedily hauled aboard, however, and suffered no injury except a thorough chilling.

But on the arrival of the party at Catalina, and ever since, Miss MacLaren has been kept busy answering the question as to how that chaperon happened to fall overboard.

LITTLE BESSIE LOVE LIVES UP TO NAME.

Again demonstrating the fact that Bessie Love is rightly named, that young woman last week gave evidence of the kindness of her heart and her love of animals, while working on the Mojave Desert, making scenes for her first Vitagraph production, Bret Harte's "The Judgment of Bolinas Plain."

It seems the story demanded the use of a two-weeks-old puppy and the tiniest kitten obtainable. These small involuntary actors were secured, heartlessly torn from their mammas and taken out into the cruel desert. While certain scenes in which they were not used were being taken, the animals were left in an automobile.

It was right in the midst of a scene, out under the blazing sun and a full mile from the automobiles, that afternoon, that Bessie remembered her puppy and kitten. "Oh," she cried, right in a place in the scene which didn't call for an "Oh!" "Oh, those poor little creatures in the automobile! Did anybody water 'em?" Nobody had. As before stated, Bessie was a whole mile away from the little creatures, but she mounted a horse and fled back to their rescue. She found the little things quite gone with the heat and thirst, and it was only after working over them for half an hour that she brought them back to consciousness. They were too young to lap up the water, so it had to be poured down their throats, but when they were fully restored, Bessie was a glad youngster.

"Do you know you've used up a whole hour and a half of the company's time?" demanded one of the members of the company.

"Oh, very well, I'll pay," answered Bessie blandly; "that is, if the company will give me the difference between the cost of the time we spent and the time it would have taken to go back to town for another pair of animals!" And nothing more was said.

THOUGHT SHOULD BE PAID FOR LOOKING.

After all, says Frank Keenan, Pathe star, who is producing pictures at the Brunton studios, after all, what's the use?

The Keenan company has just returned from the Mojave desert, where under the direction of Eliot Howe, several scenes for the star's latest picture were filmed, several men of the locality being used as "atmosphere" in mining scenes. When the work was over and the men were lined up for their pay, it was found that apparently the entire male population of the Mojave had turned out, and when only the fifteen men who had been selected and used in the picture were paid, things looked pretty much like trouble.

"Two particularly aggressive miners were bound to get by the guard and be paid," said Mr. Keenan, "but when the last of the fifteen had been paid, the assistant director threw away the money bag, exclaiming that they were broke. That turned things to a laugh. Just as they were about to go, the assistant director turned to the crowd of men and said, 'Honest to God, boys, did you think you had worked in that picture?' A big laugh went up.

"'Naw,' they roared, 'but we thought we oughta be paid for just watching this here play!'"

SHE DIDN'T KNOW 'TWAS DOROTHY GISH.

Telling one's favorite motion picture star just how good he or she is bids fair to become a national pastime, as is amply shown by certain heavy mail bags that arrive at local studios. But to become frank and give advice on personal appearance is a new departure, unconsciously inaugurated a few nights ago at the Chocolate Shop, when Dorothy Gish's Paramount company spent the hours between 11:30 p.m. and 7 a.m. making the first scenes for her newest picture, "The Hope Chest."

The shop had been rented for the night, from closing time until the company could finish, and in order to lose no time, the company arrived thirty minutes early and ate a midnight lunch. The scenes to be taken required costumes for waitresses, and in order to keep the character of the place, Miss Gish had ordered the Chocolate Shop costumes copied.

At 11:30 p.m., one of the real waiter girls suddenly discovered that there were four more girls on the job than was usual, and coming by the place where Dorothy was standing, she said: "When did you come?" The Little Disturber replied that she had just arrived. "Well, girlie," answered the waitress, "your dress is all right, but while I don't want to butt into your private affairs, you'd better take a tip from me and not let the manager see you with that lip rouge. One girl that did that lasted just thirty minutes here!"

And Dorothy obediently and solemnly rubbed the make-up off her lips.

DENATURED WIRELESS HART'S COMPANY DID.

Several hours of excitement and worry were caused to William S. Hart and his company this week when Los Angeles authorities telephoned the studio and ordered that work be suspended until a man was sent out to investigate the wireless apparatus which had been installed on the studio grounds for some of the thrilling scenes in "The Border Wireless." Nerves were tense at the studio until the officer came, for everyone realized the seriousness of a violation of the law as regards the erection of wireless stations.

When the man arrived he carefully scrutinized every wire of the apparatus inside the studio. It was electrically connected and a touch of the key made the stream of sparks shoot between the points. Then he went outside and saw the aerials spiking skyward from the roof of the tower which had been constructed. He shook his head.

"Too real for fun," he announced gravely. "Are they connected?" Then the electrician explained and demonstrated that the aerials were in no way connected with the apparatus, so that messages could neither be sent nor received. It was with deep relief that Mr. Hart and his company heard the officer finally inform them that, so long as no connections were made with the aerials, there was no violation of the law and that work could be resumed.

"The Border Wireless" deals with an entirely new phase of the German spy system in this country, and also serves to reveal Mr. Hart in an entirely new character from anything he has heretofore played.

LYTELL DOES REAL B'GOSH ROPING.

Bert Lytell, the young Metro star, was the central figure in a bit of real "Wild West" stuff that wasn't in the picture when he lassoed and brought back an Indian pony which ran away during the filming of scenes on the Metro lot in Hollywood the other day.

The Lytell company was working on a Mexican street set, when Eagle Eye, a member of the cast, left his pony, Baldy, untethered. The animal took a notion to bolt, and before anybody could stop it, dashed through the studio gates and headed for Santa Monica boulevard, a block and a half away.

Lytell himself was mounted on "Bess," a magnificent big black mare. A cowpuncher's coil of rope hung from the pommel of his saddle. The screen star caught a glimpse of Baldy's hind hoofs as they vanished through the studio portals, and he spurred his own mount in pursuit.

The chase led through Santa Monica boulevard to Gower street and thence toward Melrose avenue. Lytell caught up with his quarry near the latter street, and, whirling the lariat over his head, he threw it, the noose settling neatly about Baldy's neck. After that he led the runaway, now thoroughly subdued, back to the studios.

TOLD HIM COYOTE WAS BROUGHT UP PET.

After all, those film stars are trustful fellows. Take Roy Stewart, Triangle's wild western actor, for instance, and the coyote——

But here's the sad tale. A week ago Stewart got a letter from a film fan in Arizona, stating that he was sending the star a pet of his own as a present, intimating that parting with the creature gave him pain, but that his admiration for the star made him equal to the sacrifice. The next day a box arrived by express, through the cracks of which could be seen a gray coat and a pair of wildly-glaring eyes. However, a trip by express would account for that in any animal. Mr. Stewart opened the box, and out leaped a young coyote, which loped quickly away. The actor having his lassoo handy, promptly roped the creature, pulling it in gently so as not to alarm it. Still believing the word of his unknown friend, he stooped to pet the coyote. Quick as a flash the coyote grabbed his finger. Stewart thought that was the rough way the little thing had of playing, but when the beast sunk his teeth deep into the finger, Stewart decided the matter had gone too far, and promptly clapped the box down over the animal, which nowadays is tethered on the Triangle lot. Stewart has sentenced him to the work-or-fight law, expecting to use Mr. Coyote in his next picture.

"But you plumb can't tame coyotes," said Mr. Stewart; "no, sir; not any more than you can make a lion teach kindergarten."

LOUISE GLAUM HAS REVERTED TO TYPE.

Reminiscent of the days when she used to be a vampire and ride wild horses in some of her early western productions, Louise Glaum, Paralta star, has been riding a pinto pony in the high San Bernardino Mountains for the last three weeks, where she has been taking scenes of her latest picture, "The Goddess of Lost Lake." Nearly all of the scenes are in the rugged and impressive scenic grandeur of the mountains.

Two near accidents befell the star. Once in riding through the thick pine woods the horse swerved under some heavy branches, which all but took Miss Glaum from the saddle and scratched her face severely. But she stopped the bleeding with grease paint and kept on. Another time she rode down a steep slope at a gallop to the lip of a precipice, where she was to throw the horse on its hind legs for the stop. Just as it reared, the thick carpet of dry pine needles underfoot caused the horse to fall, all but rolling over the cliff, rider and all.

TALES OF LOVE AND WAR

THRILLING EPISODES TOLD IN MOTION PICTURES.

Grauman's.

The folly of jealousy is well told in the most recent Ince-Paramount photoplay, "Green Eyes," opening at Grauman's Monday, September 2, and starring Dorothy Dalton. The story, which was written by John Lynch and picturized by R. Cecil Smith, deals with a man who marries a girl much younger than himself. The girl, young, good to look at, and filled with the social malady, soon arouses her husband's jealousy, resulting in a quarrel, the wife leaving. The production is typically an Ince photoplay, well staged and artistically sub-titled.

Tally's Broadway.

"Her Only Way" is a story of today presenting Norma Talmadge in the character of a simple American girl whose life is lived in the refined atmosphere of a quiet high-class home in a middle-sized American town. Never once during the entire picture does Miss Talmadge depart from this delightful characterization of an equally delightful American girl. The whole story breathes an atmosphere of pure, noble-minded girlhood, and is without doubt one of the best bits of acting Miss Talmadge has ever done. This story is from the pen of that successful dramatist, George Scarborough. It is the story of small town love and intrigue—with a surprise at the end. This picture will be shown for one week only, commencing Monday, September 2, at Tally's Broadway.

Kinema.

There are other things in war besides battles and bombs, but no one seems to have found them until Cecil DeMille and Jeanie MacPherson created "Till I Come Back to You," the new Artcraft picture which begins at Kinema today. True to their reputation for originality, the writer and producer have dealt with the great conflict from a heretofore untried angle. The story is concerned with the psychology of the struggle, rather than the actual fighting. Bryant Washburn is the hero; Florence Vidor the girl. Added to "Till I Come Back to You," Kinema this week presents a "Smiling" Billy Parsons comedy.

Symphony.

Is a woman's secret of her own past hers to keep, or must she tell it to the man who asks her to be his wife? This is one of the big themes of "Playthings," the Bluebird photoplay, starring Fritzi Brunette and Lew Cody. It comes to the Symphony today. The photoplay was adapted from the stage drama, "Playthings," by Sidney Toler, and the author has written a vital phillipic that contains its direct lesson for every parent and for every girl. He scathingly arraigns that policy of many mothers and fathers in "shielding their daughters from the world," as they term it, by keeping them in ignorance, thereby making them the easier possible victims of the unscrupulous afterwards.

Quinn's Rialto.

At Quinn's Rialto, Jewel Productions, the sponsor of such well-known hits as "The Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," "Pay Me," "Come Through," "For Husbands Only" and other successes, is presenting the latest masterpiece, "Crashing Through to Berlin," a six-reel war picture, reviewing the events of the world's greatest war from its inception to the present smash of the Allies on the Hun lines. The photoplay was produced by Carl Laemmle. It is a historical document, a narrative of the world war. The film reviews recent history, from the beginning of humanity's tragedy to the present. It depicts the real flesh-and-blood characters and the highlight events of the last four years.

Clune's Broadway.

When Sessue Hayakawa first saw "Madam Butterfly" on the stage, it suggested to him a sequel story—the son, grown to manhood, going forth to avenge the mother's honor. The idea stayed with him until he had built up the story in all its details. And now it is the privilege of Mr. Clune to offer that sequel, under the title of "His Birthright," to his patrons at his Broadway theater, beginning today. "The Birthright" will be presented with all the Oriental atmosphere that Japanese flags, lanterns, burning incense and kimono-clad ushers can impart. The music will, likewise, be no small feature of the entertainment.

Miller's.

Because it is so absolutely true to life and so convincing in every detail of its construction, the new production, "A Hoosier Romance," based on the famous poem of the same name by James Whitcomb Riley, seems certain to have a wide appeal. The stars of this unusual production are pretty Colleen Moore, Thomas Jefferson and Harry McCoy, supported by a large number of other well-known players. The story is that of a young girl on an Indiana farm, whose mother is dead and whose father—his nature warped by the struggle with 150 per cent. loan sharks—refuses to recognize the child's affection for a young man of her own age employed on the farm, but insists on her marriage to a widower owning adjoining property.

Alhambra.

Herbert Rawlinson, one of the most popular of the screen's young heroes, is one star of "Out of the Night," the big photodrama by E. Lloyd Sheldon, which is to open at the Alhambra today, and beautiful Catherine Calvert, who scored an instantaneous hit in "A Romance of the Underworld" a few weeks ago, is the other star. "Out of the Night" is a clean story, full of dramatic incident. The heroine, by force of circumstances, becomes an outcast of society and is brought back to her own through the noble influence of a young artist, who selects her as a model for a painting he is commissioned to make for the Magdalene Home. The story is said to rush to a tremendous and well-nigh overwhelming climax.

Exciting.

AUTHOR OF NEW COMEDY TELLS ALL ABOUT GIRLS.

BY GRACE KINGSLEY.

A NEW play is like news of a baby or a wedding—you may not approve, but you get a thrill just the same! There are always such wonderful betting possibilities for the future, aren't there?

And now we are looking forward to being thrilled by Frank Mandel's new play, "A Perfect Day," over which Director Fred Butler in shirtsleeves, Author Frank Mandel in a Palm Beach suit, and leading lady Mollie McIntyre in pale blue Scotch gingham, together with the various other members of the Morosco company are perspiring at rehearsal these hot summer days.

You may be especially thrilled, in fact, as "A Perfect Day" may be considered to be a sort of intensive study in girliology, a sort of dramatic Follies! As Miss McIntyre says: "Men go to see plays about clever girls just to see the girls, but women go because they want to see how the girls do it!"

"There are two kinds of girls in the world," said Mr. Mandel in epigrammatic and philosophic mood, the other day, "the sort that makes a man say, 'My, but she's a wonderful girl!' and the sort that makes him say, 'Gee, but I'm a wonderful fellow!' He falls fast and hard for the first kind, but he slips slowly and surely for the second. And slipping slowly is apt to be so much more final, because, just easing along that way, he's likely to slide so much farther than he intended, whereas in a swift fall he can pick himself up and make a quick getaway!"

That really is the theme of the new Mandel play, though it is written around a wild young New Yorker, to be played by Robert Ellis, and it also furnishes a fine role for that popular favorite, Richard Dix. Because, after all, what would be the use of clever girls without any men to practice on? Half a dozen lovely young women illustrate Mr. Mandel's ideas. First, of course, comes vivacious and brilliant Mollie McIntyre; then there is Dora Mae Howe, in a delightful ingenue role; besides which there is a newly-discovered young actress, Emily Poynter, who has a good bit and whom Fred Butler bids us watch; Marion Van Tyne plays a society girl, and half a dozen other pretty young women will flit in and out.

"As a matter of fact," said Mr. Mandel, "all the playwrights now-a-days are digging down among their ideas for plays for women. For you see, the war is liable to carry off your hero any day. And the demand being for comedy, naturally the leading roles are written for ingenues. So that today the girl who is tall and stately may just as well go and learn to stenog or become a Red Cross nurse, because now-a-days we want 'em cuddly and cute. They tell me that with the screen it is the same—leading women are being engaged by the footage system."

Not that the new play is all comedy. It has a serious underlying meaning, the motto of which might be said to be, "The world makes way for the man who knows where he is going."

But the seriousness is quite sugar-coated with comedy.

"I got the idea," said the playwright, "one evening while I was sitting on the veranda of my hotel overlooking Washington Square, where in the park so many idlers loiter. 'What's the reason,' I asked myself, 'that some men succeed and others don't? It isn't all a matter of talent.' Later I went to a dinner party at Rector's and met a lot of other failures—only they were rich, but they had never done anything worth while, so really they were blood-brothers to the idlers in the park. That night I thought of the contrast. 'What if a fine and clever girl came into the life of a fellow like that,' I thought, 'one who would refuse to fall for his riches and his prestige?' Which sounds banal enough, but out of it grew my play."

Of course "A Perfect Day" is full of up-to-the-minute allusions to Liberty Bonds, taxi-girls, heatless days and drinkless nights, and there are a score of those smart epigrams without which no modern play can hope to get over.

It's during the discussion between the hero and his friend concerning the gay chorus girls the hero has been used to mixing with and the gay society girl whom he has neglected.

"Here's all the difference between the way you win the two," says the friend, "in low society, you slip the girl a diamond or a check; in high society, you give her a little hug or you read her poetry."

"In other words," says the hero, "in low society, the price is high, and in high society the price is low."

Mr. Mandel is highly enthusiastic over Mollie McIntyre's work in the leading role—a part calling for finesse as well as vivacity and flexibility of mood, and he has written another play called "Enter Jean," which he hopes Mr. Morosco will produce later, and in which the leading role is absolutely suited to the new Morosco leading lady.

As regards the mecanical construction of the play, an absolutely novel method is used in the second act, the amazing effect of which is to make the scenery appear to fade away, reappear and again disappear before the spectator's eyes. All theater-goers are familiar with the old-fashioned revolving set, like that used in "On Trial," which necessitated the momentary lowering of the curtain. In "The Perfect Day," the curtain is not lowered. The scenes in question represent the instant transformation of an old-time livery stable into a modern garage and back again.

And while Mr. Mandel is quite willing to let you in on the workings of his mind, he won't explain to you at all about the scenery!

MUSICAL.

Community.

FEDERATION OF CLUBS.

GREAT PLANS FOR THE ADVANCEMENT OF MUSIC.

The California State Federation of Musical Clubs, under the direction of the president, Mrs. Cecil Frankel of Hollywood, is laying great plans for the advancement of music throughout the State. The object of this organization is not only to stimulate and encourage the work of each individual club, but to more closely unite their efforts for a State-wide unanimity of purpose for all movements which tend to the development of a musical commonwealth.

It is the intention of the federation at an early date to place a song leader in every theater and motion picture theater in California to lead and encourage community singing. Concerts will be given at the naval bases and army cantonments of Los Angeles, the bay cities of San Francisco, and San Diego.

Charles C. Draa has charge of the Los Angeles district, and is the first to provide such concerts for the federation. Tuesday evening, August 27, the following named artists rendered a one-hour programme at the naval base at San Pedro: Nell Lockwood, dialect songs; Frances Berkowitz, violinist; Miriam Cherniavsky, cellist; Theophilus Fitz, tenor; accompanists, Mrs. J. W. Turner, Mrs. Bessie Berkowitz Levey, and Miss Alice E. Harrison.

Similar programmes will be provided at regular intervals during the period of the war.

SONGS OF THE ORIENT AT GAMUT CLUB.

A delightful programme consisting of sacred songs and chants of the Egyptians, songs of Persia and songs of India, were given by Miss Nell Lockwood, contralto, at the Gamut Club Friday night. In the Egyptian group were Bantock's "Invocation to the Nile" and "The Unutterable," and Thomas's "Invocation to the Sun God, Ra." In the Persian group were found the national hymn of Persia, Korsakow's "Song of India" and Bantock's "Drinking Song." The Indian group included Finden's "Indian Love Lyrics" and Bantock's "Nautch Girl."

Helen Letspeich Gale accompanied Miss Lockwood at the piano. Dorothy Knapp of the Gould School of Dancing, rendered an "Egyptian Cymbal Dance."

Students' Repertoire Recital.

A repertoire recital for the pupils of Margaret Goetz will be given in Blanchard Hall on the morning of Saturday, September 7, at 11:30. The programme will include folk songs of France, America, England, Spain, Russia, Scandinavia, Ireland, Italy and Scotland. Miss Goetz will be assisted by Mrs. Edith Davis, soprano; Mrs. Ina Ryder, Miss Grace Morgan, Miss Helen Brulin, Harold Maynard and Franklin J. Newman.

Lester Donahue for France.

Lester Donahue will leave soon for France to cheer up the boys "over there" with his delightful piano playing. He will play in the Y.M.C.A. and K.C. huts and hospitals. Mr. Donahue, who has done much volunteer work at camps, will play at Camp Dix three days. He has recently appeared with Maggie Teyte at concerts on Long Island. He and his mother have been guests at the Philip Sousa home on Long Island.

SCREENLAND HAPPENINGS.

Uncle Sam's second big eight-reel war picture, will be shown at the Alhambra starting next Sunday.

Superba.

Just as the famous lad of history saved Holland from a flood by sticking his thumb in the hole in the dike, so "Nosey" White, a regular red-blooded American boy, saved his country from the damaging effects of the sea of Prussian propaganda by sticking his nose into the affairs of one Thomas Cummings, alleged Scotchman, but in reality a long arm of the Wilhelmstrasse. It all takes place in "The Yellow Dog," Jewel Productions' sensational expose of unconscious propaganda being spread broadcast by thoughtless Americans, which comes to the Superba today.

Garrick.

Film fans who seek the frivolous, funny side of life will want to make a pilgrimage to the Garrick this week, starting today, to see Charlie Chaplin in his brand-new comedy scream, "Triple Trouble." And, as if Chaplin couldn't furnish enough fun, the management has booked as a running mate to the million-dollar comedian, Taylor Holmes, in his latest comedy drama, "A Pair of Sixes," adapted from the famous stage play of the same name. "Triple Trouble" is a brand-new Chaplin comedy that has never been shown anywhere on the western coast. "A Pair of Sixes" is said to be even better on the screen than it was on the stage.

De Luxe.

Mary Pickford will be seen today and tomorrow at the De Luxe in "How Could You, Jean." In this picture little Mary is just as pleasing as she ever has been, and the story is without question one of the most amusing in films. The De Luxe programme for the rest of the week consists of the following splendid features: Charles Ray in "The Claws of the Hun," Tuesday and Wednesday; Wallace Reid, in "Believe Me, Zantippe," Thursday and Friday; and Saturday, Edna Goodrich in "Who Loves Him Best," while the Sunday feature will be "Hit the Trail Holiday," in which George M. Cohen appears.

Palace.

William S. Hart in "Shark Monroe," Roscoe Arbuckle in "Good Night Nurse," and a Christie comedy, "Don't Believe Everything," are the attractions that make the Palace programme interesting. Hart is seen in a role that is quite different from anything that he has ever attempted before. "Shark Monroe" is a story dealing with the exciting life by the dwellers in the Far North. There are many beautiful snow scenes throughout the play which are delightfully refreshing. Hart is supported by Katherine McDonald.

STAGE.

"WHY MARRY?" CLUNE'S.

MAGICIAN AT MASON AND GOOD THINGS EVERYWHERE.

Clune's Auditorium.

"Why Marry?" the comedy by Jesse Lynch Williams, after a sensationally successful engagement covering months at the Astor Theater, New York, is to be seen at Clune's Auditorium, Monday night. The distinguished members of the company seen in New York, including Nat C. Goodwin, Edmund Breese, Ernest Lawford, Leonard Mudie, Lotus Robb, Louise Randolph, Anne Morrison and the others will appear here.

Mr. Williams, being a fiction writer and not a playwright, knew little or nothing of the ways and the why and the wherefores of the theatrical world. But he had won one real admirer by his writing. Roi Cooper Megrue, author himself of no less than six of the most successful plays ever produced in this country, including "It Pays to Advertise," "Under Cover," "Under Fire," "Seven Chances," and so on, liked Mr. Williams's stories best of any he read. So, when he heard that Mr. Williams had a play, he looked up, first the play and then the author; offered himself as sort of godfather to the play, and through his suggestions smoothed out the kinky spots and eventually was the means of having it produced.

Mason.

Carter, the great American magician, who created a sensation two years ago, comes to the Mason for an engagement of one week, beginning tomorrow night, with an entire new company, a special corps of assistants, and fifteen tons of magical accouterments and accessories. It is said that Carter's illusions quite surpass anything of the kind that he has ever attempted before, and included in his repertoire are many that are new to the conjurer's art. In Egypt, Carter rode on camels into the heart of that mystic land in quest of new mysteries to show a gaping world. Near Luxor he saw the musical statue of Memnon, and evolved the origin of a seemingly miraculous thing called psycho—an insenate wooden image of an Egyptian child, as large as a doll, which sits or sets on a cylinder of glass and divines the thoughts of its auditors.

The new musical farce, "Up in the Air," will be presented at the Mason for one week only, beginning Monday, September 9. It comes direct from its month's run at the Cort, San Francisco.

Orpheum.

Two well-known and favorite stars of vaudeville top the Orpheum bill of the week opening Monday matinee, September 2, in joint headline position. One is Ralph Herz and the other is Cecil Cunningham. Herz will bring a lot of new and fetching musical comedy material, which he knows so well how to put over. Miss Cunningham, tall, statuesque and lovely, has material mostly from the pen of Jean Havez. She has the added attraction of goodly pulchritude, and she wears gowns "as is gowns." Carl Jorn, the famous tenor, will vary his numbers from the list given before. Billie Burke sends a satire called "Levitation," which is put over by Prof. J. Edward Magee. Ray Fern and Marion Davis have "A Nightmare Review." Also come Keane and White, she at the piano and he doing a lot of tricks of legerdemain to her music. Harris and Manion and Gordon and Kern will be retained.

Morosco.

Beginning with today's matinee, Oliver Morosco will present at the Morosco Theater a second week of the famous farce comedy success, "Little Miss Brown," with Molly McIntyre in the leading role. Since its opening performance here, this comedy of mix-ups has been the biggest sort of a laughing hit, and crowded houses have been the rule at every performance. The second week of this comedy will be its positively last here. "Little Miss Brown" is a play which will send you home feeling that an evening has been spent entirely to great advantage. Molly McIntyre, Richard Dix, Robert Ellis, Marion Vantine, David Butler, Joseph Eggenton, Florence Oberle, Dora Mae Howe, Harry Duffield and many other Morosco favorites are seen in the cast. There will be a special holiday matinee of "Little Miss Brown," on Monday.

Pantages.

"From Quakertown to Broadway," a musical comedy that tells in a funny way the hardships that befall any country girl when she invades the gay white way, will be the coming week's feature at Pantages. Marion Munson, the distinguished character actress, will be the special added feature on the coming bill in "The Spy Nest," a sensational dramatic sketch in which the star plays all the fourteen roles. Al Wolman, the clever songster, will play a return engagement next week. Emily Darrell, in her comic sketch, "Late for Rehearsal;" Coscia and Verdi, instrumentalists, and the Three Bartos, athletes, will be other features on the new bill.

Burbank.

With the new schedule of summertime prices making a big hit with Burbank audiences, and with no let up in the class of entertainment, the new vaudeville and photoplay combination programme promises large audiences all next week. There will be six new acts and a first-run feature photoplay, Mrs. Vernon Castle again graces the screen in her latest cinema attraction, "The Girl from Bohemia." The vaudeville half is headed by the team of Howe and Belle, two comedy, singing and dancing artists. Other acts on the new bill are Billy Starkey, monologist; Esther Baily, singing soloist; Dolmar and Duchess, in a novel dancing and violin combination act; Tom and Gertie Moore, in dialect songs and stories.

ELLIS CLUB TO SING AT ARMY CAMPS.

CONCERTS FOR THE SOLDIERS PLANNED FOR THE COMING SEASON.

The board of directors of the Ellis Club have decided to devote much time this season in singing for the various army cantonments situated near Los Angeles. Since the worth of singing is being more fully recognized, it is hoped by the management of the Ellis Club that the citizens of Los Angeles and vicinity will co-operate with this plan and voluntarily offer their support to further this mental preparation of our soldiers and of the ones left behind.

Nine concerts are in contemplation for this winters' endeavor, including concerts at the Sumbarine Base, Balloon School, Fort MacArthur, etc., besides the concerts for associate members and friends in Los Angeles.

The Ellis Club is a chorus of male voices with a maximum roster of 100 men. There are vacancies in the various parts of the active singing body, also, which have been occasioned by enlistments. Men with good voices will find a welcome.

Persons desiring seats for the Los Angeles concerts, or singers wishing to associate themselves with this club, are invited to communicate with the secretary, at No. 317 West Avenue 55. The officers of the club are: President, Judge Walter Bordwell; vice-president, E. S. Shank; honorary vice-president, Dr. W. Jarvis Barlow; honorary vice-president, Perry Widener; past president, James Slauson; secretary, H. D. Alfonso.

Last year the musical director and the accompanist were J. B. Poulin and Mrs. Robinson, and it is expected they will be elected again this year.

Paid in His Own Coin.

The son of a wealthy man was given a much-needed lesson in politeness by a poor gate-keeper. One rainy day as the young man was proudly driving his new car he came to a toll gate and asked haughtily what he was to pay.

"Ten cents, if you please," said the civil gate-keeper.

Instead of handing the money to him the self-conceited young man, with the air of a grand duke, threw half a dollar carelessly on the wet and muddy ground.

"There, take your change out of that," he said.

The keeper stooped for the silver, and placing the change exactly on the same spot, walked into his cottage.

The lesson was not wasted, for the boy learned that it does not pay to be impolite or discourteous to any one.—[Irish World.

INTRODUCING

Blackstone Fashions for Autumn

The Dominant Notes—Conservatism—Individuality—Variety—Quality

—This exposition of the fashions, marking the opening of the season of Autumn and Winter, is of course, of unusual interest this year. The fashions created to date, are so varied that their name is legion, and yet, the ultra—the extreme—has been frowned upon and conservatism is Queen of the season. Tuesday we present a gathering of fashions in Coats, Wraps, Suits, Frocks, Millinery, Blouses, Hosiery and Bags, and the many accessories that contribute the styles for the immediate months ahead—Distinctive modes from the most authentic sources portray worth-while and enduring innovations that are entirely in keeping with the spirit of the times. You are cordially invited to this unfolding of the fashions of the new season.

Picturing
A Decidedly Smart
Misses' Suit

—One of the very new and charming suits, designed for Misses.

—Developed in Reindeer Velour-de-Laine.

—Note the high, military collar and pockets of Nutria fur.

—The tucks and wide girdle which ties in the back, gives this model stunning lines of youth.

The Hat

—Is of Mole skin with irregular tricorn lines. The frame at each corner has been indented, forming two points, one a little longer than the other.

—Fur covered buttons on the three plain sides and finished with small novelty striped quills. This hat has a soft crown.

Of Unfailing Superiority
"McCallum" Silk Hosiery

—Of all the fashion sections of this store, none are more complete and ready to satisfy your every whim than is the hosiery section.

—Particularly do we speak of the predominating new shades for fall in McCallum's silk hosiery.

—New rich browns and tans, friendly Taupes and other luxurious shades, not forgetting the elegance of black, which is used again and again with pronounced distinction.

This Sketch
Shows Distinctive Afternoon Gown

—The crowning triumph of a noted designer.

—A gracefully draped model of heavy imported Navy Blue Satin.

—Over a drop skirt of Terra Cotta silk Duvetyn, the latter embroidered in Navy and Old Gold, with motifs of the same at sides; round neck.

A Creation
Portraying

—The stunning and fashionable to a degree.

—Large soft crown of brocaded silk in Capucine and embroidered in Silver.

—Slightly raised at left side to show the hair.

—Monkey fur trimming makes this hat a delightful novelty.

Silks and Velvets—Fashion Textiles for Autumn

—Street dresses and costumes derive their richness and attractiveness from the fabrics of which they are fashioned. In this category, lustrous satins take first place. They are shown in the correct Fall weights and colorings—Charmeuse Satin, Satin-de-Lyon—Satin Francaise—Satin Willow and heavy suiting satins, and others with high-sounding names. Then there are Bengalines, La-Jerz in a very heavy quality of silk jersey weave. The more elaborate costumes and gowns are expressed in the richer costume and chiffon velvets. These are shown in a wonderful range of handsome colorings—40 and 44 inches wide.

Admire This Handsome Wrap

—An inspiration in soft Taupe Velour-de-Laine.

—Modeled with large Kolinsky fur collar.

—This striking model, possesses many of the season's newest and most exclusive coat features.

—Is cut extremely full, except at the hem, which is made to conform with the new dresses.

Indescribably
Beautiful

—The hat surmounting this coat figure is in African Brown and is fashioned on new, clever, youthful lines.

—Has tiny rolled rim in front with the back of the hat unusually high. Extreme flare at the top, giving bandeaux effect.

—Burnt Ostrich Aigrettes extend from either side.

The Style Dictates of Fashion Say Velour Bags

—Wonderful creations are shown in black and colors. Some have heavy antique-looking, sterling silver frames—art achievements.

—Others have antique Dutch silver frames and still others with frames of imitation Tortoise shell or ivory.

—The vogue of fringe is evidenced in the fact that nearly every bag is trimmed with fringe or chenille tassels.

—Daily the display of new autumn styles in women's bags is being augmented.

Lately
From "Over There"
A Dress

—Visualizing the correct new Autumn silhouette to perfection.

—Made of a soft velour cloth in a new shade of Brown.

—Narrow at the hem, but fashioned as many are, with deep plaits to make walking easy and graceful.

An All Black
Chapeaux

—A demurely fashioned creation of black velvet, with rolled brim. The fashion newness of this model, lies in the arrangement of Ostrich band which is curled forward and seems to grow from under the raised flange of velvet.

—There is a little French tip placed at the right side back.

Rich, Unobtrusive—Furs a Distinguishing Note

—Elegant ready-to-wear furs, which this season are more beautiful than ever and in greater variety of style and price. The garments that compose this fur collection are of unquestionable genuineness. They are expertly judged qualities and authentic fashions. Then there are the new fur trimmings in a more wonderful display than ever before. They are of a high standard of quality and comprise everything in width from a quarter of an inch up to 10 and 12 inches. Included among these popular fur trimmings are Nutria, French Seal, Australian Mole, Pearl Coney, Genet and many other fashionable styles.

This Drawing Depicts a Suit

—Cut on beautifully tailored lines.

—Developed in Navy Blue Tricotine, smartly flared, finger tip length coat. Skirt cut quite narrow at the hem.

—Buttoned-up collar; new flap pockets and buckle belt.

Jaunty Turban

—In Peacock colors.

—This dainty turban is made of hackle and breast feathers criss-crossed, prettily combining with the velvet foundation.

Fringes
Decreed by Fashion

—On dresses.
—On hats.
—On scarfs.
—On hand bags.
—And in endless other places.

—A superb collection of the very latest ideas in fringe for trimming.
—In widths up to 18 ins.
—Are plain silk thread fringes, cord fringe, Bullion and Chenille fringe.
—As well as many exclusive styles.
—And an exceptional line of colored silk fringe for Autumn.

Striking Limousine
Wrap

—Of silk Peau-De-Pesh in a new shade of Taupe.

—Cut on the newest and most exclusive wrap lines.

—The front is effectively turned back, banded with Kolinsky fur and the cuffs likewise.

Picturesque Hat

—Made of Taupe Hatter's Plush.

—Entirely new lines and just a little extreme.

—French Ostrich tips, artistically arranged.

LATEST NEWS FROM STUDIOS.

is now waiting for his next story. A great many of the exteriors for the Holmes picture had to be taken along the docks and on the decks of an ocean liner, and accordingly Director Cabanne took his entire company, first to San Diego, and then to San Francisco, to get the necessary background material.

But before any shots could be made, special government permits had to be obtained—not an easy thing in these wartime conditions. First a permit had to be secured to allow the company to go within the war zone districts established along the water front. Then a United States customs pass had to be obtained to allow Mr. Cabanne to take a camera on board of a ship. And finally another permit from the government coast patrol to take a photograph within the three-mile limit. For a while it taxed the resources of Triangle's production department to the utmost to gain possession of these permits, but in time all were secured and the pictures successfully taken. The incident illustrates, however, the care with which the government is guarding every bit of water front from the pernicious effects of alien activity.

Colvin With Mirror.

William G. Colvin, well known to the theatrical profession, has been appointed to the Pacific Coast management of the New York Dramatic Mirror and has established western headquarters at No. 430 South Broadway in this city. Mr. Colvin's wide acquaintance and pleasing personality will no doubt stand him in good stead in this creditable connection.

Bobbie's Busy Day.

"And I used to be an actor!" sighed Bobby Vernon on the day of the strike, as he balanced himself on the top step of a ladder in an Al Christie set and hung a sign bearing the words, "What is a home without a mother?" above a door. He suggested that the motto be changed to read, "What is a studio without a carpenter?" Whereupon Al Christie ordered him to help move the piano, put prop books in the bookcase, smoke a cigarette and put the stub in the ash tray on the table, remove the umbrella stand from the hall, push three scenic sets into place, put up a cook stove and then, if he still had time and strength, put on his make-up and play the hero.

Thrilling Legal Question.

By the by, as most of the carpenters and workmen who struck the other day in the motion-picture studios belonged to the Lasky Home Guards, and as the duty of the Home Guards is to quell strikes, what did they do about themselves?

Charles Gunn at Camp.

Charles Gunn, Paralta leading man, and one of the most popular of picture actors, expects to go to Camp Kearny this week and play the star part in a play to be given by the Raymond Wells Players before the soldiers at the camp theater. The play will be either "The Deep Purple" or "Alias Jimmy Valentine," it is not yet decided which. In both these roles Mr. Gunn made a conspicuous success on the stage before going into pictures.

Relatives Visit Miss Keller.

A family reunion occurred at the Brunton studio the other day, when Helen Keller's brother from American Lake and her mother from Alabama came out to see her.

Last Straw on His Hump.

Thinking of the simple life somewhere is what Bert Dorris, of Metro, is doing these days. Dorris has been in motion pictures so long that they're beginning to call him "Pop." But the final straw came the other day, and Bert thinks it's quitting time for him.

"It was bad enough," wailed Dorris, "when they showed me the scene and property plots for Bert Lytell's picture, 'Making Good.' All they wanted was Mexican oil fields in California, Mexican rebels, cactus patches, sharpshooters, Spanish dancing girls and a team of oxen. But in 'The Spender,' Lytell's next picture—" Dorris sighed and threw up his hands—"I guess I'll have to quit. Do you know what? I'm supposed to furnish an iceberg!"

Practical Madge.

Madge Kirby, Vitagraph star, got clawed up a bit one day last week in taking scenes for the serial in which she is appearing under Larry Semon's direction.

"And what do you do now when you have to work with the bear?" was asked.

"Well," answered Miss Kirby, "I just approach him with a heart full of prayer and a hand full of jelly beans."

Yorska Begins Acting.

Production of "The Infernal Net," written by Sarah Bernhardt, with Yorska, the well-known French emotional actress in the star role, will be begun within two weeks by Matzene, the producer, at the Brunton studios. Mme. Bernhardt's story is now being adapted for the screen by Verne Hardin Porter.

Bebe Works for Soldiers.

Under the auspices of the Stage Women's War Relief, Miss Bebe Daniels, the charming Rolin-Pathe star, will hold a reception at the Pin-Ton, No. 427 South Broadway, on Wednesday, September 4, from 3 to 5 p.m. Refreshments will be served and the entire receipts will be turned over to the relief fund. Miss Daniels will present her photographs to her guests.

Not Quite Prepared.

The employment agencies of Kansas City daily meet with experiences that would make rare reading in some college professor's "information tests" report.

A matronly woman came into a Kansas City agency yesterday and announced her intention of taking up some well-paying war work. Her children had all entered some new field—even her "baby" of 17 was doing well in a downtown office.

The woman answered all the preliminary questions satisfactorily. Then the director asked, "Can you operate a typewriter?"

The answer was "No," and the director proceeded to the next question, "Have you had any experience in filing?"

There was a moment of silence, then the woman burst out, "Land, no, child. I don't know a thing in the world about machinery."

And imagine the amazement of another Kansas City director, who, on inquiring into this same filing ability, was met first with a hurt silence from the candidate, and then, with a dignified, "I have had no experience whatsoever in manicuring."—[Kansas City Star.

NO MORE HIGH SHOES
U. S. NEEDS THE LEATHE
WHAT WILL WOMEN

Uncle Sam says "no more high shoes for women. It's a waste of leather is the reason given. Women like, all other mortals, will want that which they cannot get, so we predict a big demand for high shoes. And it's not only high shoes that are banned. No more fancy colors are to be made. Just black, white and tan. Milady's footwear in the near future will take one big drop from the dizzy heights of extreme gaudiness to the depths of Puritanical plainness and a neat foot and well turned ankle will have nothing more than natural symmetrical lines for attractiveness. Cheer up, sister, there is yet a dim ray of hope. Some dealers still have 8 and 10-inch boots in pretty colors—Oxfords, too, and pumps in almost every shade in which leather can be dyed.

The department of literature, under the direction of Mrs. Eleanor Brodie Jones, and drama, under Mrs. Gustave Detzer, will present reviews of the best books and plays, by capable persons.

Mrs. Gavin Witherspoon, chairman of art, will devote her meetings to a study of modern art, with especial reference to the development brought about by the war.

The music section, with Mrs. Bernard Brown as leader, will study the music of the Allied nations, and the public affairs department, under Mrs. E. B. Weirick, will offer work of vital interest, under the following subcommittees: Social Service, Mrs. E. B. Weirick; Americanization, Mrs. J. W. Morgan; Citizenship, Mrs. Francis A. Blackburn; Child Welfare, Dr. Mary Hess Brown.

A new section, home economics, will be formed under Mrs. L. A. Beebe's direction, and other study classes arranged.

No department of the club is of greater interest than the junior section and club members are urged to have their daughters register with the chairman, Mrs. Eugene Tilden.

Mrs. Tilden, Mrs. Charles Van Tilburgh and Mrs. C. H. McKeever have directed the juniors' work for the Italian relief all summer and point with pride to what has been accomplished.

All department work, except the juniors', will be held on Tuesday and Wednesday, leaving the rest of the week for war work.

The regular Wednesday afternoon programmes will be of the same high standard that has always been the policy of the club. Several of the best speakers of the country on live topics of the day have been engaged.

Congress of Mothers.

Dr. Jessie A. Russell, State president of the California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations, left Saturday for Sacramento, where she will attend the State Fair and meet with the members of the Third District California Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher associations.

Monday has been officially declared the special day at the fair for the congress. Dr. Russell will be entertained at luncheon in one of the State buildings, and a reception in her honor will be held in the State Building of Education, from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. This is the first time that a woman's organization has been recognized by the officials of the fair.

Dr. Russell was appointed chairman of the Advisory Committee of the better baby conference to be held during the week and was given authority to appoint her own committees.

California Badger Club.

A social meeting of the California Badger Club will be held at the home of the president, Mrs. A. C. Larie, No. 4226 Brighton avenue, Wednesday, at 2 p.m. This meeting is to inaugurate a series of social meetings that the club plans to hold during the year, in the interest of war work. There will be music and a brief business session. The club is desirous of increasing its membership and to this end an invitation is extended to Wisconsin women. The regular monthly meetings will be held at the Ebell Club House, the first Wednesday of each month, beginning with October.

Los Angeles Million Club.

Instead of the garden party at ex-Mayor Hazard's home on Third street, the Los Angeles Million Club will give a series of carnival dances. The first, for the benefit of the Y.M.C.A. drive, took place last night when the Coast Artillery Band furnished the music. The second dance will be held next Saturday night, for the benefit of the Liberty Loan drive, when the Pacific Electric Band will furnish the music, and the last dance will be Saturday night, the 14th inst., for the benefit of the Million Club's Red Cross. The latter is to be a very large affair. A number of beautiful dolls from favorite motion-picture stars will be auctioned. The first and one of the prettiest to arrive is lovely Dorothy Phillips. The Million Club was the first large civic organization in the city to give up active club work for war service.

Club Briefs.

John H. Reagan Chapter, United Daughters of the Confederacy, will resume its meetings, beginning Wednesday next, at 2 p.m., at the Shatto apartments. Mrs. J. M. Black is the president. The following Wednesday the club will meet with Mrs. E. K. Daniels, at No. 1324 Portia street, Hollywood, when a benefit card party will be held for the two boys in France adopted by the chapter at the beginning of the war.

The Ivy Club will resume meetings, Tuesday, at the Brack Shops Auditorium, at 2 p.m., when a card party will be held, for which Thrift Stamps will be given as prizes. Hostesses of the day will be Mmes. Paul E. Ridley, E. L. Passmore, Clarence B. Kerr, Joseph Willard, Dan Fox and F. G. Baker.

Members of the Matinee Musical Club were entertained at the beach home of its president, Mrs. M. S. Anderson, last week. The diversion of the day was the industrious making of personal bags for soldiers.

Dr. Lulu Peters, who has been in Chicago during the publication of her book, will return home this week. She is well pleased with her literary venture.

Mrs. Rose C. Bryant, who has donated her Hollywood home for Red Cross purposes, will leave for Toronto, Can., next week, and will visit Washington before returning home, three months hence.

Mrs. W. O. Poor has undertaken the duties of publicity chairman for the P.T.A. Association in this district.

IN THE REALM OF ART.

BY ANTONY ANDERSON.

"Like a Gray Nun."

Like a gray nun who treads on silent feet,
The dawn creeps slowly, in her hand a star;
The forest throws her dusky gates ajar;
Her murmurous responses, low and sweet,
Fill cloistered columns of tenebrous trees,
Whose wavering shadows scatter fast and far,
As when a kindly hand the gates unbar,
To let the convent sheep across the leas.
Above orchestral branches, borne along
The morning air, like ocean's lambent swell,
Clear as the vibrant peal of convent bell,
The whitethroat chants anew his matin song,
So sweet, so sad, so joyous, wild and strong;
Repeats, "All, all is well, is well, is well."

—[Edith Willis Linn.

The Loan Exhibition.

Summer is always the slack season in picture-exhibiting, though not in picture-making. The halcyon days drive all the painters—and more especially the landscape painters—far afield in search of "subjects." The most of these subjects are turned into pictures through the busy fall and winter months. We shall see part of the harvest early in September, when the California Art Club will hold its autumn exhibition.

The big gallery in Exposition Park, which will house the canvases of the California Art Club, is in the meantime holding a very interesting loan exhibition of sixty-five canvases chosen from excellent private collections in Los Angeles. Some of these pictures are of surpassing worth; only a very few of them are of negligible interest. Let us glance over the figure studies today, reserving the landscapes for the next number of the Realm of Art.

There are no less than nine canvases from that wizard in color harmonies, Arthur B. Davies, eight of these being the property of Dr. Dorothea Moore, the remaining one being owned by Mrs. E. M. Dickey. "A Mighty Forest—Maenads" is the title of Mrs. Dickey's treasure—for it is a treasure—richly ruddy in hue, dignified and stately in lines. "Shine, Hesperus" is like a Botticelli, flat in modeling, delicate in outlines, flowing and rhythmical in movement, "precious" in quality. Very lovely is the nude "Within a Fence of Gold," the figure placed against a green sky and umber foliage. What subtleties we find in "Pastoral Dells and Peaks," blue mountains and a yellow sky, cows and humans seen amid dull greens. This is indeed a wonderful picture. Then we have "Magical Shores of a Lake," and that charming drawing in red chalks on a reddish background. Davies is one of our great original geniuses, and it is good to have this little collection of nine for close study.

Gerald Cassidy's "Navajo Medicine Man" is a water color of good color and almost too meticulous exactness in drawing. As an illustration, Walter Ufer's "The Pirate" is excellent, but not as a self-sufficing picture. Rob Wagner's "Father Sherman" is a dignified piece of portraiture—and it makes us regret that Wagner has dropped the brush for the pen, even though he handles the pen with eclat. J. H. Sharp's "Taos Indian Girl by Firelight" is an excellent color harmony.

The yellow and blue of the brawling brook in Victor Higgins's "Indian at Stream," the reds and pinks that fill out the color scheme, make a picture of fine vitality. "Dancer Resting," a sketch by Robert Henri, is a vivid thing of reds and purples that set off the pink of the model's flesh. Hovsep Pushman's "Margurita in White" is beautifully quiet in effect, the little sitter's eyes being lovely in expression. The background is mauve and green—the green that seems to be Pushman's own wonderful invention. Albert Rosenthal is represented by two brilliantly-clever studies of chic young women, "Au Cafe" and "Irene."

There is delicate quality, tenderness of feeling, in Jean Mannheim's "Head of a Child." Subtle grays show among suave greens. Walter Ufer's "Italian Peasant" is vigorously painted, a strong character sketch. George C. Stanson's "Blue Sea" is a low-toned scheme of blues and dull pinks, grays and drabs—remote and decorative. Rafaello Montalboddi manipulates paint with great cleverness in "At the Beneficent Gate," and also conveys much character in the figures of the beggars he portrays. The beauty of Pushman's "The Hour of Prayer" and "Summer Days" is already familiar to us, for it held us in a recent exhibition of the California Art Club. Smooth rhythm and delicious color are found in Edouard Vysekal's "Flower Gatherers"—it is a beautiful picture. Myron Barlow's "Peasant with Grandchild," while rather thinly painted, is an admirable thing, full of sentiment and character, richly harmonious in color.

Innovation in Awards.

A welcome innovation in the character of awards distributed at art exhibitions has been introduced by Director Laurvik of the Palace of Fine Arts, San Francisco, in the prizes given at the last annual exhibition of the San Francisco Art Association. Instead of the usual cartwheel medal, which most artists are glad to receive, but few are ever willing to show because of their blatant ugliness, Mr. Laurvik had the happy idea of substituting for the conventional medal a piece of bronze, which, in itself is a work of art, and therefore, a much more fitting tribute to the merits of the recipient.

For this purpose one of Arthur Putnam's animal figures was chosen. The placque presents a small puma in full relief recumbent upon a circular base of a size suitable for a paper weight, with the recipient's name and the usual designation of first, second, or third prize inscribed on the base. The modeling and characterization of this little figure are imbued with Putnam's well-known power and delicacy, which gives to all his animals an expression of realism.

The idea of making the award in itself a work of art aroused enthusiastic response among the artists, and no doubt this beautiful little work of art will be valued and cherished by every recipient long beyond any mere medal. These awards have just been distributed among the following artists: Joseph Raphael, who received a gold medal for painting; Armin C. Hansen, who received a silver medal for painting and a silver medal for graphic; Anne M. Bremer, who received a bronze medal for painting; Godfrey Fletcher, who received a silver medal for water color; and Ralph Stackpole, who received a gold medal for sculpture.

California Art Club.

The annual exhibition of the California Art Club will be held in the main gallery at Exposition Park from September 12 to October 10, the hours during week days being from 10 to 4 o'clock, except Wednesdays, when the gallery closes at noon. On Sundays the gallery is open from 2 to 5 p.m. The press view will be held on September 11. Reception and first view, Thursday, September 12, from 8 to 11 p.m.

Prizes. The Harrison prize of one $50 government bond, third Liberty Loan, for the best work of art executed by a woman artist irrespective of subject; donated by Mrs. William Preston Harrison. The prize named above will be awarded during the course of the exhibition by a jury of award to be appointed by the president of the club. The works of club members serving on this jury will be out of the competition.

Jury of selection: Donna Schuster, Helena Dunlap, Julia Bracken Dendt, W. V. Cahill, Guy Rose, B. C. Brown, William Wendt, Hanson Puthuff, J. W. Smith.

Exhibitions.

The Photographic Salon of the California Liberty Fair will be held from September 23 to October 26, inclusive. Salon Committee: Hector Alliot, R. S. Crandall, J. Bond Francisco, Oscar Maurer, Rob Wagner, Julia Bracken Wendt, George F. Clifton, chairman.

The Architectural Exhibition of the California Liberty Fair will be held from September 16 to October 26, under the auspices of the Southern California Chapter American Institute of Architects. Exhibition Committee: Lyman Farwell, Carlton Monroe Winslow, Elmer Grey, chairman.

An exhibition of twelve recent landscapes from the brush of John M. Gamble is being held at the Kanst gallery, No. 826 South Hill street, from August 17 to the end of the month. Some of Gamble's best work is shown.

IN STORES AND HOMES.

NOVELTIES, IDEAS AND PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

By Olive Gray.

Up-to-datest:

Soft fabrics, such as finely woven wools, velvets, satins of the lighter weights, and all weaves in silk will be popular for autumn suits and frocks for street and house wear.

Dark, rich colorings in the garments for the coming season's wear. Brilliant waistcoats and touches of wool or bead embroidery will preclude a too sombre effect.

Unbelted styles for winter coats and frocks. The coats, especially those intended for limousine use and for evening wear, will be builded upon long, loose lines.

Low shoes, either pumps or oxfords, are likely to be worn well into the coming season and by some all the year, for the reason that high shoes will be too low to wear with short skirts and also because the low high-cut shoe is to most feet unbecoming.

Now is the Time to Buy:

Velvets, which will be extremely popular during the coming season and which can be bought, in that jubilee sale at wondrously low price.

Silks of the satin finish or in fancy weaves. All silks are bound to be more than ever wanted, for the reason that wool is to be greatly conserved.

Angel silk for lingerie and negligee; since it is one of the few materials that have not aviated in price, and the color range is good. When washed with one of the new soap-dyes this fabric is even better than when new as it then takes on a softness comparable to the Italian knit silk underwear.

Those Elusive Skirts.

Clothes prophets are busy as usual at this season, predicting the length of skirts. "Skirts will be much longer." "Skirts will remain short." "Skirts are to be fuller." "Skirts are to be of narrower cut." "Skirts are to be plainly made." "Skirts are to be elaborately draped." With the sartorial heavens thus alive with wireless messages, you may set your "wireless" to catch whatever intimation you may choose; for all are equally authoritative. In fact, the very variety of these predictions, tells the skirt tale. You may wear your skirt at whatever length you wish. It has been said by some close observers that not alone will each famous dressmaker decide upon an especial length for skirts, adhering to the choice throughout the season, but that different cities and localities will adopt different lengths for skirts. Thus, one may know a Redfern frock by the length of its skirt; a Lucile gown by the height above the floor of its skirt's termination; and Madame from Chicago will proclaim the fact by the shortness of her skirt; Miss Philadelphia by the length of hers.

Hail Autumn!

The first day of autumn! And now for the new! King Summer's dead; long live the Autumn King! New suits, new frocks, new hats, new blouses! They will soon be here, and quite as soon incorporated into milady's wardrobe.

Our summer season is so long, and clothes have such hard wear here, with the floating dust, the continuous out-of-door use, that we are ready early to transfuse the new into our clothing. And, early on Tuesday morning, new fall stocks will be opening, to our delighted gaze. Time to look, time to plan, time to buy! Hurrah for the new!

A Luxurious Skirt.

One of the most luxurious skirts for winter wear, is made from fur, to well above the knee; this rich material set upon a yoke of fine broadcloth in a shade to match the color of the pelt. In the one seen, the fur was seal; but beaver will be used, and also mole, and others of the short napped furs. Even monkey will be put to this lavish use, in some instances the long hairs forming a fringe at the foot of the skirt.

The Insinuating Ostrich.

The ostrich feather is a true diplomat. From the smallest beginnings, she has managed, to insinuate herself, tip by tip and flue by flue, until by the latest decision of fashion's court, she has been recognized as an entire hat crown and the tall stick-up that is its only trim. One of the smartest of imported winter hats has a crown formed wholly of woven ostrich flues, and the tall, upstanding quill, is formed from similar flues. That is characteristic of the insidious way the ostrich has taken to become supreme. It has appeared in camouflage—never just merely ostrich feathers—but something away from ordinary, something unique, designful, original.

An Excellent Way.

"I never draw comparisons," said the world-knowing man. "I never say to myself, or to any one: 'I like mountains better than the sea, or 'the sea has charms which excel the mountains.' Nor do I aver that blonde people have finer dispositions than brunettes; or that I like the people of England far better than those of France. Thus I find that I more fully appreciate and enjoy all places, all peoples, each individual."

I never thought of that before, but I believe he's right. Why should one say, even in the secret chambers of one's own thought: "I think Ann more lovely than Emily," or "I love Jane far more than Editha?" Comparisons, as said long ago, are odious, and, moreover, they are wholly unnecessary.

The Brotherly Glove.

Of course, we all preach habitually "brotherly love," but just now I shall talk to you about brotherly glove. It is really plural, for the it goes in pairs, which is not always true of the brotherly love. I am referring to the glove sale at that brotherly store. It is an end-of-the-season sale, and the offerings comprise silk gloves at a few cents per pair; gloves of chamoisette at a little less; and even kid gloves, in certain sizes, at remarkable reductions. Let me add that gloves in that store are really good and worth the price, if gloves are worth it anywhere.

Fashion's Way.

Dinner gowns of black with turquoise blue or old rose are very good style.

Burgundy charmeuse and duvetyn of the same color are very smart combined.

A simple and charming frock is made of plaid taffeta in blue and white.

Children's fall coats will be made with short waists and rather full skirts.

Some of the new autumn shirtwaists of Georgette have long shawl skirts.

Long embroidered panels, both front and back, make a plain frock charming.

Full length suit jackets have their fullness gathered on rounded or shoulder yokes.

There are buttons, buttons everywhere assuming all duties of ornamentation.

A blouse of beige chiffon is frilled with many ruffles bound with navy blue crepe.

The cape in all its forms is one of the most charming and serviceable of garments.

The demand for silks of every kind is increasing on account of the wool shortage.

A short full jacket lined with fur and possessed of square armholes is a Paris novelty.

Coat styles predominate in the dresses for autumn, and a great many have fur collars.

Fur waistcoats continue to be used.

Voile is being used for evening gowns.

Bolero fronts appear on the new dresses.

Gray squirrel trimming is a great favorite.

Voile and satin combine most effectively.

Dresses are in chemise, tunic and coat styles.

The Bright Side of Sunshine Land—People and Their Doings—A Hundred or More Happy Affai

A DEBUTANTE'S LETTER.

LOS ANGELES, August 30.

Dear Aunt Tabitha:

Most of my friends seem to be taking army inoculations and while it lends them an importance and interest that makes us all very kind to them, it is somewhat of a handicap in social affairs. Both sexes regard it as their first taste of the horrors of war. Yes, the photographs essential on their passports come under that heading too, because you see, the good-looking girls who want to go over to France in canteen work, find their beauty a disadvantage with the skeptical powers that be, who have no intention of acting as a matrimonial agency. So the girls jag their hair back and bang their hats down and wear their most unbecoming clothes when they apply, and, of course, they have their pictures taken that way, too. We shall never know all the sacrifices of war.

Isn't Mrs. Rose C. Bryant a dear? You know she has given her large delightful house at Hollywood for a Red Cross chapter house like the one at Alvarado street and is turning it over to the Hollywood workers this week. It will be opened with eclat on Saturday, next, all complete with a rich war garden full of vegetables which will keep the commissariat going for a long time. Mrs. Bryant goes to Toronto next month and later to Washington. She has a handsome son in the British aviation who has just become a "solo flyer," and possesses all sorts of stylish medals. The house is quite near the Hollywood Hotel on McAdden street, and possesses lovely lawns, a garage and ten big rooms. So you see, it is a generous and magnificent gift.

Oh, yes, and talking of Red Cross chapter houses, competition is fierce out at Alvarado street. You know Mrs. Marry Lombard has thirty women working for her in that clothing department, all vieing with each other to attain the largest sales. So far Mrs. J. A. Potter holds the palm with $4475 for the nine months, while the average for the rest is about $696. She and Mrs. Cosmo Morgan are the chief rivals, so when Mrs. Potter sits on the bottom of the stairs to waylay customers, Mrs. Morgan hies her to the front yard or vice versa—and it is the pet joke of the house.

We had a wonderful day out at the Arcadia balloon school on Thursday, when Charlie Chaplin and Edna Purviance took us out to see them make the part of the new picture in which Charlie captures the entire German General Staff. It was quite delicious to see the Kaiser, the Crown Prince and Von Hindenburg strolling about an American training camp, carefully under guard, but licking luscious ice creams in the company of British and American officers—for it was a broiling day and ice cream was the pet form of salvation. It was largely in custard form, trickling through sheets of paper and such a thing as a spoon was unthinkable. I must say that when it comes to licking ice cream out of a bit of paper, British and American officers can put it all over the German nabobs for delicacy of treatment. Maj. Hannay, the attractive British bachelor instruction officer, who wears Fifty-third Sihk badges on his shoulders, licks like a perfect gentleman. He only permitted less than a third of his cream to embellish the beauty of Edna's lovely Packard. Col. Hensley appeared on the scene to give the company his blessing and watch the boys revel in helping can the Kaiser. Now those boys enjoyed themselves, they cheered themselves hot and hoarse, and carried Charlie and Edna on their shoulders! A perilously good-looking Lieut. Culbertson was in official charge of the party, and Maj. John Baumann, an American bachelor officer, lent his official presence. Fancy two such bachelors as Majs. Hannay and Baumann still being at large—and both of them so obviously just the right age. Capt. Edler is another British officer who entrances the eye, but he is secretive as to his eligibility. It was all so fascinating, with the huge balloons ascending and descending all the time. The boys have started a camp magazine, so, of course, they "interviewed" Edna. They crowded round her machine like flies, adoring, and all "showing off," as is the weakness of the male in the presence of feminine beauty. Edna was shy in conveying information, so I helped the boys out and if they print all I told them about her, it ought to make a thrilling hit.

There was one terrible interlude when, after rehearsing a picture a dozen times, during which poor Von Hindenburg looked ready to expire with the heat, it was discovered that an important chauffeur coat for Charlie had been forgotten. After Charlie had slumped mournfully, and sarcastically observed that everyone might as well go home, someone had a bright idea to telephone for the coat. So we all waited in the broiling sun for two hours and at last a frantic machine drove up. But relief was soon turned to despair—they had brought the wrong coat! In the end a coat was improvised on the premises by the camp tailor, and all went well. They have an immense swimming pool out there, a wondrous oasis, so Edna and I were loaned two bathing suits and by special dispensation, were allowed to swim during officers' hours. Needless to say, it was the most wonderful swim in the world. I was green with envy to observe how Edna, with melting grease paint, a black smudge moustache administered by Charlie, a hideous old dress and utterly deplorable shoes, could still look beautiful.

The British War Relief tennis party out at the Garden Court apartments was quite unusually pleasant — that coterie certainly knows how to make things go in that essentially "comfy" way. May Sutton Bundy, who, in spite of being the mamma of three lovely babies, is still the arch-tennis champion, looked so jolly. She and Ethel Bruce, Florence Sutton and Violet Doeg played a wonderful game, while we all tea'd or the shady pergolas. Mrs. Christopher Gordon, Mrs. Margaret Ham, Mrs. M. Crickmer and Mrs. Creighton were all serving tea, and there was quite a jolly sprinkling of masculinity, including Tom Bundy, who seems to be growing quite timid and retiring, and Simpson Sinsabaugh, and lots of jolly husbands.

The British Ambulance dance on Wednesday night, to celebrate the victories was successful, for although the temperature was running wild, crowds gathered for the cause.

We also looked in at the Red Cross Chapter House on Saturday, and about ten of us had a merry time teasing Tom Woolwine, who was being urged to speak, but did not want to appear to be mixing patriotism with politics. We helped to make him as embarassed as we possibly could.

We are going up to Santa Barbara by yacht this week-end, so shall have all the Santa Barbara gossip for you next week. We shall start immediately after the naval ball at the Virginia at Long Beach, in the cold gray dawn, and so should look a rather washed-out little party. The ball is for the San Pedro Training Station men, and Capt. Guy Whitlock and his officers are to be there. Mrs. Rodman Robeson, who engineers these big events with the Hotel Virginia, is certainly a fairy godmother to the navy men. Nothing is too good for them, and pretty girls are acquired in such bevies that Long Beach must grow them like blackberries.

We have such a dazzling young officer in town, who, strictly for the benefit of his intimate friends, gives a delicious take-off on the Salome dance. It is quite outrageously clever. His cap impersonates the gory head and he dances round it on the floor, with such irresistible comicality that we are kept in roars of laughter. The music plays suitable classic rhythm, and with the final chord he clamps the hat on his head and struts off in military fashion. It is one of the best burlesques I ever saw. But I am not going to tell you his name, Auntie dear, because I know your ideas on the proper department of officers

Yours decorously,

BETTY.

SOCIETY.

BY VIRGINIA WOODS.

Midsummer Wedding.

The ceremony last evening that united in marriage Miss Kathleen Shores and Lieut. Edwin Hill Badger marked one of the loveliest weddings of the midsummer season. The service was read by Rev. Baker P. Lee at 5:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. A. J. Shores of St. Andrews place.

The entire house made into bower of pink and white asters and roses furnished an effective setting for the bridal party. Miss Shores was given in keeping by her father and she was dressed in a gown of silver cloth and lace. Her long tulle veil was crowned with orange blossoms and her shower bouquet was fashioned from white orchids and lilies of the valley.

Miss Dorothy Trask was maid of honor and wore a gown of pink tulle and velvet. Her bouquet was of baby pink roses and she wore a short veil of pink tulle. Miss Alma Berude of Berkeley, a house guest in the Shores home was bridesmaid and was frocked in pink charmeuse and silver lace. She likewise carried baby pink rosebuds and wore a short pink tulle veil. Little Miss Dorothy Janny, in a white lace frock, was flower girl and scattered pink rose petals. Lieut. Fred McCormack of the aviation school at Riverside was Lieut. Badger's best man. Miss Melba Melsing, in a handsome gown of pink tulle and satin, sang and Miss Esther Rhodes, also in pink, played several harp numbers.

Lieut. Badger is a son of Woodson Badger and Mrs. Badger of Montana. His aunt, Mrs. Emma Clayberg, came down from Berkeley for the ceremony. The couple left at once for a honeymoon trip after which they will be at home near Camp Fremont, where he is stationed.

Naval Ball.

Officers in trim uniforms and debutantes and young matrons in evening gowns gave a decidedly smart military dash to the big naval dinner and dance given at the Hotel Virginia, Long Beach, Friday evening in honor of the graduating class of 100 ensigns.

Commander and Mrs. Guy Whitlock presided at a table at which sat members of Commander Whitlock's staff and their wives and young women friends. Noticed at this table were Capt. John Mell, Capt. and Mrs. W. L. Maxwell, Lieut. W. Irving and Miss Irving, Dr. and Mrs. Spalding, Lieut. G. B. O'Connor, Lieut. and Mrs. McLane, Paymaster and Mrs. O'Brien, Lieut. and Mrs. Pryor, Lieut. and Mrs. Langille, Dr. and Mrs. Duggan, Lieut. Johnson and Dr. and Mrs. Adams. Besides these, 500 petty officers were guests. Mrs. Irene Nason, a member of the National Committee of the Department of Naval Recreation, was hostess and was assisted by Mmes. Lillian Spanagal, Lottie Smith, H. D. Final, A. L. Campbell, C. M. Healey and R. H. Shippey.

By Mrs. Pehr.

In honor of her husband, who is leaving this week for Kelly Field, San Antonio, Tex., to take up his work as field representative for the Jewish Welfare Board, Mrs. M. H. Pehr of St. Andrews place entertained last evening at a dance and card party. A buffet supper was served. Mrs. Pehr was assisted by Mrs. W. C. Tyler, Mrs. M. B. Mihran, Mrs. M. Z. Sylvia, Miss L. Densmore and Mrs. M. S. Anderson.

Marry in San Francisco.

Surprising their many friends here, Miss Cecil Dudley and Mr. Harold Gilman Appleton of this city were married in San Francisco at the Palace Hotel. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Charlotte Dudley of San Francisco and is one of the popular members of the younger social set there. She has been making her home here for some time, devoting much of her time to Liberty Loan work, assisting Mrs. E. R. Brainerd. She has also been doing much Red Cross work. At the time of her marriage she had gone north to see her brother, Venre A. Dudley, previous to his departure for Camp Lewis.

Miss Dudley wore a gown of cream-colored broadcloth and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. The wedding was followed by an elaborate breakfast attended by a number of the bride's friends. Mr. Appleton is a well-known Los Angeles business man and is a member of the Los Angeles Athletic Club. The couple will make their home here.

Charming Tea.

A charming courtesy at which Mrs. William Ennis of Chicago and Mrs. William J. Chichester were honor guests was the tea given by Mrs. C. C. Carpenter on Friday afternoon. Half a hundred guests were present.

Marries Chicago Girl.

Sergt. William L. Baughman, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Baughman of No. 130 Avenue 30, was married Tuesday evening to Miss Rose V. Bell of Chicago at the residence of Sergt. Baughman's parents. Sergt. Baughman has been stationed at Rockwell Field, San Diego, as an aviation radio instructor, but is now en route to the University of Texas, in Austin, Tex., where he is to attend the officers' training school. The bride is the daughter of a prominent Chicago family and has two brothers in the service, one at present in France. Sergt. Baughman has a brother with the One Hundred and Forty-third Field Artillery, now across the water. Following a short honeymoon trip, Sergt. Baughman will go to Texas and his bride will remain for awhile in Los Angeles.

For Mr. and Mrs. Butler.

As a farewell courtesy to Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Butler, who are leaving for Baltimore to reside, Mr and Mrs. John Dietrich of No. 100 North Coronado street gave a musicale. During the evening Mr. Butler gave a number of piano selections, among them being his recent "Sonato," which is receiving such favorable comment among musical critics. Mrs. Romeo Frick, a coloratura soprano from Boston, sang, and Miss Frieda Peycke gave two groups of her poems with musical settings of her own composition. Clifford Lott and Lou Girard also delighted the company with humorous selections. Among the guests were Messrs. and Mmes. Alfred Butler, George Backus, Romeo Frick, Louis Girard, Hugh Harrison, Clifford Lott, Joseph Zoellner, Mrs. Geraldine Story, Mrs. L. Carnes, Miss Rose Carnes, Mrs. Mary Kercher, Mrs. Laura Meriman, Mrs. Frank Johnston, Miss Edith Pell, Edmund Peycke, John Hader, Miss Ellen Parker, Miss Frieda Peycke, Miss Antoinette Zoellner and Miss Marcella Hader.

Promotion.

To the friends of Mrs. Pearson Menoher, formerly Miss Genevieve Tuthill of Los Angeles, it is interesting to learn of Capt. Menoher's promotion to the grade of major in the army, and his chance of station to Camp Sheridan, Ala., as assistant chief-of-staff of the Ninth Division. Mrs. Menoher's brother, Brig.-Gen. A. M. Tuthill, left Camp Kearny recently for France, and a cable was yesterday received by his mother, Mrs. W. H. Tuthill, telling of his safe arrival there. Mrs. Menoher's father-in-law, Maj.-Gen. Charles T. Menoher, has been in France for more than a year as commander of the Rainbow Division. Mrs. Menoher has just joined her husband in Alabama after a hurried visit with her mother, Mrs. Tuthill.

Entertains for Officer.

In compliment to her nephew, Will Lester Tubbs, who has just received his commission as second lieutenant at the officers' training camp at American Lake, Mrs. John Wesley Tomblin entertained at dinner last evening at the Alexandria. On Friday evening Lieut. Tubbs was guest of honor at a family dinner party at which his mother, Mrs. W. L. Tubbs of Santa Ana, assembled a dozen guests. Lieut. Tubbs is a graduate of the Shattuck Military School. He will be here for a few days' furlough.

The home of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst at Pleasanton was the scene last Tuesday at noon of the marriage of Miss Cecil Wright, formerly of this city, and Dr. Henry de Witt Hubbard, first lieutenant in the navy, stationed at Mare Island.

For the past two years while attending the University of California, the bride has resided with Mrs. Hearst. Both she and Dr. Hubbard are graduates of the Huntington Park High School, and he is also a graduate of the College of Medicine, U.S.C.

Details of the wedding were arranged by Mrs. Hearst, and a few close friends and relatives were pleasant, including the bride's mother, Mrs. Harry Wright of Ethanac, the bridegroom's mother, Mrs. Clinton Dewitt Hubbard of Huntington Park, Mrs. Terrell T. McCarty, the bride's school chum from Huntington Park, and Miss Phoebe Hearst Hill of Pleasanton. After a short honeymoon trip the couple will reside in San Francisco until Lieut. Luncheon and Dinner Party.

Mr. and Mrs. T. O. Carruthers were hosts at an all-day party at their summer home, Solway Firth, at Manhattan Beach, their guests motoring down in time for a mid-day luncheon. The table was decorated in a patriotic design. Following luncheon, card games furnished diversion for the afternoon, and in the evening dinner was served, the ladies being joined by their husbands. Everything is home-cooked and it's a joy to eat there. Now, on Thursday for dinner they serve fried Belgian hare and they always have cold meats if you prefer. Dinner only 50 cents!

You should see the smart dresses for girls of 14 to 16! The velvets are my favorites—in black, maroon, navy and taupe with cute little side peplums or panel effects, with satin sashes in self color; some are trimmed with black braid and they're all too lovely for words! Of course, Robinson's are showing some very clever serge and other models, too.

Some extremely chic fall toques are made entirely of yarn.

One of the foremost fashion arbiters of Southern California — Mrs. Frances Black—has an interesting message for my readers, "Without exception the best and most economical tan and freckle cream I have ever used is Fletcher's Bleach Paste. I have gladly recommended it to many people."

Reduce your weight! You may have a beautiful figure by using the Reiss System, which will reduce your weight in an easy and fascinating way and improve your health. No drugs, no starvation. 802 Title Guarantee Bldg., 5th and Broadway. Phone 67815.

Give your visitors a memory to cherish! A luncheon at the Mary Elizabeth, that jewel of a tearoom with its perfect service and exquisite appointments, will linger long in their memories! At the top, Brack-Shops.

You can really take better care of your hair if it is permanently waved! Harriet Hunter, 720 Brockman Bldg., does expert work, using a steaming method which makes the hair quite lovely and flexible.

No reason for throwing away that old fur coat! It can be so beautifully made over so you would never know it! Alice Hardy, 820 S. Broadway, Braun Bldg., third floor, will gladly give you her advice.

All who have enjoyed the delicious luncheons at the Aileen Sweet Shop, Prom. 4, Brack-Shops, will be glad to learn that she will serve a 75-cent dinner from 5:30 to 7:30, beginning Tuesday, September 3.

It appears to be a charming English drawing-room with beautiful pieces of old-period furniture scattered about inviting one to tarry a bit for a chat about "what's worn"—no need for haste! To be sure, there are a few exquisite hats in sight and some wonderful imported blouses—and if you wish to try them on step into that delightful little room done in old ivory and rose. Mannish tailored blouses, plain white and striped silk — some with smartly tucked bosoms — will be found here. At Mandel's, 733 S. Hill, next to the Alhambra Theater, they carry a full line of Phipps hats—also Bendel, Rawak, Jane Marsh and many imported models, besides creations by their clever designer, late of Redfern's, Paris!

Specializing is the "sign of the times," so why not consider this when selecting your business college? A large staff of efficient instructors is in charge of the shorthand department of the Willis-Woodbury Business College, 5th floor Hamburger Bldg. They teach one system—the Gregg—and it would astonish you to see the degree of efficiency attained by the students. A great aid also is the individual instruction, which is given to each student in this well-managed school, which is making a great name for itself on the Pacific Coast.

The new military fountain pen is the latest, holding one quart of ink!

Why worry about sugar rations? Let our boys have all they need gladly. You go up to Young's, 638 S. Broadway, and buy some of that delicious strained honey or some pure maple syrup — it will satisfy your craving for sweets! Now is the time to consider children's lunches, too. Everything a child might want for this delightful meal will be found at Young's. You know they carry Willowbrook eggs and sausages—and are having special prices on fine olives. I'd also like to mention that imported Holland herring at $2.75 a keg!

"You should worry" about the fogs if you have your hair permanently waved by Mrs. Hudgen, for it will then defy the "wind and weather." Thick patented pads are used to protect the hair and make the curls—large or small—more lovely. She curls gray hair successfully, too, and gives each curl her personal attention. She has a diploma and has had seven years' experience. Prom. 9, Brack-Shops. Phone 14417.

Many delightful evenings will be spent at home if you possess that peerless entertainer, the Brunswick phonograph. You know the Ultona reproducer on this machine plays all records, while the all-wood tone amplifier produces most marvelous tones. Why, it's almost as good as hearing the musicians themselves! Lyon-McKinney-Smith, 737 S. Hill, will demonstrate these wonders.

Early Victorian modes are revived for autumn.

Teachers and pupils alike will be interested to learn that at that accommodating pen shop of Barker Bros. six complete lines of fountain pens are carried. Here also is an expert "pen doctor" who can cure the ills of any pen. You also will find those convenient pencils, "Eversharp" and "Sharp Point," which are so popular. 720 S. Broadway.

These are the days to think about your fall furs! Mme. Pullis, who lately moved from the Superba Theater Bldg. to 666 S. Alvarado, does marvelous things in remodeling. She can make over your old fox into something new and clever and can combine several old furs into one smart cape or coatee. There's such a soft finish to her work, too.

Why be fat? We will roll it off where you wish. Have the figure of your dreams without effort, diet or drugs. Improves circulation — you feel and look so well! Weight Reducing Co., 618 Brockman Bldg.

You will notice a lot of chenille embroidery on fall millinery.

Dainty Polly Primrose frocks and rompers in such original designs—ready to select from or made to order at Beeman & Hendee's, 948 S. Hill. Also beautiful cretonnes. Plain curtains made up free.

They are having wonderful success with henna packs for gray hair at the Markman Beauty Parlors. Have them any shade from blond to black. Prom. 10, Brack-Shops.

The Day of the Work Table

The patriotic response of the women of America to the urgent call for war comforts for our boys in the service has emphasized the already popular and practical usage of the work table.

As a matter of fact, every woman who knits or who does fancy work or light sewing has need of a work table, with its convenient drawers and pockets which provide "a place for everything."

The "California" shows at least thirty different patterns in work tables, from the inexpensive "Pick-ups" to the mahogany "Betsy Ross," "Priscilla," "Mayflower" or "Martha Washington" work tables.

At $18.50 the "Martha Washington," an exact reproduction, is a very attractive value. It is built entirely of selected mahogany in the celebrated shops of W. K. Cowan Co. and entirely apart from the convenient purpose it so splendidly serves, it is a very attractive piece of furniture in the home.

"Betsy Ross" work stands may be had for as little as $7.50 and knitting stands, which are much in demand just now, for as little as $3.50.

We will enjoy showing you these interesting work tables and other furnishings even though you may not contemplate buying.

ORIGINAL SIN

ARE ALL TO SUFFER FROM IT ETERNALLY?

By DR. JAMES E. TALMAGE.

Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints; Salt Lake City, Utah.

We believe that men will be punished for their own sins, and not for Adam's transgression.

Belief in original sin, and its dread incubus as a burden from which none can escape, has for ages cast its depressing shadow over the human heart and mind. Accepting as fact the account outlined in Genesis concerning the transgression of the parents of the race, every thoughtful reader must have wondered as to whether he is to suffer throughout this life and beyond for a deed in which he had no part, and for which, according to his natural conception of justice and right, he was not even indirectly responsible. If he assumes an affirmative answer to his honest query, he must have stood aghast at the seeming injustice of it all.

The Scriptures proclaim in definite terms the fact of individual responsibility, and as an indispensable consequence, the Free Agency of Man. Freedom to choose or reject and accountability for the choice go hand in hand. The word of Divine revelation made the matter plain very early in the history of humankind. To evil-hearted Cain the Lord said: "If thou doest well, shalt thou not be accepted? And if thou doest not well, sin lieth at the door." (Gen. 4:7.)

A knowledge of good and evil is essential to progress, and the school of experience in mortality has been provided for the acquirement of such knowledge. The Divine purpose was thus enunciated by an ancient Hebrew prophet:

"Wherefore, the Lord God gave unto man that he should act for himself. Wherefore, man could not act for himself, save it should be that he was enticed by the one or the other. . . . Wherefore, men are free according to the flesh; and all things are given them which are expedient unto man. And they are free to choose liberty and eternal life, through the great mediation of all men, or to choose captivity and death, according to the captivity and power of the devil; for he seeketh that all men might be miserable like unto himself." (Book of Mormon, 2 Nephi 2:16 and 27.)

And a later prophet voiced the eternal truth as addressed to his wayward fellows:

"And now remember, remember, my brethren, that whosoever perisheth, perisheth unto himself; and whosoever doth iniquity, doeth it unto himself; for behold, ye are free." (Book of Mormon, Helaman 14:30.)

But, many have asked how can man be regarded as free to choose right or wrong when he is predisposed to evil through the heritage of original sin bequeathed to him by Adam? Heredity at most is but tendency, not compulsion; and we have no warrant for doubt in the light of revealed truth concerning the inherent justice and mercy of God that every element of cause or inflicted tendency will be taken into righteous account in the judgment of each and every soul. The man who can intelligently ask or consider the question framed above shows his capability of distinguishing between good and evil, and cannot consistently excuse himself for wilful wrongdoing.

Our first parents disobeyed the command of God by indulging in food unsuited to their condition; and, as a natural consequence, they suffered physical degeneracy, whereby bodily weakness, disease and death came into the world. Their posterity have inherited the resultant ills, to all of which we now say flesh is heir; and it is true that these human imperfections came through disobedience, and are therefore, the fruits of sin. But as to accountability for Adam's transgression, in all justice, Adam alone must answer. The present fallen status of mankind, as expressed in our mortal condition, was inaugurated by Adam and Eve; but Divine justice forbids that we be accounted sinners solely because our parents transgressed.

Though the privations, the vicissitudes, and the unrelenting toil enforced by the state of mortal existence be part of our heritage from Adam, we are enriched thereby; for in just such conditions do we find opportunity to develop the powers of soul that shall enable us to overcome evil, to choose the good, and to win salvation and exaltation in the mansions of Our Father.

If the expression, "original sin" has any definite signification it must be taken to mean the transgression of our parents in Eden. We were not participators in that offense. We are not inheritors of original sin, though we be subjects of the consequences. The millions who have been slaughtered and ar today falling on the battlefields of the greatest war in history, and those other and more millions of helpless dependents who have endurd such agonies as to make of death a blessed relief, are all involved in the frightful results of the precipitation of war by their respective rulers; yet who can doubt that when a just accounting is called, those who brought about the carnage and suffering shall be made to answer, not the irresponsible victims? And to everyone who has suffered blamelessly, He who notes even the sparrow's fall shall give full meed of recompense.

Why waste time and effort in bewailing what Adam did? Better it is to face like men the actual conditions of our existence and to meet the requirements of righteous living. From the effects of Adam's transgression full redemption is assured through the atonement wrought by Jesus Christ, Our Lord. "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." (1 Cor. 15:22.)

Consider well the inside of a Watch

A word or two of advice to those contemplating the purchase of a wrist watch may be proper, particularly in view of the rapidly increasing popularity of watches of this type. In selecting any watch, do so with more consideration for what is inside the case than for its appearance—buy a watch for the "inside" not the "outside." A reliable movement assures an accurate timepiece, and if a watch does not keep time correctly it is worthless. Timekeeping reliability—this is the keynote, and while appearance is an important factor—quality should dominate. We show watches measuring up to this standard.

RACHEL BAKER RETURNS

On Hope Street at Seventh while shopping, we came upon a very new and attractive little shop and, being women, we decided we must investigate at once. So in we went and found, to our great satisfaction, that Rachel Baker had opened a place of her own, 651 South Hope, at Seventh.

She has just returned from New York and is very enthusiastic about the new hats and clothes which are to be worn this autumn. We were also interested in the fact that Miss Baker will carry a few dress and top coats.—[Advertisement.

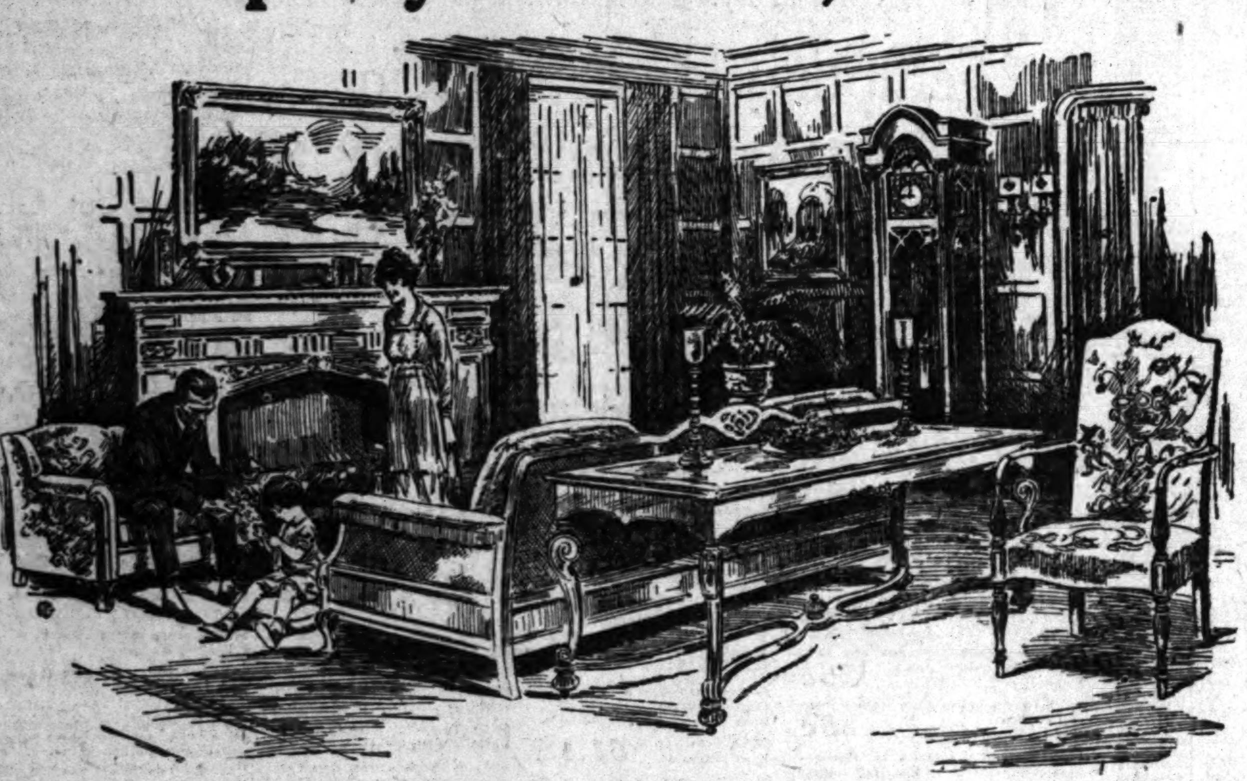
The "Good Education" You Plan to Give Your Children Will Fall Short Unless "Backed Up" by a Refined, Artistic Home



THINKING OF OTHERS

Yesterday was the day of the Annual Picnic for EVERYONE in this great institution of nearly a thousand workers. The Store was closed all day. Our patrons will surely not begrudge this vacation, which means a more effective service during the months to come.

Tomorrow the Store will again be closed all day as a mark of honor to the Cause of Labor. The industrial workers are proving that they can be fully depended upon in time of stress to serve faithfully as the bulwarks back of the soldiers.

In ordinary times there might be a tendency to wonder if the sacrifice of profit by closing up two business days in succession would not be too great a drain upon the business, but, after reading a letter such as we are quoting, from a soldier boy at the front to his "dad," we surely all agree that no sacrifice can be great enough to match that which our boys are making every day.

"Since June 1st up 'till June 16th, I put in 16 days in Hell. Believe me, Dad, Sherman never knew what war meant when he said 'War is Hell.' But, Dad, when you're charging up a hill through the woods to take a hornet's nest of Maxim machine guns and the bullets are whizzing around your ears and hand grenades bursting all around you; your comrades falling and lying still or crawling back to the rear covered with blood, it sure gives you one of the damnedest sensations a man ever had. Then, when you're lucky enough to be one of the ones to make the top, where you can use your own rifles and hand grenades, and when Fritz sees he hasn't a chance, he gets down on his knees crying and moaning, 'Pardon, Kamerad, Mercy,' after he had fought up 'till the last minute, and you think of all your friends that he's knocked out, what are you going to do? Kill him in cold blood; take him prisoner and let him have it nice and easy 'till the end of the war and then go back home to his family? It's quite a problem, isn't it?

"Well, dad, that's what we all had to figure out for ourselves. We took a big bunch of prisoners on our first attack, but after we began to hear how large our casualty list was getting, we didn't take so many. You have probably read all about the marines stopping the Germans' big drive. Well, we sure did, and after they had come 20 kilometers without a stop, at that. The Frenchys all told us that we'd never hold them, that if we stuck to our positions we'd all be slaughtered. Well, you know the Marines, dad. We not only held them, but we drove them back out of all their important positions, took 'Beaucoup' prisoners,' and made about six regiments of them, including the 'Prussian Guard,' look like a thin dime with a hole in it.

"The French people around here look on L'infantrie Marine' as kind of demigods. They can't see how we did it. It was just a question of 'guts' and working together on the part of all of us, officers and men alike. I saw more seemingly impossible stunts pulled off in those 16 days than I or anybody will ever see again, I think. I don't believe there was a man in the whole crew who backed out of anything or pulled a yellow stunt. 'If all Uncle Sam's soldiers are like the Marines, this war is as good as over,' was what a German officer, taken prisoner, said."

"WE WANT our children to have a good education—better than we had—the best in the world! We can get along with our old furniture for a while, I guess. Anyway, the youngsters are so hard on things around the house that it wouldn't pay to get any good new things now."

—Have you heard it?—Have you said it?

Oh, what a contradiction! A "good education" for children growing up in commonplace, ugly homes!

Books, music, drawing, dancing, expression — these are important, truly. But with them all and through them all runs that little magic thread—the solid warp of all education — the INFLUENCE OF HOME!

"NEXT TO THE THOUGHT OF MOTHER" will always come the memory of their childhood home. How wonderful that you are able to make it, for them, a beautiful, prideful memory!

Comfort around a glowing family hearth—rosy lamps shedding lovely light on Mother's soft hair. A dignified yet cheery dining-room with table appointments so dainty as to make soft, courteous voices and refined manners the natural thing at meal time! Bedrooms clean and pretty with a place for each one's personal belongings and comfy "all around."

Surely, you would not choose to have your young folks grow up without respect for their home or its furnishings! Surely, you would not send them out into the world unaccustomed to artistic home surroundings and ignorant of the home ideals you have for them! Let them romp in their playroom and out-of-doors with the stout hickory and kiddie furniture that thrives on hard knocks—but give them the education of beautifulfurnishings in the home you long to have them love!

It is always a deep delight for us to help parents of moderate means plan improvements in their homes for the sake of their children. May we not serve you?

We're Revealing Our Increased Respect for Rugs and Draperies in New Fall Patterns of Such Originality and Charm as Never Were Seen Before!

OUR latest Wiltons (room-size and smaller, to match) seem of softer texture than ever and certainly there were never such designs!

Mulberry, mustard and plum are uncommon tones much favored — more familiar colors are shown in refershing new treatments.

There are Persian Rugs—a Saruk copy—a gold center Prayer Rug—an impressive Fujiyama Rug—a Verdure and a Barbizon Landscape.

In the face of appalling difficulties it is stimulating to be able to present, this Autumn, an amazingly broad display of the most beautiful Rugs ever made.

"BOONE STOP"—OTHER NOVELS.

BY GORDON RAY YOUNG.

"Boone Stop."

Homer Croy has made "Boone Stop" (Harper & Bros.) a curious story, and to me almost irresistible in its unique and sustained interest. The narrator is Clevie Seed, whose father, a powerful and stern man, being a religious fanatic, is visited by angels and inspired to predict the end of the world. Mr. Seed names the day when the Last Judgment will crack heaven. He gives away his property and leads his converts to a hilltop in the rain to await the Second Coming. There are not many stories of this day that have more touching or dramatic scenes in them, or are handled with as much sensitive artistry as this unusual episode. It is not ridiculous; it is pathetic, and yet is relieved by the shrewd and amusing viewpoint of the youngster who tells the story.

"Boone Stop" is not really a novel. It is the frank autobiography of an awkward Missouri boy; but Mr. Seed, also the mother, and the shadowy-drawn grandmother—though a very real character—are people of fictional distinction. I do not feel that much desirable has been gained by the tragic circumstances to which Sadie, the sister, is reduced, except so far as it contributes to the sorrows and misfortunes that one after another smite the stern old fanatic, who is, however, anchored fast to his Bible. Mr. Seed is perhaps a larger character than the author originally had in mind. Certainly the man grows and grows upon the reader who finds satisfaction in characters; always he has a biblical quotation to guide his inexorable acts; always he is adamantine, severe, but honest.

Too, there is much humor in the story. It is full of amusement, and exposes the inner workings of a boy's mind in his loves, in his desire to be a "gentleman," in his ambitions and poses. "Boone Stop" is really a deeper, more vital book than it appears on the surface. Not that any unusual perception is needed to recognize that depth and vitality—it cannot be evaded—but the surface is of rippling humor. The book is advertised, and will no doubt be recommended as one of humor. And it is. But to my mind it is as deeply, poignantly tragic as anything that has ever come out of Russia, possibly excepting "The House of the Dead"; and it is much better written than most of the importations. Moreover, it is thoroughly American, a story of the soil, patterned after no school or style, though it has pretty much of a family resemblance to other intrinsically American works, those of Eggleston, Howe, and some of Mark Twain's.

"The Court of Belshazzar."

"The Court of Belshazzar" (Bobbs-Merrill Company) is colorful, and in parts is a finely told story. Earl Williams, of whom I know nothing, offers this presumably as a first book; and perhaps something of his story was suggested, or at least enhanced, by the Babylonian thread running through Mr. Griffith's photo-drama, "Intolerance," though he does not at any point take culpable liberties—if he has indeed consciously taken any—with that picturization.

Ariel, a Jewish youth of the House of Levi, goes to Babylon to aid in freeing the Jews from bondage; and in order to seduce him into divulging the plot, the King's own mistress is turned loose to woo and charm him. Complications converge to allow Ariel to escape from a dungeon where he awaits death and to enter the camp of Cyrus, who is besieging Babylon. The boy divulges the means that has become historic of capturing the city; and the army storms into the banquet hall as Daniel finishes reading the tragic handwriting on the wall.

As a story it has some difficulty in getting under weigh; but after Ariel enters the Court of Belshazzar and encounters the siren, Istar, the action is swift and dramatic, and the descriptions have the vivid coloring that gives books of this kind a peculiar and perennial interest.

"Gertie Swartz: Fanatic or Christian?"

If there is any place on earth where the best laid schemes of mice and men gang aft a-gley it is in novels. Helen R. Martin, whose numerous chronicles of the Pennsylvania Dutch have helped fill home libraries, in "Gertie Swartz: Fanatic or Christian?" permits the villainess, Stella, to murder her mother obliquely, tie up the family fortune in her own dainty hands, become all nicely engaged to a relic of the Middle Ages—then up pops the cheated heir to the fortune and preempts all of the wealth. Gertrude Swartz, sister of Stella, is a mild, inoffensive, educated young person who seems to have lately discovered George Bernard Shaw; and she sets about inculcating Shavian ideas into her own factory hands. Gertie teaches school and tells pupils that the Christian religion is no more divine than other ancient religions. In fact she talks a great deal, and is so absorbed in her Socialism—it is nothing else—that the unscrupulous Stella has the finances all her own way, though she does bungle in trying to force Gertrude into marriage. It is a very satisfactory story for the sentimental and particularly if they have recently been intrigued by sociological ideals.

"The Queen's Heart."

"The Queen's Heart," by J. H. Hildreth (Marshall Jones Company) is conventional and rather artificial American-hero-saves-the-queen sort of a story, not badly written, but certainly inartistically constructed and dragged out with tantalizing obscurity.

Northrop, a typical American youth, and Dorothy Howard, a typical American girl, find themselves adrift at sea and are picked up by a mysterious ship that proves to be devoted to the service of the Queen of Rhodes. She is the last of her line and Rhodes is fighting against the Turk for freedom. The ship encounters a Turkish man-of-war and knocks her to pieces. In the course of events Northrop and Dorothy are attached to the Queen's service, and he saves the Queen the number of times customary in such affairs. The book does end a little more sensibly and artistic than usual, but the ending can scarcely compensate for everything.

It is said that this story was written twenty-five years ago and that conditions which interfered with its publication have only lately been removed.

WAR BOOKS.

"Our First Year in the Great War."

In this small book Gen. Francis Vinton Greene, a distinguished retired officer of our army, gives a fearless analysis of our progress as a belligerent. It is published by G. P. Putnam's Sons.

He hoots at the censorship rules of the War Department, which, he says, withhold news of troop movements from everybody except German spies.

Victory for the Allies is predicted next year owing to the shortage in Germany of money, copper, rubber, coal, iron and fats.

The measure of our military progress is largely the rate at which we can build docks and railroad terminals at the inadequate French harbors. It isn't so much a matter of raising troops; or even getting them across; it is unloading the ships. However, Uncle Sam has already built several miles of French wharves and has replaced the dinky little French railroad trains with enormous American freight equipment.

The author expresses the belief that the submarine menace has been conquered. Delving into politics, he expresses the opinion that the next President of the United States is now commanding a regiment or a brigade in France.

"From Bapaume to Passchendaele."

Philip Gibbs stands out as the best war correspondent in this the greatest of all wars. In this book, put out by George H. Doran, Mr. Gibbs gives a vividly interesting and expert account of the fighting before Arras. It is over this same battleground that the British are pressing back the Germans. The book sparkles with lively incident and shrewd analysis.

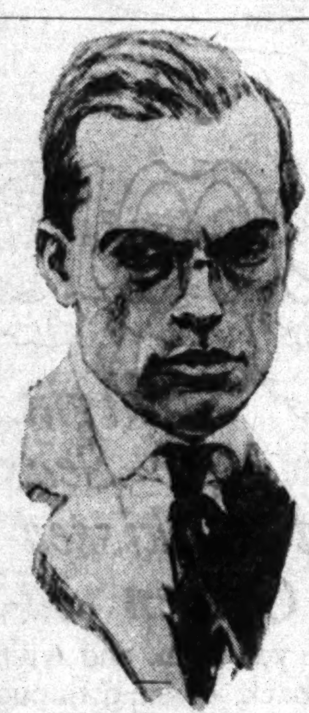
"High Altars."

George H. Doran has put out a book of impressions of the French front by John Oxenham. The armies were on the job when John called, but he didn't seem to get any remarkably interesting impressions.

"A Brief History of the King's Royal Rifle Corps."

This is a memorial to the memory of a famous regiment—formerly the Royal Americans—wiped out in the gallant English retreat from Mons. Its history is almost the history of the British empire. Recruited from trained American Indian fighters just after Braddock's defeat in 1755, it has taken part in every British war since—the Peninsular campaign against Napoleon, Indian Mutiny, Taku forts in China, Boer War, Afghan wars, etc. Its blood stains the map of the empire. The book is issued by Warren & Sons. The proceeds go to the Ladies' Guild of the regiment.

"Ambulancing on French Front."



Irving R. Allen,
Author of "The Money-Maker."
(Reviewed next Sunday.)

A frank boyish account of the adventures of bringing in wounded under fire by Edward R. Coyle from the publishing house of Britton, New York. Mr. Coyle gives some amazing instances of Hun outrages, such as throwing a French soldier out of a German hospital window when his bed was needed; putting on a hot stove a dying French child who had been shot by a German officer for spilling some milk.

"Individual Instruction of Rifle Practice."

This is a practical book of instruction by Lieut.-Col. A. J. Macnab issued from the publishing house of Stewart & Kidd, Cincinnati. He sums up good rifle shooting as follows:

"The good shot holds the sight as nearly on the mark as possible and keeps squeezing on the trigger until it goes off. The good shot is not the man with the quick eye. He is the man with the slow trigger."

"Khaki Komedy."

Soldier jokes collected from various newspapers and other sources by Sergt.-Maj. Edward D. Rose and published by the Howell Publishing Company of Chicago.

"Navigation."

A well and interestingly illustrated work in pocket size on practical navigation by Alfred Goldsborough Mayor, volunteer instructor in navigation at Princeton University, and published by Lippincott. Navigation is not a very chatty subject, but if anything could make it interesting this book is the thing.

BOOK NOTES.

"Under Orders."

Harold S. Latham, who for many years has been ushering other people's books onto the market and dragging geniuses from obscurity, has yielded to the temptation that sooner or later overcomes every man that tampers with the bottle—the ink bottle—and has written a book which Macmillans will publish in September. It is "Under Orders," a story for boys, full of action, pep, punch and fine ideas. One might almost call them ideals, but the preachy, paternal writers for young people have very nearly made the word obnoxious: they have had good intentions but no art. Mr. Latham for many years has been a connoisseur of literary art—and it is unusual to find a man who will retain his excellent, impersonal judgment when he gets his own face in the mirror.

W. D. Howells.

In the complete catalogue of Harper & Bros., sixty-two titles are given under the name of William Dean Howells. And Mr. Howells did not write many "thin" books.

John Gould Fletcher.

The Four Seas Company published on September 1 a limited edition (1000 copies) of John Gould Fletcher's new book, "Japanese Prints," illustrated by Dorothy Pulis Lathrop.

Dorothy Canfield.

Gen. Pershing has given Dorothy Canfield permission to dedicate to him a new book of stories, "Home Fires in France," that will be published soon by Henry Holt & Co.

Gorky Arrested.

The Century Company, American publishers for Maxim Gorky's autobiographical series, has received news of the author's arrest in Petrograd by order of the Soviet government. Gorky formerly supported Lenine and Trotzky, but now they are said to have suppressed his newspaper permanently and arrested him.

"One of Them."

Houghton Mifflin have published "One of Them," also called "a passionate autobiography," by Elizabeth Hazanowitz, a young Russian Jewess who came to this country moneyless, passed through the sweat shops, and finally became an investigator for many labor commissions. The story is said to resemble somewhat that of Mary Antin's "The Promise Land," which made a sensation a few years ago.

"The Void of War."

Reginald Farrer, an English novelist, was selected by the British Foreign Office to write a panoramic description of the entire fighting front from the British Channel to the Adriatic; and the book, "The Void of War," has just been issued by Houghton Mifflin Company.

"EXILES."

EXILES. By James Joyce. B. W. Huebach, New York.

James Joyce made a sensation in the circle of enthusiasts, that welcome with open arms most of the authors who are frowned upon by the moguls. Moguls are the entrenched authorities, the possessors of ex cathedra mouths — that is, mouths through which speaks the voice of Radamanthus. Radamanthus was the judge of the dead. See how complete my simile is, for so are college professors. Anyway, when Mr. Joyce's "Dubliners" and "A Portrait of the Artist as a Young Man," after being discarded and rejected by English publishers, and Irish, too, was courteously received by Mr. Huebsch, there being some commotion among those that appreciate the very daring, the very realistic, and—so his admirers claimed—the very artistic. It doesn't follow that professors are always wrong or that clangorous enthusiasts are usually right. Their respective values (and I include the professorial minded, whether or not they hold chairs) are debatable. But enthusiasts are born; their hearts pump an admixture of martyr's blood; if they are killed off and suppressed their loss is irretrievable; while any freshman, properly nurtured, can be turned into a very acceptable professor. In fact, all professors had been freshmen, and some of them have never been more than sophomores.

All of which is perhaps not even remotely connected with James Joyce's "Exiles." I am not an enthusiast, at least not over James Joyce; certainly not over "Exiles." It is the sort of a play that I do not understand; and what we do not understand is, of course, fit only to be cuffed into the hangman's hands. Certainly I don't understand it enough to be appreciative. Four characters of importance appear. They are definite characters, filling their parts; but their cause for existence is a psychological tragedy of, to me, an inconsequential nature; though Fra Lippo Lippi, speaking through the mouth of Browning, has declared nothing can be inconsequential in art:

> "The shapes of things, their colors, lights and shades, > Changes, surprises—and God made it all!"

Is anything "to be pass'd o'er, despised? or dwelt upon, Wonder'd at?"

Though it is very difficult to refute the scalawag Far Lippo, one knows instinctively that even among the things "God made" there are relative values. And the problem of even so sensitive and intelligent as man as Richard Rowan being jealous of his common-in-law wife because she has been faithful to him, and so is conscious of a kind of superiority over him, scarcely seems a worthy theme for three acts.

Bertha, the wife, has listened to the love talk of Robert Hand, the friend of her husband's. She has let him kiss her, embrace her, and she makes an assignation with him; all of which she dutifully and in detail confides with her peculiar husband, and he in turn, calmly repeats it all to the predatory lover. Richard says to Robert, while they are waiting for the wife to keep her assignation: "I longed to be betrayed by you and by her—in the dark, in the night—secretly, meanly, craftily. By you, my best friend, and by her. I longed for that passionately and ignobly, to be dishonored forever in love," and he further explains, after declaring that he would "build up his soul again out of the ruins of its shame," that: "She has spoken always of her innocence, as I have spoken always of my guilt, humbling me." He also suggests a motive still deeper though that isn't made clear; but one may suspect it is because the husband is unduly attracted by another woman and rather regrets that it is not Beatrice, instead of Bertha, with whom he is living.

Anyway the wife comes, and Richard talks with her a while, then leaves her to the assignation. Well, he is "betrayed" all right, though in the last act Robert insists—as only a gallant man could—that nothing of the kind happened. Richard has doubts, however, and complains that he has a "very deep wound of doubt in his soul;" and he talks nonsense—without arriving at a conclusion of any kind—to a woman aching for love, for her "strange, wild lover," the Richard of old.

The play is an intricate study of one man's morbid, introspective vagaries. The accuray of that study is beyond most men's experience to determine. But granting the accuracy—as one must do with those who, like early explorers, push into the wildernesses of psychology and bring back outlandish reports—yet the play is inconclusive, the problem is left suspended as high in the air as ever, higher in fact. That may be art, nevertheless; but I am more inclined to think it is a fashion among current dramatists. At any rate, it is unsatisfactory for those whose aesthetic appreciations are not refined enough to admire a problem that is complicated, rather than simplified. Better a wrong solution than no attempt at one. In the anteroom to Hell, Dante found the angels who had carefully refrained from taking sides when Satan rebelled against the Ineffable One; and judging by his attitude in "Exiles," Mr. Joyce, had he been in heaven at that time, would have been such an angel.

The Czar and the Baby.

Dr. E. J. Dillon, in "The Eclipse of Russia" (George H. Doran) relates that some years ago an admiral called on the Czar to report on the Baltic squadron and found His Majesty watching the bathing of his son. While the admiral was speaking the Czar cut in: "But are you aware that he weighs fourteen pounds?" In other words, weighty matters were outweighed by the infant heir to the throne.

SOCIETY.

POMONA.

Miss Cora Schively, sister of Mrs. E. D. Ross, No. 512 East Second street, Pomona, left Wednesday for Lawton, Okla., where she is to become the bride of Sergt. A. C. Hanover, a member of the Field Artillery at Camp Donaldson, Okla. The marriage of the couple will take place as soon as Miss Schively arrives in the East, and she will remain in Lawton until Sergt. Hanover is sent overseas.

Mrs. S. F. Davis, who will make her home this winter in Phoenix, Ariz., was the complimented guest at an informal farewell luncheon given by Mrs. Fred W. Niedermeyer, Glendale avenue, Monday evening. Roseate dahlias formed a dainty centerpiece for the table and sketches of the same flowers ornamented the place cards. Invited guests, several of whom have been Mrs. Davis's associates on the Ebell corporation board were Mesdames George W. Forester, Ferdinand Davis, George Richmond, W. B. Todd, J. W. Joos, A. B. Avis, George W. Cobb, C. E. Ramage and Miss Sarah Eager.

In celebration of their twentieth wedding anniversary Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Hemingway, No. 450 Columbia street, entertained a number of their friends at their home, Saturday evening. Five hundred furnished the evening's diversion and at the close of the games light refreshments were served. The home was attractively decorated for the occasion with pink roses and ferns. Before taking their departure the guests presented their hosts with a handsome chocolate set, which came as a very pleasant surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Hemingway. Those included on the guest list were Mr. and Mrs. George W. Reid and daughter, Katherine; Mr. and Mrs. P. D. Porter; Mr. and Mrs. J. U. Craige, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McCrosky, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Hargrave.

A jolly affair took place Friday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Ingham, No. 220 West Sixth street, Claremont, when their daughter, Miss Grace Ingham and Miss Mary Harwood entertained a group of their friends in honor of Miss Neva Clevenger, who leaves next week for Santa Barbara. The affair took the form of a progressive card party, there being tables for whist, flinch and five hundred. Later in the evening various other games were enjoyed after which light refreshments were served. Those responding to invitations were the Misses Helen Campbell and Jeannette Chaney of Pomona, and from Claremont the Misses Neva Clevenger, Mary Gardner, Ada Meade, Louisa Clevenger, and Messrs. Wayne Gardner, Paul Bentley, Phillip Smith, Miles Allen, Dee DeLapp, Robert Harwood, Alfred Harwood and Clarence Steves. Miss Clevenger expects to leave September 1st for Santa Barbara where she plans to take a year's course in domestic science work at the Santa Barbara Normal School.

REDLANDS.

Mrs. Henry Fisher, who has adopted the boys of March Field, and is their godmother, was the honored guest at an officers' ball which was given at the field on Friday evening. Among those who attended from here were Mrs. Fisher, Miss Natalia Fisher, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Lefferts, John W. McGill, John H. Fisher, Miss Louise Ford and Mrs. Lewis F. Lever. The event was held at the officers' new clubhouse and the patrons and patronesses were Maj. and Mrs. J. C. P. Bartholf, Maj. and Mrs. Longley, Maj. and Mrs. C. G. Eicher and Capt. and Mrs. William Alden Smith, Jr. Among others there were Constance Talmadge, Dorothy Gish, Joan Boisem, Edna Purviance, Zazu Pitts, Liela Lee, Sarah Mason, Grace d'Armand, Kathleen Perkins and Leota Lorraine.

One of the big social events of the season for the Red Cross in Bear Valley was a dance given by Mrs. W. M. Stocker at Knight's Camp, following a tamale supper which was served at her camp.

Miss Louise De la Riva has been entertaining for several days for William De la Riva and daughters, Misses Corinne and Estella, of Montalvo, Ventura county. The visitors made the trip to Redlands in their automobile. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wallbridge of San Bernardino entertained with a luncheon for the visitors.

A "warp party" given by the ladies of the Elks' Club at the clubhouse proved to be a most delightful affair, although very informal. Five hundred was the game played. Mrs. D. M. Kirkpatrick was in charge of the decorations, and Mrs. Henry Darling entertained the visitors with fortune telling. A musical programme was given by Mildred Wheat, Francis Welton, Louise Ford and J. H. Quinn.

Miss Helen Huber and Horace A. Hall, two well-known residents of Loma Linda, were married on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Workman in Loma Linda. Elder W. F. Martin of Riverside presided. The attendants were Miss Anna Mathieson and Arthur Kretschmar. They have gone to Big Bear Valley, where they will spend their honeymoon.

RIVERSIDE.

An interesting announcement of the week was that of the engagement of Miss Margery Wright, daughter of Tree Warden S. L. Wright, to Overton Ross, who is now stationed at Fort Winfield Scott, San Francisco. The prospective groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Ross of this city and a graduate of the Boys' Polytechnic High School. The guests learned the pretty secret when they entered the dining-room. Inspection of the place cards, on which stood droll little kewpies, revealed the names of the hostess and her fiance. The refreshments were served by the Misses Irene and Isabelle Ross. Assisting the hostess were her mother and Mmes. H. A. Ross and M. D. Wright. No date has been set for the wedding. Miss Wright will leave next month to enter Berkeley for her junior year.

The men of E. Squadron of March Field, composed largely of Southern California men, were hosts Saturday evening at the Elks' Clubhouse. The effective decorative scheme, which had a patriotic motif, was devised by Sergt. Guy Lambert of this city. In the receiving line with a group of local society leaders were the squadron commander, Lieut. S. S. McCahill and Mrs. McCahill. The patronesses were Maj. and Mrs. J. C. P. Bartholf, Maj. and Mrs. F. B. Longley, Capt. and Mrs. William Alden Smith, Jr., Mrs. Horace Porter, Mr. and Mrs. Will L. Clark and Mr. and Mrs. Tom D. Esgate. Programmes for the evening's dancing were artistic little souvenir booklets bearing the names of all the men of the squadron, printed in the Signal Corps colors.

Mrs. Oscar Ford and Mrs. Sallie Dearborn were chaperons Wednesday evening to a merry crowd of young people, who sought out the summit of Mt. Rubidoux as a cool spot in which to enjoy an al fresco supper. A huge bonfire afforded coals for the toasting of "wienies," and later a center about which the picnickers gathered for the singing of songs to the accompaniment of ukeleles.

PALOMAR.

Miss Gladys Wolfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned E. Wolfe, and sister of Roland Wolf, became the bride of A. Kale, Saturday evening, at the home of Mrs. O. W. Groves in Los Angeles. A wedding supper was served and the evening spent in dancing. Mr. and Mrs. Kale will make their home in Los Angeles concluding a brief honeymoon trip.

Mrs. M. Peterson was hostess at a prettily-appointed luncheon the other day at the H. C. Ritter home on Watts avenue and Eleventh street. A variety of blossoms from the home garden adorned the rooms and centered the board, where covers were laid for Mrs. W. B. Jett, Mrs. H. Marcom, Mrs. M. Peterson, Miss Freda Blade and J. Ritter.

THE SIMPLE TRUTH
FOR BOYS AND PARENTS
Things your boy should know.
50 CENTS AT BOOKSTORES.

Would You Marry This Man ?

He had struggled from earliest youth to keep his mother and himself in comfort. He had no time to acquire an education, but through inventions had amassed a fortune. Then he met Kate Bates, who had run away from the farm to teach school. He courted her—she loved him. On Sunday he would marry her, but in the meantime he wrote a letter that showed clearly his lack of education.

What did Kate do? What would you have done?

DIAMONDS AFTER THE WAR

The problem of providing for a $2,000,000,000 after-the-war pension fund in England will, in the opinion of trade authorities, necessitate a tax on diamonds and other luxuries.

Inasmuch as London controls 90 per cent. of the world's diamond production, it is very obvious that we, in this country, will have to pay more for perfect diamonds after the war than we are paying today.

Our diamond stocks at the present time are unusually complete, and we are fortunate to be able to offer values which we ourselves could probably not duplicate in the market today. We cordially invite a comparison of values.

The Seamstress

What in the world you reckon makes some folks so contrary? I heard a man say the other day that they was the spice of life; that, if everybudy agreed livin' would be a tame sort of occupation. Well my land! It looks like to me that livin' with a contrary person is something like eatin' red pepper on all your vittles whether you want it or not; it's condyments and cayenne instead of spice.

I sewed for a girl the other day what pretty near put me in bed. How her mother stands it land knows. What she ort to of had when she was little was walnut switch sauce and hickory catchup. And now it is too late and she is dissatisfied with everything on earth. It looks like to me that she jest lives to make somebudy mad and—Ma'm? No'm, I'll never sew for her again.

Yes'm, I'm a little shaky this morning. Isabel Pearl (that's my daughter what married the half lame man and lives in Canady) has come home and brought her little boy. He's the sweetest kind of a little feller, but he likes to stay awake nights and sleep a little in the day time and so we ain't getting to say much sleep at our house. Lonny (that's my husband) is just plum crazy about that youngster. He is having a little time off of work just now and so he is making the boy all kinds of pretty things to play with. Lonny is right smart at making such things. O, thank goodness, I ain't got a contrary person in my family.

Well, this girl got me more upset than what I'd been if I'd stayed awake lots of nights with the baby. Why she is so unhappy that it looks like to me she gits mad if anybody else is a little happy. She is jealous of her young friends and looks like a thundercloud if any of them have a easy and pleasant time. If they ask her, ladylike, to come and go with them to the picture show or somewhere their mothers made 'em ask her ('cause don't none of 'em want her much now and she wonders why) she looks sour as can be and says she don't think she cares to. And acts like she thinks she is superior and don't envy nobudy what is so easy entertained.

Well, if they don't ask her, she will break her neck to go, and if they say anything to her pleasant-like about it being a nice show, she grins and says it's the worst she ever saw. She always lays and waits to see what will be the most disagreeable side to take.

If this here girl's mother don't help her to do things without being asked (and she always has a grievance against them what ain't doing for her all the time) she pouts around and acts sulky, but the minute her mother suggests something it's always the wrong thing. "That won't do at all," she says auful cross.

But, I'll tell you the only thing that makes her smile and seem happy (course such selfish folks ain't never really happy), and that is when she thinks she has got something nobudy else has got and has been some fine place and a spending money and taking it easy. My land! Her eyes jest dance with evil fire and she taunts and taunts. Yes'm, she's just plain ugly in her nature.

I made that girl a pretty dress finally. But save us! What a trying test of my nerves and her mother's nerves and all the servants' nerves it was. It was scandalous how much harm that girl done them two days. Ma'm?

And I stuck myself something auful two or three times. That annoyed her same as when her mother tells her she is tired. Nobudy has got a right to be even sufferin' much less disagreeable—Ma'm? Yes'm, it was a blue serge, and this is the way I'd make yor little Mary Alice's:

How old is she? Twelve? I thought that was just about the age. And she ort to have the prettiest dress in town, with them rosy cheeks and that reddish hair of hers. . . .

Ma'm? Oh, land! You can't git away from wool embroidery if you want to. I know 'twas used a lot last winter and the winter before and the winter before, and goodness knows how long. But can't you just see how pretty her navy blue dress would be for fall to wear with tan shoes and stockings and her reddish hair if it was embroidered in shades of brown, kind of russet shades, and have a tan leather belt I saw the other day? The belt was one whole piece in the back, and it was split in front to the sides and fastened with two buckles in the front.

Well, the dress could have two box plaits, one at each shoulder. They could run down to a short waistline and at the waist be slashed to have the belt run through. The serge box plait could be buttonholed in two shades of russet just as wide as the belt is. You can let in a piece under the box plait toward the front to almost meet like a little jacket. Cut these jacket fronts off a little below the waistline, face 'em back, buttonhole them around and put a a flap under the front. The belt will buckle across them, and the lower edge of the jacket fronts will come just a little below the belt buckles. Cut the neck round and buttonhole it and let a little design in wool embroidery run out on the shoulders over the box plaits. The pockets can be trimmed with the same designs. Make white crepe collars and cuffs.

Long Time Off.

"When you were wooing me you made many extravagant promises."

"So I did, my dear. I particularly recall one."

"What was it?"

"I swore I'd love you till the sun grew cold. Scientists tell me that will be not less than 30,000,000 years hence."—[Birmingham Age-Herald.

"AUTUMN AHOY!"

Straight into the dawn of the New Season --- Over a rugged sea kissed by the rising sun into waves of Golden rod--- —"Autumn Ahoy! Where are you from, and whither are you bound—"

—And the ringing cry comes back, dancing through the glistening spray

—"Ahoy, the Land! From the great glad ports we come, from the Happy Harbors of Fashion and the new—straight to Los Angeles and Bullock's—and our Cargo is fine and full—for

A Festival of Beauty and of Style

—"We will dock at once, if you please, for there is much to be done—to be Ready Tuesday

—"Monday being Labor Day, of course, Bullock's will not be open—

—"So that, of necessity, it must be Tuesday—and what Joy the day will bring—!

—"If you could know—as I have seen and you will see——"The glorious loveliness of the Silks, as they are—the new satin Duvetynes—the pebble backed charmeuse—the rippling Satin Ondule (and these merely for example)—the rainbow range of New Velvets as they are superb—

—"The fascination of Woolens that are new—Duvetynes, 54 inches wide, and worthy—Bolivia Coatings, Velours, Broadcloths and Tricotines (the woolens that it is not impossible that some one may say 'there can be no more')— If you could see as you will see—then you would know as you may know—if you will come to Bullock's and to the Second floor—for the second floor will be the place of these new silks and velvets——and so many, many more—

—"And the second floor, too, will be the place of New Cottons, (flannels, and the weightier weaves for fall), cottons upon which the caress of the artist is still brilliant, as the touch of love—

—"There are Ginghams, too, and fabrics all white that are wizardly, and colored stuffs, like textures wove of dreams—

—"And the Laces and Trimmings more difficult to get than they have ever been—and, for that very reason perhaps, more in the minds of everyone— Laces that are rich and magnificent; Laces that are fragile and delightful; Laces, trimmings—(yes, plenty of Fur—and a sufficiency of fringe)—all endowed—with charm of personality—all on the second floor—

—"And if you will come with me to the third floor—(in imagination—I can see them now)—the mystery Suits of yarn. Yes, of yarn—knitted suits of yarn—and the wit of art, for that is as evident as the suits themselves—slender, witching affairs in many styles with collars and without—sashed, or clinging without belts—fetching they are, and, so far as known only at Bullock's, yet—

—"and Wool knit motor Coats—(seven-eighths, the length)—in addition to Coats of bizon suede, velour de laine and smart Bolivia—

—"And Blouses! Listen, let's not try to describe them—almost as though from fairyland, so fancy and so fair——"and a New departure, an intensive specialization, a concentration upon Millinery for Matrons which means what it means, and what it says—

—a carefully acquired assemblage of Millinery for Matrons—of Autumn Hats that are new and as distinguished and different and likable as is Bullock's other Millinery (of which there will also be such a sterling display)— But it is This New Feature—this Millinery for Matrons that wishes firmest emphasis for Tuesday—

—"It has been so much needed—and it is so splendid and ready now—(will you help spread the news?)

—"On the 4th floor 'the store for Boys and Girls'—(Jimmy, do be careful and not make any more mistakes) on the 4th floor at Bullock's—remember—and

School Clothing

—is to receive an eloquent presentation—Tuesday—supplementing all those that have been made so enthusiastically, particularly during the past week—

—"There are to be New Suits for Boys and Dresses for Girls, and Shoes and Hosiery and Everything—

—"Remember, at Bullock's — 4th floor.

Note! that very important exploitation of Furs

will continue upon Tuesday—

—that it is far from ordinary is evidenced by the character of the furs and the prices they are marked—.

—That Bullock's is fortunate in being able to present the opportunity for a wee bit longer is the fact— And those who desire furs should profit—

—Considering not only that these furs are the furs that they are, but also that they are to be purchased under the vouchment of Bullock's—one appreciates that.

—This is, indeed, an important exploitation and an occasion that should not be overlooked—Third Floor—

—"And one musn't forget—the New College Princess Dresses for young women who are to go to schools and colleges—These College Princess Dresses are so daintily apropos—in the section that is so much their very own—the section like which there is no other—for misses and women of slight and slender figure—at Bullock's—3rd floor—

—"On the fourth floor, New Silk Underwear and Knit Sweaters and other things—

—"On the 5th floor, the great, complete Luggage Store that has been winning the praise of those who want luggage by having the luggage they want, and values, and Wardrobe Trunks particularly.

—"On the 6th and 7th floors the New Rugs, the Draperies and Furniture and the Men who know with the Service that helps in the furnishing of rooms and the building of homes— Your Service—just a suggestion from you is all that it needs to work and work well in your interests——"and then there is the first floor—purposely considered at the last because of its advantage of location—

—"It will be so easy for you to see the New Shoes, and Hosiery, and Neckwear that will be here—the Veilings and the Gloves—the Ribbons, Jewelry and other things—

—"And Bullock's Basement Store—as new in its Autumn interest as is every section on every floor—

—"By Tuesday—the cargo will be shifted and the Festival will begin—the Festival of Beauty and style—brought purposely to Bullock's, just for you——"And the thought that is with every one and every thing is definitely fixed upon actions rather than words—as actions are to interpret anew the idea which is of the spirit of Bullock's and which has to do with an ideal and the winning of friends.

—"To do all things well—To serve for the joy that comes from service—To accomplish as the result of effort definitely applied toward making Bullock's mean more than Bullock's has ever meant—to Bullock's and to you——"To welcome difficulties for the strength that comes from conquering them—

—"The road lies on ahead and sincerity will point the way—"

Pulling a few stiff hairs from the face may start a serious growth. Let me demonstrate free of charge how pulling, cutting, using wax depilatories and the so-called hair removers promote growth of hair on the face. My electric machine is the only known method of killing superfluous hair, fuzz, warts and moles, without destroying the surrounding tissue. This machine destroys 360 hairs an hour. I have had 19 years' experience and devote all my time to this work. A binding guarantee that any hairs or moles I treat will never return. Many L. MAKE NO CHANGE

UNTIL YOU HAVE CONSULTED

CLARKE,

THE MASTER PSYCHIC.

Every day a stream of people pass in and out of his office on Alvarado street, some go away smiling, others more hopeful than for years, for this marvelous psychic, who sees all and tells all without asking a solitary question, is always able to restore the wavering faith in others and give them back that self-confidence which makes for success. He helps you gain what you wish at once, almost immediately removes the cause of any bad luck, bad habits, sickness, trouble or failure. He helps you win back the love you have lost.

"CHARACTER IS DESTINY."

Down through the ages, Seers, Saints and Saviours have proclaimed man's divinity; but it remained for the advancing science of mind at the dawn of the twentieth century to accomplish the complete destruction of the dogma of the freedom of the will and to definitely indentify the Real Man as a fragment of Nature governed by natural law. The Inner Man, or Soul, is an immortal Atom of the One Substance; while the Outer Man is but the mortal compound of immortal elements in which the Real Man is incarnated. It is the divinity of the Real Man within which "shapes our ends, rough hew them as we will." Man is governed by a divine and immutable law which impels him to do that which he thinks is for his greater good or lesser ill; but when he knows different, he desires different and does different. Thus man is divine and so-called "sin" an "evil" is shown to be but a manifestation of ignorance, and true salvation may only come through that intuitive perception of Truth we know as Wisdom, as Law, as Love, as God. The Master Psychic who has attained to Cosmic Consciousness is a Soul Seer and Mental Chemist who teaches you how to awaken the latent powers of the Inner Self and gain what you desire—to make the Ideal Real.

Thousands of the best people of this city and surrounding country have consulted the master psychic, and are amazed at what he is able to tell them. He not only gives you more help, more knowledge and power than any other psychic, but more than all other mediums and psychics combined.

All are welcome to his beautiful home, opposite Westlake Park, where they may read all the inspiring books of his large library, whether they wish to have a reading or not. Those who wish to take up character reading as a pastime or profession will find all the latest books on palmistry, astrology, graphology, card-reading, phrenology, the science of names and numbers, etc., at the circulating library, for loan or for sale.

Today new opportunities are at hand. You may be able to get a better position, better salary or business, dispose of your property to advantage. The time to do things is now. Call at once. Readings daily and Sunday 10 to 7. Low fee—50c.

For appointment Phone Wilshire 2956.

PERSONAL— PEERLESS PALMER,
AMERICA'S GREATEST PSYCHIC.
50c—READINGS THIS WEEK—50c.

Calls you by name and tells the object of your visit without asking a question. Names enemies and friends. Tells whom and when you will marry; if the one you love loves you; whether wife or sweetheart is true or false; how to influence any one you desire, even though a thousand miles away. Develops personal magnetism; causes speedy and happy marriage with the one of your choice. Gives advice on all matters of business.

He gives more satisfaction, more encouragement, more success, more help, more facts than any other Psychic. He is worthy your confidence.

REMOVES EVIL INFLUENCES.

Do you find the one you have bestowed your affection and trust upon acting cool and indifferent? Has a rival or obstacle of any kind crept between you and your future home, or has misfortune assailed the quietude of your happy home? COME TO THE GIFTED MEDIUM and find help.

THE PROFIT

in life's sunshine, conscious power, magnetism to attract and strength to hold. It's not so much in what I tell you as it is what I do for you by my special influence, that I put forth in your behalf to overcome all your sorrows and troubles so that you can have the power to win your greatest desires. What good is a psychic's advice unless they are able to lift you out of your troubles, worriments and bad luck? None whatever.

I will accept no fee unless you receive perfect satisfaction.

FOR SALE—

CHANDLER "SIX."

TOURINGS. CHUMMY ROADSTERS.

You do not dare to purchase a Chandler until you have investigated the REBUILT—REFINISHED—FULLY GUARANTEED—ones that we are offering at a range of prices from $650 to $1550 on TERMS. You cannot respect yourself as a wise purchaser unless you at least learn about these values and what CHANDLER SERVICE and CHANDLER GUARANTEES will mean to you for the next YEAR to come. Our business is the sale of new Chandlers, this has been our business since the CHANDLER was first placed on the market. WE KNOW practically every CHANDLER owner in this city and we know quite a bit about the way he has used his car. We will not accept his car in exchange on a new one if he has abused it. We do not have to. We cannot get all the new CHANDLERS now that we can sell, so you may rest assured that we are particular about the used cars we take in trade. If you don't believe this, try us out with some car that is not up to standard and see how quickly we will refuse it. We are NOT independent, but we are careful of our reputation and we do not want to be forced to offer a poor used car for sale.

SAYS HOLLAND IS STARVING.

Returned Traveler Tells of Great Food Shortage.

Hemmed in on All Sides Dutch are in Dire Straits.

Oranges Five Dollars, Eggs Two Bits Apiece.

Little Holland is slowly but surely starving to death! Encompassed about by either "occupied" or original German territory, it has no neighbor with whom to safely cast its lot in the great world struggle—in the struggle for its own survival—and in the midst of its great plight it is bravely striving to be friendly to all—dying between "the devil and the deep, blue sea" for the principle of neutrality.

Thus is Holland's economical status summed up by Miss Antoinette Leyendekkers, pretty Dutch girl, who has just returned to Hanford from a year's sojourn in Europe, five months of which time was passed in Holland. She declares that thousands will perish for want of food and fuel in the winter coming unless providence or political events come to the rescue to temper the winds to the shorn lamb.

"How glad I am to be back in dear old America," Miss Leyendekkers exclaimed when inquiry brought the incidents of her eventful trip before her over a tray of dinner dishes. "My poor people," she continued.

FOOD PROBLEM IS SERIOUS.

The people of Holland have money, she said, but they cannot buy that which they need to sustain life. Sickness abounds by reason of the all-pervading condition of improper nourishment, and little children of well-to-do parents are crying for food, she declared.

"I did not taste meat for more than six weeks before leaving for America," Miss Leyendekkers said. "There are eggs, but these as a substitute are almost prohibitive, except to the wealthy, the price being 26 cents each."

The people of Holland are on the most far-reaching rationing programme imaginable. Everything is purchased through the card system. Two hundred grams of bread daily (four small slices) is the maximum, and this is not enough when it is considered that an ounce of meal and an ounce of rice each week are the alternatives for bread, which the people of Holland have made the basis of their eating for centuries.

"My people must have bread," she said. "They are a bread-eating people. One cannot have more than the 200 grams, no matter what price they offer. Thus it is," Miss Leyendekkers continued, "that the children of fathers who are required to work are sufferers. The fathers cannot work on four small slices of bread a day, and the children must give up a little of their ration to the breadwinner, who perhaps may have ample means with which to buy his babies more if it were obtainable. I have seen mothers give their little ones a half-penny and tell them to buy themselves a toy or something, sending them away from the table with only partially-filled stomachs, the excitement of the prospective purchase taking their appetites for the extra slice of bread which the father would reluctantly devour while they were gone."

An insight into the food conditions is gained when Miss Leydendekkers points out that oranges are $5 each and that she paid $1.75 for a single lemon for a sick friend.

FEARS FOR COMING WINTER.

"I don't know what my people are to do this winter," she said. "They are given a ration of six pounds of potatoes weekly, but this bids fair to be greatly reduced for Germany is demanding potatoes in exchange for fuel, iron and such materials as Holland needs to sustain its industries. Holland cannot afford to give a single potato to Germany, yet its wheels must be kept turning."

Miss Leydendekkers recounts some interesting experiences on her trip. She left here during the time when America was about to take over Dutch shipping. Arriving at New York she was unable to obtain sailing accommodations, and after some weeks trying she decided to carry out her intentions by sailing for France, and reaching Holland through France, Switzerland and Germany. Except for a seven weeks' delay awaiting her passports in Germany and Switzerland, she had no difficulty on the trip."

"I was glad to get away from France," she said. "There, everyone seems to be in mourning and everywhere one encounters saddening evidences of the terrible war. I can stand, with reasonable nerve, the sight of empty sleeves and crutches, but the many persons one sees with disfigured faces and the presence of mourning so manifest everywhere, is extremely depressing. In the part of Germany I sojourned in for some weeks one sees less of that condition. The reason is that the soldiers and civilians do not travel on the same trains and they entrain and disentrain in different sections of the stations in the cities I visited.

WAS UNDER SUSPICION.

"While in Germany I was constantly under suspicion. Officers frequently questioned me. I must say that when they found out I was Dutch they were somewhat more kind than I had expected and I have no complaint to enter against them, except that they were perhaps somewhat too searching in their duties and inconvenienced me no little amount at times. I have one German officer to thank for aiding me on my trip. He saw that I was routed through Frankfort and knowing that I might go more conveniently to Holland through Strassburg, he so arranged it. At the border of Holland my baggage was removed over the line and I myself was under the escort of five officers."

PASSPORT HARD TO OBTAIN.

An interested incident of Miss Leyendekkers's trip occured when, because she had spent some time in Germany and the fact that she had journeyed from America at such a time of political upheaval looked strange, she was refused a passport back to America.

"I was put to the necessity of proving my interest in returning to the States," she said. "I was at loss to know how to convince the officials at first and consulted the American Consul. He asked me if I had property in America. I told I had and then I thought of my Liberty Bond—I had bought a $500 bond a few weeks before leaving and still owed something on it. The bond, of course, I did not have with me, but I had a letter from the bank in Hanford, where I bought it and in the letter it was made clear that I was the purchaser of an American Liberty Bond. This proved the open sesame. I exhibited this letter and obtained a passport."

Statues of Former German Rulers to be Made Into Cannon for Army.

AMERICAN PEARL IS MADE INTO ORIENTAL.

CHEMICALS GIVE ROSY TINT; MANIPULATORS SENT TO PARIS JAIL FOR FRAUD.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, Aug. 8.—How an American white pearl worth $14,400 was treated with a chemical, given temporarily the rosy hue of an oriental pearl, and then sold for $52,000, has been disclosed here. For doing this, Barboza, a pearl broker, and Varma, a Hindu, were fined and sentenced to imprisonment for faking. By use of chemicals they endeavored to increase the value of the pearls fourfold.

This case clears up the mystery which has existed in the Paris market for five years, since a dealer in precious stones first learned that "manipulated pearls" were being sold here.

Varma, who is a lapidary, claimed in court that he possessed a method of improving American pearls and that he had been promised a share in all the profits derived in treating the one which led to his detection if it were sold for more than $21,600. He was at work at it when it was seized by the police. The evidence showed that Varma had used on the pearl acetate of amyl and collodion.

A pearl expert, Reinach, told the judge that Varma had given the pearl the rosy tint of the oriental by glazing it with chemicals, but that the glazing disappeared when the pearl was placed in alcohol.

Varma was sentenced to six months in prison and to pay a fine of $1000, while Barboza was sentenced to three months and to pay a fine of $100.

In its judgment, the court stated that sea pearls from the Orient are very luminous and attain high prices, while fresh water pearls, called American, are less fine, generally white, and of lower value. The pearl treated by Varma, the court added, had been offered to leading Paris and American jewel houses which had failed to detect the deception he had practiced.

The court declared that Varma's treatment added no value to the pearl, and that it had only a temporary effect which disappeared if the pearl were rubbed or placed in alcohol.

ASK SPANISH PEOPLE TO BE CALM IN CRISIS.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

MADRID, Aug. 30.—Foreign Minister Dato, in connection with the foreign situation as it affects Spain, today issued the following statement:

"Our country, like all neutral countries, is meeting with difficulties in its relations with belligerent countries which hitherto always have been settled and also will be settled in the future, particularly if public opinion does not become alarmed and accords the government confidence and support."

Senor Dato appealed to the newspapers to calm their expressions of opinion so as not further to complicate the government's task.

The Foreign Minister this morning had a long conference with the American Charge d'Affaires.

JAPAN INQUIRES INTO RICE, LABOR TROUBLES

[BY PACIFIC CABLE AND A. P.]

TOKIO, Wednesday, Aug. 28.—The Japanese government is planning the organization of a commission composed of officials, bankers, business men and scientists to study the question growing out of the recent food disturbances, including labor and social problems.

The recent riots have been followed by strikes at several of the industrial centers and especially in the mining districts where considerable property has been burned.

LONDON BOBBIES WIN STRIKE FOR MORE PAY.

[BY ATLANTIC CABLE AND A. P.]

LONDON, Aug. 31.—The London policemen who were out on strike are returning to duty. The government recognized their union not as a trade union, but as a federation. A delegation of the police has gone to inform Premier Lloyd George of the men's acceptance of the government's terms.

The terms include a raise in pay of thirteen shillings weekly with increased pensions and allowances for children.

Considerable lawlessness marked the first night without police protection. During the earlier hours there were some harmless demonstrations, but later on the thieves became active and daylight found a number of windows of jewelers' shops and other places of business broken and considerable property stolen.

GEN. FRANKLIN BELL MAY COMMAND CAMP LEWIS.

Western Officer is Considered Likely to Head "Lucky Thirteenth."

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CAMP LEWIS (Wash.) Aug. 24.—Who will be the next major-general in command at Camp Lewis? This is the question that officers and men here have been asking since the reduction in rank of Maj.-Gen. H. A. Greene. The question has been put more often since the Ninety-first Division left for France and the organization of the new Thirteenth Division began.

The name of Maj.-Gen. J. Franklin Bell, in command of the Western Department of the United States Army, with headquarters in San Francisco, is most prominently mentioned in connection with the post. He has seen service in the cavalry during the Indian fighting days and was in the island during the insurrection. He was commander of the Philippines' Division from 1911 to 1914 and has been commander of the Western Department since October, 1914. He was Chief of Staff of the United States Army from 1906 to 1910, and is one of the best known officers in the country.

The West considers Maj.-Gen. Bell one of her own and it is said there would be general satisfaction if he were named to command western men.

VANDERBILT AT CAMP.

The first officer higher than the rank of colonel to be on duty at Camp Lewis since the departure last June of the Ninety-first Division is Brig.-Gen. Cornelius Vanderbilt, III, who was recalled from France to command an infantry brigade of the new Thirteenth Division here.

Gen. Vanderbilt arrived at the cantonment a few days ago and assumed command of the camp, succeeding Col. E. N. Jones, commander of the Forty-fourth Infantry, who has been in charge since the departure of Brig.-Gen. F. S. Foltz, who went to France with the Ninety-first.

The new camp commander obtained three degrees at Yale—A.B., 1895; Ph B., 1898, and M.E., 1899. He is widely known as capitalist. Soon after graduating from college, Gen. Vanderbilt entered the New York National Guard as a second lieutenant. He was regularly promoted until he attained the rank of colonel. When the New York National Guard was Federalized and sent to Europe, he went along. His record was such that he was recently promoted to brigadier-general and recalled from France to assist in whipping new National Army men into shape.

DEMOCRATIC OFFICER.

Gen. Vanderbilt is already known at Camp Lewis as a most democratic officer. He is strictly business and while his social position is such that he is much in demand at affairs in Tacoma and other cities near the cantonment, he devotes his whole energy to the task at hand. He thinks winning the war is more important than anything else, and is seldom absent from the cantonment, even for a few hours.

The new camp commander is the sixth general to be assigned to the cantonment. Of the five who preceded him only two, Brig.-Gen. Edward Burr and F. S. Foltz, went overseas with their original Camp Lewis commands. The other three officers were reduced in rank and are now stationed at posts almost as remote as the world will allow.

Former Maj.-Gen. H. A. Greene, who trained the Ninety-first Division, and who was one of the major-generals to spend several weeks at the French front, is now in the Philippines with the rank of brigadier-general.

Brig.-Gen. J. A. Irons, who came to Camp Lewis to command the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Depot Brigade, was next in rank to Gen. Greene. He commanded Camp Lewis when its major-general was absent in France and after his return was transferred to Camp Greene. Shortly after he was returned to his Regular Army rank of colonel.

STYER IN SIBERIA.

Col. Henry D. Styer, also a former brigadier-general at Camp Lewis, who was in command of the One Hundred and Eighty-first Infantry Brigade, is now in Siberia with the Allied forces which are trying to restore order in that country. When the news of the landing of the first American troops at Vladivostok was announced, Col. Styer's name was given as the officer in command of the force. Much satisfaction is expressed at Camp Lewis over the fact that Col. Styer has been honored with such an important command.

Work of organization of the new Thirteenth Division at Camp Lewis, already dubbed by many as "the Lucky Thirteenth," is being effected with the First and Forty-fourth Infantry, Regular Army regiments as a nucleus. The two veteran organizations have seen service in several wars and their well trained men are expected to be the backbone of the new division.

The First United States Infantry, which is the oldest regiment in the army, reported at the cantonment from Honolulu with a strength of 1260 men. Half of these men have been transfered to another unit and 2900 selective army men have been transferred from the One Hundred and Sixty-sixth Depot Brigade to bring the regiment to full strength. The men who have left the First Infantry are members of the Seventy-fifth Infantry.

The Forty-fourth Infantry, also a Regular Army regiment, which has been at the cantonment now for nearly a year, has been divided in the same way to form the Seventy-sixth Infantry. The First and Seventy-fifth regiments and Machine-gun Battalion form the Twenty-fifth Infantry Brigade and the Forty-fourth and Seventy-sixth regiments of the Twenty-sixth Brigade.

If the draft ages are raised by Congress, as now seems certain, many older men will be inducted into the service at Camp Lewis in time to train with the Thirteenth Division before that organization is sent overseas.

AMERICANS TAKING PRETTY FRENCH WIVES.

MANY MARRIAGES RECORDED AND/PARIS FEARS WOMEN MAY GO TO AMERICA.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

PARIS, July 30.—"Let me give you a little advice," says a writer in the Intransigeant, addressing himself to the maidens of France. "There are many Americans in France and you know very well how charming they find you. They find our women more disposed to be fellow-workers with them than those of other countries, they appreciate you highly, but, my dear little French girls, you must not be frivolous.

"Americans are grown-up children, somewhat ingenuous, a trifle puritan, and quite ready to marry you, and an American husband and a French wife make an excellent married couple. So do not waste the chance of that marked purity which is so seldom found among the men of ancient Europe."

Another writer, in the Petit Journal, welcomes the report that American-French marriages are becoming very common, as excellent from the idyllic and sentimental point of view also for the fusion of the two races, but expresses some anxiety as to its effect on the repopulation of France. He fears that when the war is over, the American husbands will carry away their French wives across the Atlantic and France will lose that many households, a loss that the country is in no condition to stand.

The writer quotes a letter that he has received from a French girl, engaged to an American, in which she says that she had laid down no conditions in accepting the proposal but had made her fiance understand that after the war there would be work for every one in France and so he had promised to remain in France and if children came they should be French citizens.

"There's a good example," comments the article. "Let all French girls follow it. America will not be perceptibly poorer and France will be enriched. It is one more kind act that we can beg from our Allies and one they are not likely to refuse."

STORMY DAYS AFTER THE WAR PREDICTED.

[A. P. FOREIGN CORRESPONDENCE.]

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 10.—"Stormy days" after the war were predicted today by Sir Alfred Booth, presiding at the annual meeting of the Cunard Line. The principal dangers he foresaw were:

Difficulty of deflating currency and credit without destroying confidence.

The tendency to maintain government control which he said would produce a deadening effect on enterprise.

International attempt to divide up the raw materials of the world among competing industries, making politics, instead of price, the determining factor of distribution.

"The international jealousies engendered by such a system," said Sir Alfred, "would be sufficient to kill any league of nations where we might have to form."

Labor unrest due to false hopes of a new heaven and a new earth.

LONDON, Aug. 31. — Hjalmar Branting, the Swedish Socialist leader, discredits reports of an international Socialist conference at Interlaken, Switzerland, according to a Copenhagen dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. He says the meeting is of no importance and he declares there can be no talk as yet of a real international conference.

AN "OVERSEAS" SERVICE FLAG.

The "overseas" service flag has arrived. It is made in the regular oblong shape with a groundwork of red, having a target-like center composed of alternating bands of white and blue with a white center. If intended to honor only one man, the red star is placed in the white center. If more than one, the other stars are placed inside the white band.

The idea behind the new flag is similar to that which makes the War and Navy Departments put a little gold braided "V" shaped chevron on the right-hand cuff of the man who has been "over there."

The flag shows that the man for whom it is displayed has finished his training period and has left the shores of America behind him to do his bit toward making the world safe for democracy on the battlefields of France and Flanders.

The new flag has come into existence through a demand by the relatives of the men serving at the front for some distinctive way of showing their pride in those who are already at grips with the Huns. But as it is not always possible to tell when men actually enter battle, it has been decided that relatives will be entitled to display the flag as soon as the men board the transports.

The new flag will make the going away of the boys less hard to bear for the mothers and wives and sweethearts they leave behind, it is expected.—[New York Mail.

SPIRITED RUSH WINS VILLAGE

Chaplain from Battlefield Writes of Battle.

American Gunfire Amazes the German Officers.

Capture Made Without Help from the Allies.

Lieut. William Schwartz, who is now somewhere near the front-line trenches in France, writes his parents at Sierra Madre a letter containing many items of interest, of which the following are excerpts:

"Last night a chaplain, rated as a captain of the —— Artillery, spoke of his experience at the front. He was in the first division to go into the trenches and the first division that captured a French town. As no correspondents were with the division at the time of the taking of the village, little has been said about its work.

"The men went into the trenches at night, and by morning had the battery set up. All was quiet for several days, a condition which presages big doings.

"The village was captured by the Americans without help from the French or English, except with airplanes and a few instructors. The Germans afterwards with three divisions made eight counter-attacks, suffering heavy losses. Instead of driving the one American division back, the Huns lost ground. A prisoner when questioned gave the information that the Huns had received orders to drive the Americans back at all costs, because of the effect it would have on the morale of the Americans.

This division, after taking the town, received a message from the French officials that never in this war had artillery fire compared to that of the Americans. During the bombardment the Boches kept French women in the cellars of the houses.

SOUVENIR HUNTERS.

"There was no chance for the American officers to get souvenirs from the prisoners. By the time they reached the back trenches where the officers were, they had not a button, helmet, gas mask, or in some cases shoes left, for the doughboys had been first. A French officer, seeing the Americans climbing out of the trenches loaded down with souvenirs, remarked that England was fighting for the freedom of the seas, France for the freedom of her country, and the Americans for souvenirs.

"The Germans are very treacherous. A party of Americans was bringing in twenty-two prisoners when a German officer in the group picked up a gun and shot the lieutenant in charge. A few minutes later that German group was dead. After the village was taken the Americans had great sport coaxing the Boche from the cellars with smoke bombs. The Germans came out holding up their hands and crying, 'Kamerad.' But if the American turned his back for an instant one of the Huns would shoot him.

"The captain said that when the Germans start going backwards, as they soon will, there will be lots of noise in the States about having pity on the Boche, especially from papers like those of Hearst, which should be thrown out. This brought loud cheers from the boys in the audience. One of the favorite Boche tricks is to come over the line in a French airplane and sail along unmolested and unsuspected until he reaches a hospital or barracks which he can bomb.

DARING AVIATORS.

"The English are wonderful aviators and sportsmen, and have a splendid machine. They will not attack the Boche unless he is in superior force, while the Boche will run away unless he has the odds heavily on his side. Night after night sixty English planes, thirty fighting and thirty bombing, will leave on bombing expeditions and return without a single loss."

Lieut. Schwartz has a brother, Lieut. Charles Schwartz, now an instructor at the Sacramento aviation field. His sister, Katherine, a social favorite, recently married Lieut. Sherman of the balloon field at Arcadia. Preston Schwartz, their father, is known as the man with the largest and happiest family in Sierra Madre; there being nine children from an infant up to the soldier boys. Tommie, the next in line for service, is eagerly awaiting his graduation at the Pasadena High School to enable him to get into the service.

WILL SEE WILSON.

Rev. Herbert Booth Smith is Appointed Member of Two Important Commissions.

Rev. Herbert Booth Smith, pastor of Immanuel Presbyterian Church, has returned from his summer sojourn in the San Francisco Bay District, where he supplied various pulpits and spoke to the military men at the Presidio and other places.

He has been selected as one of forty men from the American Presbyterian Church to meet President Wilson on the 19th inst., and discuss with him plans for the tour which these ministers are to make, in teams of two, by which the entire country is to be covered.

The purpose of this campaign is to further arouse the churches of the nation to a sense of the tremendous tasks at their hands and to urge them to even now begin the work of planning for the days of reconstruction.

The pastor of Immanuel Church has also been appointed to membership in the General Evangelistic Committee of the entire Presbyterian Church, which is planning an evangelistic campaign to reach the whole country during the coming fall and winter. If the Immanuel session consents, he will be absent during the month of November, and part of December, on this speaking tour for the National Service Commission.

SENDS SOUVENIR.

Los Angeles Member of Engineers' Unit in France Tells Incidents of Soldier's Life.

Americans like music with their meals. Most of the Yanks in France at the present time would rather fight than eat, so they have music with their fighting, according to a letter received from Edward Corella, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Corella of No. 3145 East Third street. The Y.M.C.A. furnishes the wherewithal in the form of a piano.

Corella sent his parents an empty seventy-five-centimeter brass shell, which he had engraved in his spare moments with the words "Souvenir" and "1918." He also engraved on it the two-barred cross of Lorraine, which, he says, is seen on every building there, a sprig of thistle and a butterfly. Many of the Sammies learn enough engraving in order to send the folks at home a hand-carved "souvenir" from which a whizzing lead souvenir has been ejected at the Huns.

Corella, with the United States engineers, spent six months under fire, but, as he naively writes, "the Huns did not reach my address with a shell." There is a mark on his uniform, however—a small chevron indicating that he has been half a year in the danger zone. On one day, he says, he was under shell fire continuously for nine hours, but was not harmed.

MARINE ROSTER OF HIGH CLASS.

Men of Means Scrub Decks for Dollar a Day.

Millionaire is Waiter in Sailors' Messroom.

Many Recruits Since Age Limit Broadened.

Men of means scrubbing decks at $1 a day; a bank president serving as a paymaster aboard ship; a Thirty-second-degree Mason waiting on table in an apprentices' mess; a vaudeville topliner of the $500-a-week class teaching sea cooks at $85 a month; an opera singer serving in the supply department, and lawyers, preachers and school-teachers polishing brass and chipping paint as apprentice seamen—this in a nutshell is the story of what is happening in the manning of the new merchant marine, as indicated in a report by Henry Howard of Boston, director of the board's recruiting and training service.

The board is training 3000 men a month, on a fleet of ten training ships, for service in various ratings on the new merchant fleets. The Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce is one of the recruiting offices for the merchant marine, as well as for the free government navigation school maintaining day and night classes in the old Los Angeles High School building.

WEALTHY RECRUITS.

Recently the age limits for recruits were broadened, the minimum age being fixed at 18 years and the maximum at 35 years, with a limited barred zone between for draftees. The result has been a rush of recruits outside the draft age, and the acceptance of many men of mature years anxious to do their bit on the sea.

Nearly all these new recruits are now on the board's Atlantic training squadron, based at Boston. Among them is R. C. Watson of Richardson, Tex., who became a Thirty-second-degree Mason and a Shriner at Dallas last spring. With his family, he owns a quarter-million-dollar farm, and his income runs into five figures. Mr. Watson is now a waiter or messman.

Harry J. Rulten, known on the stage as Harry Murray, who plays on one of the chief vaudeville circuits, is an apprentice seaman, swabbing decks and chipping paint.

Lansing Wilcox, formerly president of the National Mahaiwe Bank of Great Barrington, Mass., is assistant paymaster on a training ship. Ernest Jones, cashier of a Suffolk (Va.) bank, who entered the merchant marine as an apprentice seaman, is also an assistant paymaster. Adolphus la Franier, for twelve years cashier in a Detroit bank, although a qualified Great Lakes pilot, entered the training service of the merchant marine as an apprentice seaman, and is now a quartermaster on a training ship.

Charles Staubits of Buffalo, N. Y., lawyer, business man and agent for an adding machine company, left an income of $4200 a year to serve as a ship's writer at $55 a month.

DOING THEIR BIT.

Harry Dexter of Akron, O., whose family makes auto tires and is rated in the millions, began in the merchant marine scrubbing decks. He is now at a foreign port on a vessel in the overseas trade.

Albert L. Bannister of Bondsville, Mass., whose father and uncle own big mills in his home town, is serving in the stewards' department of a training ship.

Reuben O. Gough, a Chicago University graduate, whose father owns a big lumber business in Akron, O., and who made a career for himself singing in the Metropolitan Opera Company, is doing his bit in a training service storeroom.

Charles H. Peters, a high school teacher from Orleans, Mass., is handling a paint brush as an apprentice seaman. W. R. Stolte, superintendent of penmanship in the schools of Meriden, Ct., is a ship's writer; William Metz, a New York policeman, is a timekeeper; William M. Humphrey of Burnside, Ky., a Mississippi River pilot, is an instructor in the deck department of a training ship, and Charles J. Hitchcock of Chicago, a nephew of Raymond Hitchcock, is serving as an apprentice in the engine-room of a merchant ship.

State Normal School Graduates Will Leave Here This Week for Honolulu.

The following State Normal School graduates leave Los Angeles tomorrow en route to Victoria to board the Canadian Pacific steamer Makura, leaving Victoria September 9 for Honolulu, to fill their appointments to teach school on the various islands at Hawaii.

Helene Martin, Evelyn B. Newton, Ethel West, Dorothy Ardis, Margaret Standlee, Gladys Standlee, Ruth Raker, Pearl McLean, Agnes Dorsey, Adele Gibson, Ida Hoge, Beatrice Hunt, Minnie Henco, Miss Pestor, Miss Neumann, Miss Jameson and Hazel Moody.

These teachers were unable to secure accommodations on any ship out of San Francisco. The following secured accommodations sailing from San Francisco on September 4 on the Matson steamship Sachem: Anna Maude Anderson, Ethel Raymond, Helen Johnston and Hazel King.

All will arrive in Honolulu on time for the opening of their schools on September 16.

Wholesale or Retail.

Midsummer sales have just opened and one clothing merchant in the city put out a table with odd trousers, two and a half dozen pairs, assorted sizes, to be sold at cost.

A well-known farmer in the community walked in, and carefully inspected the bargain counter. "How much for the lot?" he asked.

The clerk figured for a moment or two then named a satisfactory price. "Now, where is your store, sir?" he asked. "Do you want them sent?"

"Store! Thunder! I don't have a store," snapped the farmer. "Them pants is for my family. I've just got thirteen boys! Don't you reckon they'll need 'em all?"—[Indianapolis News.

SUGARLESS PASTRIES BEING MADE HERE.

CULINARY EXPERT SHOWS LOCAL COMPANIES HOW IT CAN BE DONE.

Sugarless pastries and breads have arrived, and the absolute elimination of eggs, butter and milk from the manufacture of fancy cakes, pies and other delicacies may soon be an accomplished fact, according to Arthur A. Winters, "efficiency pastery expert" of St. Louis, Mo. Mr. Winters was formerly a well-known midwestern caterer who is now touring the country, demonstrating his discoveries in the culinary art before leading pastry manufacturers.

Bearing hundreds of letters of recommendation from city food administrators, biscuit companies and others, Mr. Winters in the last two weeks has proved to the satisfaction of such companies as H. A. Jevne, Christopher's, Van de Camps and others here that he can produce a sugarless pastry and the highest percentage of wheat-substitute bread yet seen in this city.

Until the arrival of Mr. Winters, a number of local pastry companies were facing an acute shortage of sweetening. "Invert" sugar had been tried, but with poor success.

"When this country began facing a sugar famine I saw that the bakers were to be hit hardest," said Mr. Winters yesterday, "and I set out to find a way to eliminate sugar from our products. After months of study I discovered a formula without using sugar and have later added several other recipes. While the possibility of an absolutely non-wheat bread may seem small, yet I believe that before long I shall find a way of making it."

Mr. Winters, who is at the Alexandria, will remain in the city for two weeks giving demonstrations and instructions.

HAYWOOD TO APPEAL, BUT HAS LITTLE HOPE.

COUNSEL FOR I.W.W. DEFENDANTS PREPARES TO TAKE CASES TO HIGHER COURTS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—William D. Haywood, general secretary-treasurer of the I.W.W., and ninety-four of his associates sentenced yesterday to prison terms ranging from ten days to twenty years and to pay fines aggregating $2,735,000 for conspiracy in interfering with the government's conduct of the war, will appeal their cases.

George F. Vanderveer, chief counsel for the defendants, was busy today preparing to take the cases to the higher courts. He announced that next Tuesday he will apply to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for a writ of error. In the meantime, Judge Landis has granted a stay of execution, which will permit the convicted men to be held in Chicago until next Friday.

Haywood admitted he had little hope of gaining his freedom either by appeal to the higher courts or by pardon.

Street Dance and Carnival Nets Good Sum for Y.M.C.A. War Work.

Several hundred dollars was raised last night for the Army and Navy Y.M.C.A. at the first carnival and street dance held at Alvarado and Santa Barbara streets under the auspices of the Los Angeles Million Club Auxiliary. Paddle wheels, at which Thrift Stamps were sold; "hot-dog," ice cream and punch stands were erected on both sides of Alvarado and did a thriving business.

Music was furnished by the Fort MacArthur Band and dancing was held until midnight. Mrs. Clara Shortridge Foltz, president of the auxiliary, stated that the club will hold two more street dances on succeeding Saturdays. The one next Saturday will be for the benefit of the Red Cross, while the one on September 14 will be to raise funds to purchase materials for the club Red Cross workers.

FREE-FOR-ALL FIGHT.

Blind Pig Raid at Venice Ends in General Scrap and Four Arrests.

Department of Justice operatives under Special Agent C. L. Keep assisted by plain clothes police officers visited Venice last night looking for violators of the law prohibiting the selling or giving liquor to sailors or soldiers. The officers arrested Steve Maloney, a civilian, of Los Angeles. While they were trying to take him to jail false reports were circulated among the soldiers and sailors in the crowd of over 1000 people who had gathered, that enlisted men were in trouble and after this fighting became general.

The officers were finally able, with the assistance of soldiers who understood the situation, and of citizens, to land Maloney in the station. A. A. Brougher and E. W. Rosebloom, who said they were soldiers from the balloon school at Arcadia, and J. W. Sperry, who said he was a sailor stationed at the harbor, were also taken to the station for investigation.

Y.M.C.A. SCHOOLS.

Enrollment Larger than Usual and Departments Giving Phases of War Service Lead.

James A. Gillaspie, educational director of the Los Angeles Young Men's Christian Association, returned from his vacation in the San Bernardino Mountains yesterday to arrange for the opening of the Y.M.C.A. schools next Tuesday.

In a statement made before members of the faculty of the schools, yesterday afternoon, Mr. Gillaspie said: "The schools have given some of its most experienced teachers to military service, and Y.M.C.A. work, but we shall begin the year with every department well supplied with teachers.

"The enrollment for the new year is already larger than usual before class work begins. The heaviest enrollment is, however, in those departments in which the training bears directly upon some phase of war service, such as the automobile school, the wireless school and the different branches of the commercial department."

Y.M.C.A. HUTS IN SHIPYARDS

Welfare Work to be Extended on Large Scale.

Plans to Utilize System on the Pacific Coast.

Stanley Baker is Appointed Local Secretary.

To do for the morale of the war industry worker what has already been done for the soldiers under arms at home and abroad, the Young Men's Christian Association has come forward with working plans that are expected to bring about a new era in social justice as well as in the relationships between employer and employee.

The first announcement of plans that will eventually thread throughout many Pacific Coast industries was made yesterday by the California War Work Council of the Y.M.C.A., in Los Angeles. By adopting the methods now in use in eastern war industries it will be possible, it is stated, to fit the Y.M.C.A. industrial programme to Pacific Coast industry.

"The new Y.M.C.A. programme for workmen engaged in war industries of every kind contemplates the provision of shelter, recreation, educational opportunities, moving pictures, social intercourse, entertainments of various kinds and home facilities for the men away from home," says the statement.

WILL BUILD HUTS.

Within the next six months, it is announced, Y.M.C.A. buildings and huts similar to those so largely used by every soldier in the United States and France will be erected in the immediate neighborhood of many of the big industrial plants throughout the West, Middle West and East. It is planned, wherever needed, to keep these huts open day and night, week days and Sundays.

"Supplementing this work, the Y.M.C.A. will offer to put trained secretaries in each big industrial plant. They will be friendly and unofficial leaders in recreative plans and men to whom the workers can come for counsel and help. Branches will also be provided in as many as possible of the congested industrial districts.

FOR AMERICANIZATION.

Opportunities will be afforded them for foreign language speaking men to learn English, civics and other subjects that will help them to a better understanding of American ideals and patriotism.

"For the past two and a half years this same plan has been promoted by the Y.M.C.A. for the Colorado Fuel and Iron Company. The work there offers a conspicuous example of what can be done for workers in an essential industry," says the statement.

"Eighteen branches of the Y.M.C.A. have been set up in permanent buildings among the company's mining properties, two more are under process of construction and as many as twenty-four such buildings will be in use when the present plans of the company have been fully carried out."

In the shipyards of Portland, where 40,000 workers are employed, the Y.M.C.A. has placed its secretaries in five plants engaged in government work. The Americanization of foreign-speaking workers has been organized here by these secretaries. Five secretaries are promoting various Y.M.C.A. activities among shipyard workers in Seattle, and the construction of Y.M.C.A. buildings at two San Francisco yards is now under consideration.

BAKER APPOINTED HERE.

Shipbuilders at Tacoma have sanctioned the Y.M.C.A. movement, and underwritten the budget of a secretary.

Stanley Baker, former vocational director of the Los Angeles Y.M.C.A., has been appointed industrial secretary for this city and Los Angeles Harbor. Plans having to do with a programme of Y.M.C.A. work in local shipyards are to be announced later.

CHAMBER SECRETARIES.

Guests of Santa Monica Tendered Reception at Elk's Club Yesterday.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

SANTA MONICA BEACH, Aug. 31.—The Santa Monica-Ocean Park Chamber of Commerce entertained a dozen or more members of the Association of Commercial Secretaries today. After a short reception at the Elks' clubhouse, the visitors were taken for an auto ride about the beach. Luncheon was provided at the Merrit Jones Hotel.

Miss Grace Yale, the secretary of the local chamber, introduced the speakers. Robert White, president of the Chamber of Commerce, spoke briefly. Judge Fred H. Taft, made a patriotic speech.

The government will not permit display advertising tending to draw the public from one part of the country to another, it was stated by A. S. Dudley, assistant secretary of the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce. This would not prevent, however, the placing of feature articles and society notes in the various newspapers and periodicals of the country, through the medium of the Los Angeles Chamber's publicity bureau, which last year, he declared, had placed articles descriptive of Southern California, that if paid for at space rates, would have cost more than $300,000.

The speaker advocated the placing of the bulk of all advertising in the may of feature articles through the advertising department of the Los Angeles Chamber, as the latter had special facilities for doing this in the most satisfactory manner. As a result of his talk, which was received with enthusiasm by the secretaries present, a committee was appointed to take up this question with the Los Angeles Chamber. C. E. Shillito, of the Culver City Chamber was made chairman of this committee, the other members being Charles Bayer of the Pomona Chamber and M. J. Haig of the Whittier Chamber.

Mayor Berkley of Santa Monica spoke of the recent "'Till Berlin Falls" campaign of the Los Angeles Chamber and declared that every chamber should have membership dues that would cause its membership to realize that they were paying out a sum that made them take an interest in what results were being accomplished. This sentiment was echoed by President Armitage of the Associated Chambers of Commerce of Orange county.

UPLAND MUSICIANS TO PLAY AT MARCH FIELD.

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

UPLAND, Aug. 31.—The Upland Band is planning to give one of its celebrated concerts at March Field, Riverside, on Tuesday evening, September 3, and a number of Upland people will accompany the musicians.

Rev. R. C. Stone, formerly pastor of the local Presbyterian Church, has charge of the Y.M.C.A. work at March Field, and has arranged for this event.

Another feature of the evening will be the dedication of the rooms at March Field which are being furnished by the Upland Chamber of Commerce and by the Frances Paul Girls, also of Upland, this latter organization having charge of the decoration of the reception-room of the hostess house.

Members of the Upland committee of ladies having charge of the furnishing of the other rooms include Mrs. Bess Jones, Mrs. Edward C. Harwood, Mrs. T. R. Woodbridge and Mrs. George Cable.

PLAN MORMON TEMPLE.

[BY A. P. CORRESPONDENCE.]

MESA (Ariz.) Aug. 11.—A Mormon temple similar to the one in Salt Lake City is being planned by the Church of Jesus Christ of the Latter Day Saints (Mormon) for Mesa. The temple will serve as the parent church for the entire Southwest. At present there are but six of these great temples in existence. Four are in Utah, one in Canada and one in Hawaii. Many of the Mormon refugees from Mexico have settled in the valleys of Arizona.

Lonely Job.

WOMAN LOOKOUT GUARDS THE CLEVELAND FOREST.

SURROUNDED by mountains, a mile in the air, and with only two dogs as companions, Miss Winifred Hunter has elected to live the life of a semihermit as lookout for the United States forest service on Santiago Peak, the principal lookout station for the Cleveland National Forest in San Diego county.

Undaunted by the fact that man after man has refused to live the life of solitude on the mountain's top, Miss Hunter, who until recently was a teacher in the Philippine Islands, assumed her position several days ago.

There are probably few places from which one can see more country and towns and yet become more lonely than on Santiago Peak. The lookout station which will be in charge of Miss Hunter is one of four in the Cleveland forest, the others being Tahquitz Peak, Hot Springs Mountain and Cuyamaca Peak.

The young woman will live in a cabin about 200 feet from the summit of the mountain, although the glass-inclosed observation post is located on the top. A telephone line runs to the summit and connects with rangers' stations at Toro and Temescal, on either side of the mountain range. It is by this method the lookout notifies the rangers of the location of fires.

Food and water are packed to the young woman's cabin from the Joplin ranch on the El Toro side of the range on the backs of burros.

No Wonder People Are Exclaiming, "What Will the Los Angeles Times Do Next?"

Southern California applauded when The Times introduced Rotogravure newspaper art to the West several months ago and has continued to marvel and delight in the Sunday Times' inimitable pictorial presentation of what is going on in the world.

But Pigs and Cows In "Roto!" That's a New One!

Did you see that page in a recent issue illustrating the budding of citrus stock? The process couldn't have been made half so understandable or half so graphic and interesting with a whole galley of type. It was like standing three feet away and seeing the thing done. There's something just as good in the Rotogravure pages of The Times Farm and Tractor Section every Sunday.

All Its Writers Are Experts

You never saw such pictures before and you never saw so many of them in a farm magazine, but the Farm and Tractor Section isn't all pictures. Are you interested in tractors, purebred cattle, orange groves, hogs, alfalfa, poultry, irrigation, rabbits, silos, backyard gardening? It's all in the Farm and Tractor Section and it's written by the people who KNOW. If you are engaged either in a large or small way in the all-important business of food production, there is something of interest and value for you in The Times Farm and Tractor Section.

FACT AND COMMENT.

The architects, contractors, building trades people, building material dealers and those contemplating building operations are again up in the air as to the government's attitude toward construction work. A few weeks ago they thought they knew where they stood. This was after Secretary McAdoo had replied to the direct question by Senator Calder as to what had been meant by the government's broad request that none but "essential" building projects be carried out. The interpretation generally put upon Mr. McAdoo's statement at that time was that "essential building" included operations ordinarily associated with a community's normal, everyday progress. Locally, it was believed, or at least was not doubted, that the building of homes came within the purview of the official definition of necessary improvements. Now it would appear that it does not.

It would seem from the latest instructions received from Washington by local hardware firms that restrictions quite like those already placed upon sugar and wheat were to be extended to common, ordinary nails. The "would seem" is used advisedly, for to judge by the building men's experience in connection with the official interpretation of the term "essential building," nothing explicit by way either of affirmation or denial is to be expected from Washington for some time to come. All that the dealers in nails now know about it is that they have been asked by the wholesalers not to sell nails for any structure, the building of which cannot be shown to be of some definite advantage to the prosecution of the war. The wholesalers in turn have been asked by the government to exact such a promise from the retailers to whom they supply nails as a condition upon which they may secure supplies from the manufacturers.

The effect may be judged from the interpretation put upon the injunction by one of the leading local hardware men. "I will sell nails to a farmer for a farm building," he said yesterday, "because the farmer is raising crops and stock to feed the nation and its allies in the war. I will sell also to a man who wants to build a dwelling, flat, apartment or hotel of any kind at the harbor, where men engaged in important war work are in need of housing facilities. As I understand the government's wishes, however, it wouldn't be right for me to sell nails to a man in Los Angeles proper for the building of a home."

In view of the fact that no one on earth excepting a Japanese woodworker ever dreamed of building a house without nails, the prospects for home-building activity for some time to come in Los Angeles do not appear to be bright. In fact, a number of residence projects are now being held up because of the reluctance of the hardware men to risk selling nails to builders of homes. It is hardly necessary to add that gloom has settled anew in the offices of the architects and contractors.

Question of Expediency.

The government undoubtedly has good reasons for trying to trim the nation's activities down to definite war requirements, and is unquestionably justified in taking whatever steps may be necessary to accomplish this end. Conditions vary in different localities, however, and what interferes with war activities in one community might conflict in no way with them in another. No sweeping interdiction that could be drawn up would seem to apply to the country as a whole. Has Washington taken this fact sufficiently into consideration?

In some parts of the country there are enough essential war industries to absorb all the labor and professional talent associated with the building business as rapidly as it can be released and made available by restrictive measures against structural work. In other sections, and Los Angeles, with all its recent tremendous industrial progress, is one of them, the almost complete curtailment of ordinary building operations works a real hardship by depriving a large number of men of their accustomed means of livelihood under conditions which do not afford any great number of them an opportunity to step into something else. The writer of these comments believes that special rulings for special cases are only fair to many communities, and that furthermore such a procedure would be expedient from the government's own point of view, were the conditions carefully analyzed by the proper officials.

Money saved by the stopping of ordinary building operations in such a community as this, where building plays so important a part in the business life of the city, and where so many men are dependent upon it for support, can hardly be said to be added to the national wealth. The men of the building profession cannot do what they might do and what they would want to do in the way of lending financial support to the government unless they are employed. It would seem, therefore, that the government was actually losing rather than gaining through a drastic curtailment of building here under existing conditions. When Uncle Sam turns a lot more of his industries this way, it will be time to talk about cutting out everything that does not contribute to the war, for the men of the building profession will then have something else to turn to.

And there is another thing. People have to have places to live in Los Angeles proper the same as at the harbor and on the farms. A few years ago Los Angeles was overbuilt. Now a readjustment has taken place, the oversupply of houses has been absorbed by the slow, but constant, market, and there are hardly enough houses to go around. The effect of this condition, coupled with the city's constant growth in population and the small amount of building going on, is already to be seen in the increasing rentals asked by everyone who has a flat, apartment, bungalow court or dwelling of any kind for rent. The situation has not become acute as yet, but it will become acute in a very short time unless more dwelling places of the detached and multiple-unit type are erected, for Southern California is certain to be overwhelmed by tourist travel this fall and winter.

Uncle Sam knows best just how badly he needs the steel that goes into nails, and Los Angeles will abide patriotically by his decision. It is to be hoped, however, that the government officials will take the time to consider the special case of Los Angeles with respect to the building and war industries situations in general. If the effectiveness of this community in war work can be enhanced by restricting building operations to the harbor district, then Los Angeles can accept its ration of nails and do without more homes. If in our particular case it should develop that such restrictions worked more harm than good, Los Angeles would certainly be better off for the nails.

To show the increase in values in the section, Mr. Russell cites the sale of one tract of 10.46 acres at $2000 an acre. This tract was originally planted to citrus trees in 1913 by L. P. Marshall, who is said to have paid $875 an acre for it. When the grove was three years old it was sold through the Edwin G. Hart offices to Mrs. Susie Boyd Baker for a given consideration of $1150 an acre, and Mr. Russell announces that in the deal recently closed $2000 an acre was paid for the property by G. M. Randall of East Whittier.

Another tract of the same size, sold to Albert Chamness and Ralph Hamburg of Whittier, is stated to have brought a like consideration. The grove is four years old and was purchased by Thomas Sutton two years ago for a reported price of $900 an acre. Other sales are reported as follows:

READ WHAT THE EASY MONTHLY PAYMENT PLAN MEANS TO YOU.
There was once a time when the average man had to work hard for years, paying rent each month for the roof over his head, and gradually, after much skimping and pinching, he managed to save up the money to buy a home. Now the young newlywed can begin at once to buy his home. The money that he would ordinarily pay for rent, pays for his home. And if he buys this home in Sunnyside Garden Acres Addition he will add to his credit a neat little bank account, for here he can have a fine garden, chickens, rabbits—and save $30 a month on his living expenses. If every young couple starting out in life could be shown the wisdom of buying their own home on the easy monthly payment plan the city apartment-houses and flats would surely have to go out of business. Come on our free excursion and see Sunnyside Garden Acres Addition. You will be under no obligation whatever to buy. Autos leave our office every

FOR SALE—A MAN IN TEXAS ADVERTISED, "Am I crazy?" He offered ten acres of his lands free to every family who would plant and come onto his plantation; while he kept the intervening lands to those improved. How would you like to come onto my subdivision of city lots on a 10-cent fare, lovely, mellow, responsive soil, make yourself a temporary residence on the rear of the lots, and establish a beautiful garden-home-villa place without any financial burden to accomplish it? The street work, sidewalks, water and street lights are all in, and paid. I want twenty such families at once, and if you improve part of my tract, which is now suffering for lack of the human element, you will make the whole worth something to me, which, laying idle, it is not doing now. Let me know where you are employed, where you have lived the past few years, and I will write to you to arrange interview. Address H, box 107, TIMES OFFICE.

FOR SALE—IN BEAUTIFUL GLENDALE, THE city of homes, one of the finest propositions that was ever offered in a modern 7-room bungalow on a lot 78x297 feet, furnished completely with every convenience and equipment that goes with a beautiful home. Piano player, piano, elegant rugs, chinaware, linens, etc., which alone cost over $2000. Beautiful lawns, front and back, fruit trees, ornamental trees and shrubbery. Equipped for handling 1000 chickens, the cost of which was $1800. All kinds of tools, incubators, etc. The owner has just lost his wife and is disposing of everything at a great sacrifice. He conducted, up to the first of August, one of the most profitable egg and poultry concerns in the San Fernando Valley. His investment in this place is around $12,000. There is a loan of $2500 on the property, and if the owner can sell immediately he will consider a good trade, or part cash and terms at a great sacrifice. If necessary furniture can be taken out of the deal, or any way that will effect a quick disposition of the property. I have inspected this property, and believe me, the one who gets this, gets the biggest bargain in Glendale. RATTRAY, 1008 Title Insurance Building.

DON'T GET EXCITED!

Motorists—The request that motorists EAST of the Mississippi refrain from using their automobiles on Sunday is not to affect the Pacific Coast. This much was decided yesterday at a conference between government officials and oil men as they agreed that the present plan will give the government a plentiful supply of gasoline for war uses. Don't believe wild rumors of government orders to interfere with the use of your car. Every government tax and regulation has been preceded by the most extravagant and silly rumors and then when the government regulation was issued it was found to be quite sane and reasonable. Keep calm and don't believe these yarns until they have been confirmed in the form of a law or a request announced publicly by a competent government official.

Los Angeles herself has developed a most ridiculous array of regulations which, because of their complexity, are practically impossible to observe. Before driving in this city one should attend night school for a six-months' course in the rules and regulations that have been so generously plastered over the statute books by the city fathers. The gas-buggy pilot who would give our bailiwick the once-over must wade through a maze of zones, each regulated by some separate ruling and varying from six miles per hour at intersections in business districts to twenty-five miles per hour in outlying spots.

SPEED LIMITS OF SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA TOWNS.

Los Angeles—6 miles per hour at intersections in business districts; 8 miles per hour in tunnels; 10 miles per hour at all crossings in the 12-mile district, excluding the business district; 12 miles per hour in the district bounded roughly by Temple, Figueroa, Pico and Central; 12 miles per hour on West Seventh to Valencia, Main to Washington, North Broadway to the bridge, Hollywood boulevard between Vine and Cahuenga, Pasadena avenue between Avenue 56 and Avenue 61; 20 miles per hour inside of the old city limits; 25 miles per hour in San Fernando Valley and through Bairdstown and Palms.

Escondido—12 miles per hour in business district; 20 in residence district.

Santa Barbara—15 miles per hour.

South Pasadena—15 miles per hour in business district; 25 miles per hour elsewhere.

Santa Maria—15 miles per hour.

San Luis Obispo—15 miles per hour business section, 20 in residence section.

Santa Ana—28 miles per hour.

SKIP RIDGE ROAD FOR THE PRESENT.

Motorists making the trip to Bakersfield and northern valley points are advised by the touring bureau of the Automobile Club of Southern California to drive through Bouquet Canyon instead of the Ridge Route. At present the Ridge Route is being paved and there are several bad detours in addition to other rough going.

OBTAINS EFFICIENCY FROM FEMALE WORK.

BIG TIRE COMPANY HAS USED COMMON SENSE WITH LABOR PROBLEM.

As one of the large manufacturing companies of the country, which has employed women to do work formerly done by men, the United States Tire Company, manufacturer of United States tires, has carefully observed the work of its women tiremakers, with a view to ascertaining their efficiency and the especial conditions which must be provided if their work is to bring a maximum of results.

"We have already learned that one point always to be kept in mind is that a manufacturer cannot rush production with female labor," said J. B. Magee, district manager for the company. "We pay the women tiremakers exactly the same piece rate as men are paid on the same operations, but the hourly rate of the women when they start is slightly less than that of the men. When they have attained proficiency, women in our factory earn first-class wages. However, women have but 75 to 80 per cent. of men's capacity. The experiment of trying women as inspectors has proved a success."

WRECKED MACHINES QUICKLY RECLAIMED.

HUGE SHOPS BEHIND LINES MAKE OVER DAMAGED MOTOR CARS.

In the first months of the war the Allies could give no thought to the reclamation of military material. Time and men were far more precious than the thousands of automobiles and motor trucks that were left by their drivers by the roadsides to rust, after these vehicles were damaged in traffic or wrecked by the fire of the enemy.

The United States, however, is rebuilding the motor cars and trucks that have been disabled and huge repair shops have been built behind the lines, where crippled automobiles are made as good as new by an army of skilled mechanics, is the word that has been received by Al G. Faulkner, Marmon distributor for California.

AMERICAN CAR WINS CUBA CHAMPIONSHIP.

RACER TAKES TURNS WITHOUT HARDLY ANY CUT IN SPEED.

James L. Irving, the local distributor, has been advised that a Cole Aero Eight won the Cuban championship for stock cars of 301 to 400 cubic inches displacement, at the races held on the Oriental Park track at Havana. The entries included three Stutzes, one Buick, three Cadillacs, a Mercer, a Lancia, a Premier, and a Hispano-Suiza. It was a thirty-lap race, and the Cole made the thirty miles in 29m., 5s.

"The Cole car occasionally appears as a winner, due to the faith displayed in it by some owner," said Mr. Irving. "The fact that in driving on a circular track the eight-cylinder engine is susceptible to such quick acceleration that the car can get into and out of the turns with only a momentary reduction in speed was one of the principal reasons for the Cole victory."

Minor Repairs.

MOTORISTS SHOULD DO THEIR OWN ADJUSTING.

Shortage of Mechanics Forces All to do Their Own Work.

BY BARNEY OLDFIELD.

TAKE extreme care of your automobile in these days—act as your own mechanic on minor jobs—or suffer the consequences of waiting days and weeks until the fixing can be performed in a repair shop.

The motor mechanic situation in America never was more serious than at present. The war has taken thousands from the garages to the battlefields of France—and none has come to fill their places. As a result, the repair shops are almost depleted of experienced help and are unable to turn out as much work in a week as they once could produce in two or three days.

Learn everything possible about your own car. And then learn the science of "doctoring" it. Don't send it to a repair shop every time it has a little ailment. Do the fixing yourself. In that way you will be saved the temporary loss of your car in the repair shop—and you will save in money.

For repair charges today are abnormally high—and mounting higher and ever higher.

This condition exists everywhere in the United States. My recent tours have revealed to me how appalling it is. And there is no relief in sight—nor will there be until the war is over.

This is what happened to a friend of mine who failed to observe the rule about taking care of his car and learning how to fix it:

Not so long ago he started on a two weeks' tour. Before his departure he did not take the precaution of inspecting his automobile. As a result, a bearing burned out after driving 125 miles. This happened on Saturday. Not knowing what conditions are in the repair world, he figured that it would be an easy matter to have his car put back in shape.

But he experienced a rude awakening. He went from one repair shop to another—and everywhere he was disappointed. He visited twenty shops in all. In seven places he was told by the garage owner that the concern had quit the repair business because of lack of mechanics. In the other places the few workmen there were busy on other jobs and he was told there wasn't a chance to get around fixing his car for at least three or four days.

Realizing that no relief could be given to him in the little town where the mishap had occurred, or near by, my friend was forced to drive to the next city. This driving, with a burned-out bearing, caused more trouble and the car had to stay in the shop four days before the work could be done.

The cost to my friend was exactly $150; whereas, it would have been only $5 or $10 at the most had he been able to get quick relief for his burned-out bearing.

And it wouldn't have cost him a dollar if he had taken the proper precautions at the start.

That is just one instance of thousands that are happening throughout the United States every day, which emphasize the necessity for great care and great caution in the motoring of today.

Watch your car closely. Prepare for each trip—short or long—with extreme care. Remember that your car is delicate in its mechanism and needs attention. Don't expect it to continue performing faithfully if you mistreat it.

Watch your lubrication, not only in the engine, but in the transmission, differential and all other parts. Keep your grease cups full and well turned up. Keep all parts tightened up and adjusted. Wash your car frequently. A clean car experiences less trouble than one which is neglected. Use a good carbon remover to keep down carbon deposits as much as possible.

Many autoists, forced to send their cars to repair shops, complain bitterly because of the charges. But they aren't justified in their complaints. I have investigated conditions and find that high as are repair prices they are warranted by conditions. Wages of mechanics have been hoisted in order to hold men in their jobs. Prices of materials have risen "sky high." Many auto parts now cost four and five times the price of a few years ago. So you can see that the repair man is not at fault.

Once a friend of mine asked:

"Barney, what is the commonest cause of car trouble—next to carelessness, of course?"

And my reply was:

"Speeding."

And so it is.

The man who drives with moderation at all times is the man whose car seldom is in trouble. It is speeding that does the real damage to a car. The jolting and jarring that comes from speeding over roads that are far from good will "sicken" your car quicker than anything else.

So my advice is to those who want to keep their cars out of the repair shops is:

"Watch your car as a mother would a child—and don't speed."

CALIFORNIA TENNIS STAR WINS WAY INTO FINALS.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

FOREST HILLS (N. Y.) Aug. 31.—R. Lindley Murray, California tennis player, representing the Niagara Falls Tennis Club, won his way into the final round of the thirty-seventh annual turf court championships here today, and next Tuesday will meet either W. T. Tilden, Jr., of Philadelphia or Ichiya Kumagae for titular honors. Murray won his place in the final by defeating S. Howard Voshell, national indoor champion, who entered from the Terrace Club of Brooklyn, 6-4, 6-3, 8-6.

Kumagae advanced from the fifth round to the semi-final at the expense of Lyle E. Mahan, winning at 4-6, 6-3, 6-0, 6-1. The Japanese will play Tilden on Monday, and the winner will be bracketed with Murray.

Conditions were unfavorable for fast play. A high and fitful wind and heavy atmosphere made it difficult to hold racquets firmly or control the ball.

Murray easily held the upper hand in the first two sets, but, with the match turning against him in the third set, Voshell lifted his game to remarkable heights, and by taking desperate chances, in which fortune appeared to favor his play, ran into a lead of 4-2. His footing and racquet work at this point elicited rounds of applause. It appeared as though the match would go into extra sets, for Voshell was driving and chopping the ball to inaccessible points of the court, notwithstanding the fact that Murray tried for everything. At this stage Murray changed his tactics and anchored himself at the barrier and by spread-eagling first at one side and then at the other, broke through Voshell's service and offense until he had regained the lead. The Brooklyn player fought for every point, and the rallies were both long and brilliant, but Murray's great agility and net smashing, combined with his service aceing, finally gave him the lead at 7-6. Voshell threw away his last chance of victory by three double faults in the closing game.

Kumagae's victory over Mahan was much more easily won. The tall New Yorker appeared utterly unable to control his strokes during the play and the Japanese was not any better in the initial set which Mahan won, 6-4.

The high wind and the greater footing power of the Oriental proved a handicap which he could

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

REDLANDS, Aug. 30.—Driving over thousands of miles of roads of the West and Middle West, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Holmes of this city found no roads to compare with those of California, according to their report after returning to this city.

From here they went over the ocean-to-ocean highway to Kansas for a visit with relatives there. They visited all parts of Kansas, Missouri and Colorado and found some of the roads in Kansas and Missouri especially very rough, although some roads in Kansas are in fine shape. The weather was very hot most of the time. The wheat crop in Kansas was not damaged and there will be a yield of from twenty-five to fifty bushels per acre. The corn crop was burned up by the hot sun.

VAPOR MANIFOLDS STILL EASY TO GET.

USE OF DEVICE WILL AID IN CONSERVING YOUR GASOLINE.

"Ford owners will be able to get Holley vapor manifolds for their cars, for the steady production of this famous device is to be maintained for the reason that it is considered an essential, according to a ruling that has been made by Washington authorities," stated an official of the California Sales Company, distributors for this State.

"The Holley vapor manifold not only saves its owner money every time he fills his tank, but it also conserves the country's supply of gasoline and at this time it is vital to winning the war that the supply be conserved in every way. Wastage of gasoline must be done away with is the edict of the government."

CONTINUES FAITH IN HIS CALIFORNIA LAND.

TIRE INVESTOR PURCHASES MORE ACRES IN THE SOUTHLAND.

As further evidence of his faith in California land as an investment, Frederick E. Lewis, wealthy stockholder and director of the Norwalk Tire and Rubber Company, has purchased an additional 400 acres of land adjoining his recently acquired 7000-acre ranch near Pomona. The purchase was made through his personal representative, Louis Lichtenberger, of Lichtenberger-Ferguson Company, factory distributors of Norwalk tires.

Mr. Lewis plans to come to California in October to assume active charge of the big ranch which is being converted into a cattle ranch. The ranch will accommodate several thousand head of high-grade cattle to be raised for the exclusive California trade.

RUBBER BIG AID IN WINNING WAR.

"In the days of the Civil War," said Roy R. Meads, president and general manager for the Pacific Rubber Company, distributor of Horseshoe tires, "transportation was slow and tedious. Operations and maneuvers that are carried on daily in this war would have been impossible then because of the tardy distribution of supplies and armament.

"Today the army is a marvel of speed and dependability and rubber has been largely responsible for the change. The fast motor car and the dependable motor truck could not have been developed on steel tires. The passenger automobiles with rubber tires make it possible for the commanders to oversee operations on twenty-thirty, fifty and even 100-mile fronts."

HERE'S A CHANCE FOR MOTORISTS TO PUT THEIR MACHINES TO WORK FOR GOVERNMENT.

SIX weeks' intensive campaign to enroll 20,000 automobiles in a Federal transportation auxiliary to help Uncle Sam win the war, was started in earnest today, with Los Angeles as headquarters city. R. J. Busch, who has been appointed Commissioner of Transportation of the Automobile Auxiliary of the War Savings Speakers' Bureau of Southern California's nine counties, in full charge of the campaign.

The automobile auxiliary is to be used in every big drive of the Federal government—Liberty Loans, War Savings campaigns, Red Cross drives and other campaigns to raise money to help defeat the Hun hordes. Already more than 1200 automobile owners in various parts of the Southland have enrolled as members. Each member enrolling his car gets a bronze badge, an emblem to be carried on his car and a certificate of membership. These cost a total of fifty cents.

"The initial purpose of this transportation auxiliary," Mr. Busch explained, "will be to transport speakers and entertainers about the Southland counties in the War Savings drive. Ours is the first organization of its kind in America and others will follow in every part of the nation within the next few weeks."

INDIANS WIN.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Cleveland beat Chicago, 2 to 1, in a listless game. Two bases on balls and a sacrifice fly by Speaker scored a run in the first inning, and in the fifth O'Neill's triple behind Evans's single accounted for the other. Chicago outhit the winners, 11 to 5, but poor base running let three men be caught at the plate, and the locals did not score until the ninth, when Collins doubled and a single brought him in. President James Dunn announced today that his team will disband tomorrow night and not go to St. Louis for a Labor Day double-header. They are the best combination of lightness, durability and comfort I have ever found.

Reo 3-4 Ton "Speed Wagons" Double Savers

A REO will reduce the delivery cost per unit even if operated under your present schedule.

Its greater speed will permit you to extend your territory, for it will do more work per car and save man-power.

It is less subject to delays and interruptions of service, making practical the once-a-day delivery requested by the Government.

Fifty per cent. oversize of all vital parts prevents breakage and the remarkable accessibility of its parts reduces cost of adjustments.

If you desire the most efficient delivery service, combined with the greatest economy of operation, you should use one or more REO "SPEED WAGONS."

Motor Trucks are Declared to be Essential Products.

Decision.

STEEL WILL BE SUPPLIED.

Truck Industry will not be Seriously Affected.

Motor Transportation Voted Essential Work.

Every Precaution is Taken by Manufacturers.

By reason of the recent decision of the Priorities Committee of the War Industries Board, the truck industry will not be seriously affected by the government conscription of steel for war purposes only. This committee has requested a report from manufacturers showing the distribution of trucks among the various classes of business.

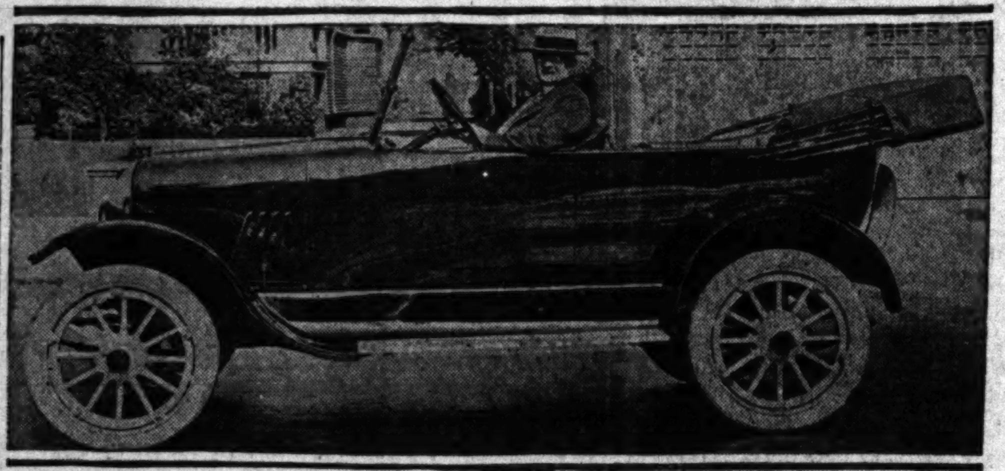
No higher tribute could be paid the truck manufacturers by this body, which proves conclusively the essentiality of motor transportation. Members of the committee realized that without motor trucks, business of a divergent classification would become stagnant, and for that reason and under the priority ruling, truck manufacturers will be supplied with steel according to the proportionate needs.

According to a circular sent out by the National Motor Truck Committee, every precaution is to be taken for the preservation of the truck industry. Nearly every line of daily activity in which a motor truck is used is considered essential. In very few cases are trucks used in nonessential lines of work and these are mostly of the used-car type.

SURVEY.

In a statement given out by Roy D. Heartz, general sales manager of the Moreland Motor Truck Company, he declared: "A survey of our sales of the past six or nine months shows that the truck sales during that period and right now are only made to what might be termed essential industries. It is easily safe for us to say that 100 per cent. of our sales are, and have been, to lines of business that must be protected as far as transportation facilities are concerned.

"We have one milling company in Los Angeles that formerly handled its shipments, ranging from five to fifteen tons of flour, for example, through the medium of the railroad; that material today is being delivered on five-ton Moreland trucks and trailers."



This is the surprise announcement of the week.

Behold the new Briscoe with A. M. Young at the wheel. This is the new line which has been added by Smith Bros. and which will be the teammate of the Peerless in the future.

MIXES THE COLORS FOR HER NEW AUTO.

The latest fad consists in mixing your own colors when you want your automobile painted. Miss Grace Darmond of the Vitagraph Film Company recently purchased a Hudson sedan and drove the car into the Boulevard Garage, Hollywood, to have it painted. George Smith, manager of the garage, asked what color she wanted and she replied: "Darmond gray." She is quite an artist and proved it by stepping out of the car and mixing the paint for its new coat.

WONDERFUL AUTO ENGINE IS IN A CLASS BY ITSELF.

It is announced by Smith Bros. that the new Briscoe is the popular price car that has been added to the line which they already distribute.

"Before we took the step we conducted a thorough investigation of the merits of the car, the standing of the company behind it and its ability to make deliveries. The results were beyond anything that we had expected," stated A. M. Young, sales manager for Smith Bros.

"The Briscoe company has behind it some of the most important financial industries in the United States and at its several plants the car is manufactured in its entirety. It is in no sense an assembled unit. Competent automotive engineers have declared that its wonderful engine is in a class by itself.

"Although automobile production today depends largely upon war conditions, we have been promised deliveries in such numbers that we believe we will be able to take care of customers for this territory. The car has refinements not to be found in many cars of its class and its lines are very attractive. We are more than pleased that we have secured the Briscoe for Southern California."

SEAT COVERS HELP KEEP THE LEATHER.

GOOD SET WILL PRESERVE THE ORIGINAL VALUE OF UPHOLSTERY.

Seat covers are a matter of economy, especially in these days when good upholstery materials are hard to obtain, according to George R. Bentel. If a person buys a car now with the expectation of selling it later, protection to the upholstery will be one of the best steps to insure a good price.

"It is hard to get good leathers now for upholstery although they still may be had in small quantities," said Bentel at his Grand avenue shops. "We have been amazed recently to take off old seat covers and find the upholstery practically as good as the day it was new. In some cases we have recovered car upholstery twice, finding the leather beneath just as good the second time as when we first put on the covers.

PNEUMATIC TIRES HELP SOLVE IT.

FIND WAY TO OVERCOME THE BIG SHORTAGE IN MECHANICS.

One of the methods by which commercial car owners are overcoming the difficulty of obtaining automobile mechanics and drivers, according to Manager N. Bershon of the Bershon Tire Company, distributors of McNaull and Victor-Springfield tires in Southern California, is by putting pneumatic tires on their trucks and operating them under increased speed.

"This is especially true where a large territory has to be covered within a specified time, says Mr. Bershon, "the pneumatic tires permitting of sufficiently increased speed to enable two trucks to do practically the same work as three, with the subsequent saving of one man and one truck."

SOMETHING NEW IN WINDSHIELDS.

A NEW wrinkle in movable windshields for the rear compartment of a car is shown on an attractive new Chalmers job now on the salesroom floor of the Greer-Robbins Company, Chalmers distributors for California.

The two glass shields instead of being placed on the division between the front and rear compartments are attached to the special top, one on each side. In these positions they may be swung forward to shut off air currents or swung to the side of the top when not required, where they are out of the way.

"The movable shields located directly back of the front seats are always there. The panes may be swung into certain positions—but they are always there and often in the way. Attached to the sides as these are, they answer the purpose to a T, and still can be put out of the way when not required," said E. L. Rash, Chalmers sales manager for the Greer-Robbins company.

REPAIRING BOUND TO BE INCREASED.

It is the consensus of opinion that cars, trucks, tractors and all other motor devices must be kept in better repair in 1919 than has been the practice in this county in previous years. This will necessitate dealers throughout the United States maintaining an efficient corps of skilled mechanics in order that preferential work may not be interfered with, and despite the great demand for mechanics made by the state of conditions that exist.

The latest and most authentic reports on the situation at Washington according to details received by H. C. McVey, the Oakland car dealer, indicate the government is not seeking to destroy the automobile industry. While the War Industries Board has not issued any specific announcement on just what it will do, there is now reason to believe there will not be any 100 per cent. restriction on car production, as originally reported to be the intention, but that for 1919 the production will be from 25 to 35 per cent. of 1917 production.

GOVERNMENT LIKES ANNIVERSARY MODEL.

Reports from all parts of the country concerning the new Apperson anniversary models that have been received by Harris M. Hanshue, manager of the local Apperson branch, are to the effect these cars have made a decided impression upon government officials. The car is of a decidedly military appearance and that is one reason for the popularity. The tourster model, which is for four passengers, is proving a favorite with officers.

Hanshue has received a letter of congratulation from the Apperson factory on the recent performance of a Los Angeles demonstrating car which made 27.9 miles on a single gallon of gasoline. All the anniversary models are equipped with the eight-cylinder motor known as the eight with eighty less parts.

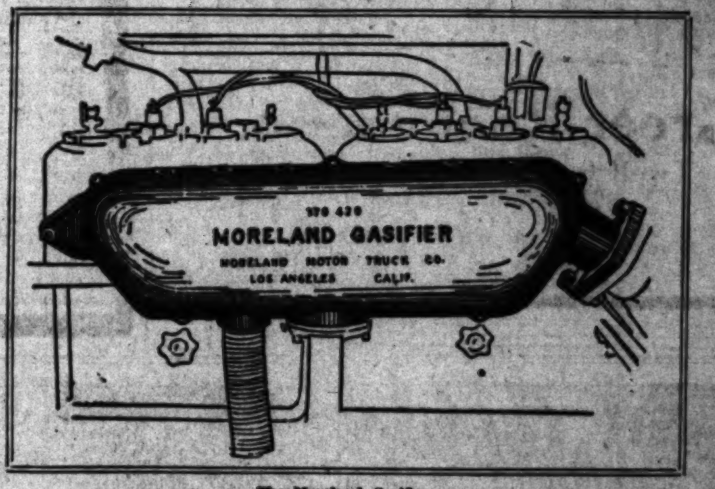
Be Patriotic— —Save Gasoline

You Can Burn Distillate In Moreland Truck Equipment and Save 50% of Your Fuel Expense



The Moreland Gasifier.

There are more than 3500 Moreland Trucks operating daily that use distillate as fuel. They start work on distillate and continue to operate on this low-grade fuel as long as they last.

The Moreland gasifier will help reduce your fuel expense 50 per cent.. This is true, because the Moreland gasifier prepares distillate for almost 100% combustion.

There is a surprising absence of carbon deposits, crank case oil lasts longer, because cylinder drippage is eliminated, and the fuel account totals, at the end of any given period, about one-half that of a gasoline propelled truck.

Do you realize, therefore, what the Moreland gasifier means to you in dollars and cents? All Moreland trucks are equipped with this money-saving device. We have never had a complaint on the functioning of the gasifier.

The gasifier is only one of a number of quality features of the Moreland distillate-burning truck.

Call 60427 or East 483 and arrange for a demonstration. Capacities up to 5 tons.

CITY WILL ELIMINATE POMONA DEATH CURVE

[LOCAL CORRESPONDENCE.]

POMONA, Aug. 29.—Motorists throughout this part of Southern California will undoubtedly be pleased to know that one of the death curves on the Valley boulevard between Los Angeles and Pomona is to be eliminated. The curve is just inside the western city limits of Pomona and it has claimed more accidents than all of the other street corners in Pomona combined. It is located at the intersection of Oak and Second streets and consists of a sharp turn at a spot where a street-car track and a narrow street make the turn difficult. Now the city has been deeded a strip of the lot on the danger corner, so that it will now be able to widen the intersection and give the machines more room to pass.

CHALMERS · MOTOR · CO
Detroit, Mich., U.S.A.

These are the days when the wise and loyal person is cutting out all forms of waste in business and in the home. And we believe this is one reason why so many thousands have purchased the new Chalmers. Its powerful and economical motor which burns distillate and cuts fuel bills almost in half is a foe of waste. All the power goes into the crank shaft.

Refinement, ease and comfort are also features of Chalmers construction. The body is hung low and the seats, covered with superior upholstery, are restful. In our judgment, Chalmers has never built as good cars. No matter what model you select, you will have chosen a car you will be proud of.

Thousand Suggestions Sent for Car's Name.

Soon Going After Records in Endurance.

Still a Chance to Put Over Winning Slogan.

Over 1000 names have already been suggested for the Maxwell desert car which will be sent after the endurance record of the Southwest, according to Harold L. Arnold, Maxwell distributor for Southern California and Arizona.

"Almost every town in our territory is represented in this Name and Slogan Contest," said Mr. Arnold. It simply goes to show that newspaper advertising and co-operation is the strongest element in a successful motor car campaign.

"That was demonstrated by the very first mail received after the newspapers published the fact that the Maxwell endurance car wanted a suitable name and slogan and was offering a $25 cash prize for the one selected.

"Of course, the Maxwell's non-stop record of the world—22,022 miles—held for the past three years, has shown something of the stuff built into Maxwell cars, and the recent Maxwell truck run from ocean to ocean, averaging 200 miles a day for 3400 miles of desert and mountain roads was another convincing proof of Maxwell dependability.

The name contest officially closed August 31, but the "Name and Slogan" relay which opens September 1 will afford a second opportunity to compete for $25 gold until midnight September 7.

Mr. Arnold expects another thousand suggestions and hopes to get one or more names and slogans which will express the endurance, speed and power the Maxwell Company puts into their cars.

Showing a tire with a great record for endurance.

The tire shown in the lower corner is a Racine which has passed the 20,000-mile mark and shows no sign of stopping yet. Mr. Osler, at the right, seems to be pleased about it.

HERE'S TIRE STORY THAT OUGHT TO SELL PRODUCT.

SOME people are born lucky, while others just naturally have it, but Mr. C. D. Keller of the Perfection Windshield Company on Pico and Los Angeles streets, does not figure that luck plays any part in the unusual service he is securing from a set of Racine tires with which he has his car equipped, but rather gives the tires full credit for their showing.

When Mr. Keller, who by the way is a real pioneer in the auto industry, a product of the old Pope factories and the oldest in point of service in the windshield business in this city, recently completed a long touring trip up to Lake Tehoe, Mammoth and that wonderfully scenic though pretty rough country, it was the second trip which three of these Racine tires had made there and the third for one of them, for Mr. Keller has made it a practice to visit that country each season. On July 22 Mr. Keller started in his Moline Knight roadster, which by the way had a trailer carrying some 900 pounds of baggage and camp equipment. "When one considers," says Mr. Keller, "that one of these Racine tires is three years old, the other three over two years, that they made this hard trip before, and that they came through this year without a puncture, giving over 20,000 miles of service and yet have the appearance of new tires, then one realizes why I am so pleased with the service I have received, and yet I really believe that I will make this same trip next year with the same tires.

AUTO NOVICE IS LIKELY TO OVERDOSE WITH OIL.

"PLENTY of oil and grease is a warning that sometimes acts like the proverbial boomerang," says Harry Lord of the Lord Motor Car Company. "The motor car novice, hearing this admonition on every side (particularly at the filling stations,) often overdoes his lubricating duties. This is especially true with regard to the brakes.

"The great majority of modern brakes are lined with some kind of an asbestos fabric. The friction surface of the asbestos-lined brake must not be soaked in oil, as this destroys the grip and makes the brake practically useless. Inexperienced motorists should therefore be cautioned not to get an overdose of oil in the differential housing, as the lubricant creeps into the axle tubes and thence finds its way to the brake drums.

" 'Why is it that the brake drum on the right-hand side always gives the most trouble?' is a question often asked me," continued Mr. Lord. "The reason is that California roads are constructed with a high-crowned surface and the right-hand brake will therefore get most of this excess oil and grease seepage, the result being an uneven action of the two brakes when the right-hand brake lining gets so full of grease and oil that it will not hold. The inevitable result of this uneven brake action is not only the early demise of the left rear tire from taking all the braking strain, but that fearsome specter that hovers in the back of every autoist's mind—skidding.

"The proper way to offset this evil, besides being careful not to get too much lubricant in the differential housing, is to keep a new retaining washer on the right-hand side of the rear axle shaft. These washers are supposed to protect the brake drums from being flooded with oil and grease, but they frequently wear out, and extra attention should certainly be given the one on the right-hand side.

"Fortunately for Velie owners," concluded Mr. Lord, "the Velie not only possesses full Timken axles front and rear, which do not offer the usual opportunity for seepage, but a special Velie arrangement in this unit provides an additional barrier to lubricant seepage to the brake drum."

EXPERT WARNS ON CARE OF THE TIRES.

KEEP DIRT, WATER, GREASE AND GLASS FROM THE COTTON FABRIC.

By keeping dirt, water, grease and other injurious substances from coming in contact with the cotton fabric in a motor tire, the user can add many miles of service to the life of a casing. Tire dealers throughout the country have been called upon to aid in every way possible the instruction of motorists in ways to protect tires as a means of conservation that will continue necessary as long as the rubber importation remains restricted, says J. B. Wood, the exclusive distributer for Century-Plainfield hand-built tires. Mr. Wood therefore calls attention to the necessity of protecting the cotton carcass of the tire by keeping the rubber tread intact. A tire that has been cut by glass, sharp rocks or other obstacles will go out of service prematurely unless the small slashes and holes in the tread are plugged immediately with plastic, Mr. Wood says.

EMERGENCY GREASE.

When a grease cup supplying a bearing runs dry on the road it is a simple matter to carry on by filling the cup with cotton waste, which has been saturated with lubricating oil; this takes the place of the grease very acceptably until a fresh supply of the heavier lubricant can be secured.

Stands it Well.

CAR MEETS TEST IN TRIP FROM OHIO TO THE COAST.

BRINGING news of tremendous business activity at all the large eastern manufacturing centers, and also of some exciting experiences along the way, Richard Harlow of Cleveland arrived in town this last week after making the trip in his Stearns-Knight touring car and carrying three passengers, coming over the National Old Trails route, which, he says, all things considered, is in fairly good shape, with occasional stretches, of course, in very bad condition.

The car in which this trip was made was a brand-new one which was just out of a Stearns factory at Cleveland and had been run only about 700 miles when the start was made for California. Speaking of the car and the trip, Mr. Harlow said:

"Many of our friends urged us to test the car out more before making such a journey, but I was pretty well acquainted with the methods employed at the factory and was satisfied that the car would meet all emergencies, and it surely came up to all of my exepectations and never once did we have any trouble."

Mr. Harlow has been the owner of many cars, but all of the poppet valve type, and when planning this trip it was at the suggestion of a friend that he changed to a Knight sleeve valve motor and bought a Stearns. The performance of the car on this trip has made a Stearns booster out of Mr. Harlow, says Lynn C. Buxton, and, after a short visit, he intends driving back, though he probably will pick out another route furnishing different scenic grandeur.

BANNER DUCK AND DEER SEASON IS PREDICTED.

BY EDWIN L. HEDDERLEY.

AT LAST the day of the deer and dove opening is here; and, since the season of 1918 begins with two holidays, all the shooters are scurrying afield. All this last week the cities have been depopulating themselves. Fishing also has been phenomenal this summer in the mountain streams which sustain their flow into September. Heavy plantings by the Fish and Game Commission, which have contributed very largely to building up the present stock of trout, are to be continued this fall on an extensive scale, now that the new Mt. Whitney hatchery has gone into operation upon a basis to supply all Southern California demands for rainbow trout and stock the Sierran lakes and streams with the wonderful golden beauties from Cottonwood Lakes' eggs taken early this summer.

Deputies of the Fish and Game Commission covered the deer and dove country very comprehensively before shooting time arrived, seeking to hold down "soonering" in the interests of the law-abiding, and incidentally gathering reliable data upon the conditions for benefit of the licensed hunting fraternity. These reports, from the Eastern Sierras to San Diego county, and compiled by upward of twenty veteran deputies, forest rangers, etc., all working independently of each other, all agreed surprisingly well in their general estimate of the outlook as indicating a steady improvement. Upcoast deer were late and not exceptional in fatness; it is likely this will prove a general condition, though September is late enough for the season to open in the south. August is rather early, even up the coast. Another Legislature is apt to set it back fifteen days, and some advocate this as a uniform date for opening the season.

SHOWS TEN YEARS AGO ARE RECALLED.

A copy of the automobile section of a New York daily paper, in the possession of J. B. Rauen, secretary and treasurer of the United States Spring Company, announcing the automobile shows which were held in that city in January, 1906, furnishes interesting reading when comparisons are made with the industry as it stands today. In that year there were two shows, one in Madison Square Garden and the other in the Sixty-ninth Regiment armory. The first included forty-nine motor vehicles licensed under the Selden patent, and the last 126 motor vehicles manufactured by what were then known as the "independents" and who did not recognize the Selden claims.

ADJUSTING BRAKES.

After adjusting brakes it should be ascertained that the wheels run freely. This is done by jacking up the rear wheels and turning them by hand. If resistance is encountered and a scraping sound issues from the wheel as it revolves, the chances are that the brakes are dragging. In the case of fabric lining this trouble may be cured by prying the band with a screwdriver or similar tool. It is wise when on a tour to put the hand on the brakes during halts, as dragging will be indicated by heating of the drums.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

READVILLE (Mass.) Aug. 31.—Bay State Circuit and Driving Club horses had the track to themselves this afternoon when the final day's meeting of the Grand Circuit was held here. In order to reach Hartford for the Grand Circuit opening Monday and the big Labor Day stakes, the "big line" trotters and pacers had to be shipped this morning.

Forest B. won the 2:14 trot in straight heats, coming to the front in each heat after trailing to the last turn.

Patrick Duluth won a seven-heat race in the class for 2:18 trotters, leading Rosa Watts home in the final mile.

The Metropolitan for 4-year-old trotters, owned by members of the Metropolitan Driving Club of Boston, was won by Leonard C., driven and owned by N. S. Crossman.

AUTO NECESSITY MORE THAN EVER.

"If you are in touch with the motor industry you know that every month brings added information of the immense number of motorists who are driving these days over the roads in preference to traveling by train, when on ordinary business or on recreation trips," said Al G. Faulkner, State distributor of the Marmon 34.

"I have talked to many Marmon owners, here and in San Francisco as well as elsewhere, who have lately taken to driving on long trips whether for business or pleasure. Several who have members of their families or relatives and friends in training camps are using their cars in making trips to and from the camps. It wasn't so long ago that such trips were made by train. The motor car owner, you see, is becoming educated to the fact that it is cheaper and healthier and even more comfortable to travel by automobile than by train."

Hupmobile

Many cars stand up under ordinary usage, but it is the exceptional car that withstands unusual and unexpected shocks and strains. Such a car is the Model R Hupmobile. Ask an owner—any of them—they'll all tell you the same thing. Comfort, economy, power and appearance are points where the Hupmobile registers high. We advise prospective buyers to place their orders now and so protect themselves from disappointment.

Essick's Tigers Suffer First Defeat of Season.

Howard Ehmke is at Best on the Mound.

Riveters Haven't Chance to Score on Him.

Well, they finally took their taw and their names are Submarines. Gaze on this—Subs, 10; Los Angeles Shipbuilders, 0. This all occurred at Washington Park yesterday afternoon, where Essick's Tigers suffered their first defeat of the season. But there's an alibi and a good one. Master Morpheus jilted the Riveters Friday night, many of whom worked late on the big ship that is to be launched at San Pedro today. Under these conditions, the former Bengals showed up all right at Washington Park, but with about as much pep as a reindeer in Panama.

Brenton was to have pitched for the former Bengals, but he remained at home to do his snoring up to noon yesterday. Piercy, who is Brenton's understudy, was late in showing up at the park, and therefore Bill Essick had to fall back on Franz Hosp, who used to pitch ball long before the Beast of Berlin ever thought he could conquer the world. Franz tried his mitt, and was smeared all over the lot. Thanks to his lucky stars, Piercy reported for duty just about the beginning of the second inning, but the elongated youth fared no better than Franccis.

The sailors were simply out to win, and they clouted everything that came their way. Ehmke was at his best, and the former Tigers hadn't a chance to score on him. This afternoon at Washington Park the Standard-Murphys play Essick's team at 2:30 o'clock. Brenton will heave 'em over for the Riveters, while either Hughes or Slagle will twirl for the visitors. not overcome despite repeated efforts to steady his game.

Kumagae, on the other hand, improved as the game progressed and was playing his usual high standard of tennis in the last two sets when he ran through Mahan with the loss of but one game.

Earlier in the day H. L. Taylor of Brooklyn won the junior national championship by defeating J. Hennessey of Indianapolis at 6-4, 6-2 and 6-2. Although both players were still very youthful they showed a remarkable understanding of the finer points of the game both in strokes and court strategy. Taylor appeared to be much more at home on the grass courts and his better racquet technique gave him the winning advantage.

AMONG THE FANS.

Newell W. Banks is now in France serving as a private in the Three Hundred and Tenth Ammunition Train, Co. C. Last Sunday's Pittsburgh Leader column carried a picture of Newell in his soldier uniform. In his "write-up" accompanying the photograph, Editor William T. Kerr says: "One of Newell's ambitions was to go abroad so he could have the opportunity to play Stewart, Ferrie or the other leading world's checker champions, but now he is unexpectedly overseas, not to defeat the sons of Britain, but with the other American boys to help the French and British lick the everlasting daylights out of the abominable world's offscourings of diabolical hellishness—the murderous Hun, twin brother of the unspeakable Turk."

J. A. Drouillard and wife are again citizens of Los Angeles, having arrived from Santa Paula the first of the week.

On account of the necessity of the newspapers to cut down on the amount of paper used, it will also be necessary for us to cut down on our space. Only one problem will be used each week for the present and it may also be necessary to leave out chess most of the time.

This game was published by Mr. Henderson in the Pittsburgh Dispatch. The notes and variations to note "g" are by Mr. Henderson. Beginning with note "h" will be found the solution to Problem No. 273.

27-24b	24-19	28-19	17-13
8-12	27-24	16-23	9-14
24-15	2- 7	14-10	25-21

a—A line not often played but quite good.

b—30-25, 2-7, 27-24, 8-12, etc., allows Black to develop a strong game.

c—29-25, 4-8, 32-27, 3-7, 27-24, etc., would be practically the same as trunk game.

d—A fine waiting move; 3-7 would allow Whites to form up the center via 22-18, with a bad game for Black. After the text move there appears to be no advantage for either side. White cannot do better than keep running off the piece on 19, after he has played 27-24 the second time. At first glance it looks as though White ought to be able to do something to the "bunch" in Black's double corner, but there's "nothing doing." Black commands an easy draw any way it is played.

e—This position arises from the 10-15, 22-17 opening thus: 10-15, 22-17, 11-16, 23-18, 15-22, 25-18, 9-14, 18-9, 6-22, 26-17, 8-11, 17-14f, same as trunk colors reversed. In the Third American Tourney, Ginsberg played 4-8 against us, the game continuing thus:

4- 8	8-11-1	21-17	27-23	31-15
29-25	24-19	6- 9	18-27	7-11
16 19	11-16	17-13	32-16	15-10
24-15	19-15	3- 8	12-19	11-16
11-18	10-19	13- 6	26-23	10- 7
28-24	2- 6	1-17	19-26	Drawn

VARIATION 1.

12-16	1- 6	6- 9	8-11	7-11
21 20	27-23	26-22	15- 8	Drawn
16-19	18-27	9-18	3-19
30-26	32-16	22-15	20-16

McKelvin vs. Buchanan in Third Scottish Tourney.

f—Some interesting history surrounds this move. Somehow or other the experts got it into their heads that holding back 17-14 was very strong. The idea of doing so was founded on the fact that 17-14 could be played any time White desired, and in several important contests White pulled off some rather strong play by doing so. Indeed it was rather understood that doing so the game was very favorable to White, until Doran startled the experts by winning from D'Orio in their match and incidentally exploiting the fact that 17-14 at once is the best move. Here is how D'Orio and Doran played it: 29-25, 4-8, 24-19, 16-23, 27-18, 12-16, 28-24, 1-6, 30 26, and Doran made history here by playing 16-19, 24-15, 7-10, which appears to win against all analysis.

g—In the next issue of the Dispatch Mr. Henderson gave some play by Mr. Raymond of Pittsburgh, showing a win (?) for Black at "h," so Mr. Henderson stated White would have to play 17-14 or 15-18 at this stage in order to draw.

h—Here Mr. Raymond was going to win with Black by:

8-11k	23-27	27-31	11-20	1-10
26-22l	24-20	17-13	14-10	B. wins
19-23	16-19	31-27l	6-15
28-24	21-17	20-16j	13- 6

i—19-23 would win.—[Editor.

j—Why not 14-10, 6-15, 13-6, 1-10, 18-14, 10-26, 30-7 and draw?—[Editor.

k—This forms Problem No. 273.

l—Here Mr. Raymond overlooks the proper White reply. Mr. J. Brown of this city had seen the game in the Dispatch column and also was of the opinion that 8-11 would win, so he set the position up in the clubrooms and asked me to play the White side with the following result:

21-17*	15- 9	3- 7	7-11	15-11
9-13-3	5-21	11-16	14-17	30-21
25-22*	10- 7*	7-11	11-15	11-18
6- 9	1- 6-2	6-10	20-24	17-26
14-10	7- 3	11- 7	30-25m	18-23
9-14	16-20	10-14	21-30	Drawn

m—15-11 is strong but only draws.

VARIATION 2.

1- 5	13-17	21-25	30-26	9-18
7- 3	26-23	3- 8	23-19	15-13
5- 9	19-26	25-30	16-23	Drawn
22-18n	30-23	8-15	18-14

n—3-8 also draws.

VARIATION 3.

17-13	24-27	13- 6	10-26	25-22

FOR SALE—THE DRAFT IS GOING TO GET ME sure! Who is the lucky one to get a good-paying rooming-house in the best open town in Southern California? I have thirty-five rooms, good lobby and reading room; only two inside rooms in the house. Best corner in the city and a fine transient trade the year round. Last August I cleared $277.60 and this month it will be more than that. I have never offered the place for sale before and I would not sell now but for the fact that I am absolutely alone in the world and do not care to leave the place in charge of strangers. This is just the beginning of the busy season and any ambitious man or woman can easily save all that I ask for the house by Christmas. I will take a small payment down and arrange for the balance to be paid monthly at the bank or any other way you may wish. Come and see the place, watch the business and make me an offer. I might consider selling a half interest to some honest, energetic woman who has had experience in this line of work, someone who will play fair with me while I am away "Over There." Don't waste postage stamps; buy an S. P. Railroad ticket and come and see for yourself. I'll give you a room free while you are in town. WM. P. HARDING. Harvard Hotel, Oxnard, Cal.

AUTO IS SMASHED; OCCUPANTS ESCAPE.

LARGE PACKARD CAR IS COMPLETELY WRECKED; PERSONS IN IT UNINJURED.

While traveling at a high rate of speed, a Venice-bound Pacific Electric train crashed into an auto containing two women and five children, yesterday morning, at Culver City, demolishing the machine. The occupants escaped without a scratch. The auto, a large Packard car, was reduced to a complete wreck, after overturning several times from the impact of the collision, which threw the women and children several feet from the right-of-way.

Those in the machine included Mrs. L. M. Welsh and Mrs. S. L. Killen with her five children. Mrs. Welsh is the wife of L. M. Welsh, who, with Harry Culver, laid out Culver City. The accident caused considerable excitement at the Receiving Hospital, when it was first reported, all the nurses and doctors being hurriedly summoned. Practically every ambulance in the city was dispatched to the scene of the accident.

FOLLOWS HIS WIFE.

Octogenarian's Death Occurs Just Ten Days After Demise of His Life Companion.

Just ten days after the death of his wife, John Brown, 83 years old and of Quaker stock that came to Pennsylvania with William Penn, died at his home, No. 217 South Toluca street. He had lived in this district thirty-two years, and owned considerable real estate in and about Los Angeles, the principal holding of which was 400 acres in the hills north of Hollywood.

Mr. Brown was born in Indiana, and was one of the pioneers that settled Kansas. Twelve sons and daughters are living, and he has forty-one grandchildren and a great many great-grandchildren. Mr. Brown was buried yesterday by the side of his wife at Inglewood Park Cemetery.

Ten-Year-Old.

BEATS HIS SON; IS ARRESTED.

Henry W. Brown, Prominent in Lodge Circles, Accused.

Wife Swears to Complaint; a Divorce is Contemplated.

He Says Whip was Knotted; He Didn't Know It.

Charged with inflicting a terrible beating on his 10-year-old son, stripping him and then applying a rawhide whip bought for the purpose, Henry W. Brown, prominent in Los Angeles business circles and past Exalted Ruler of the Elks' Lodge at Santa Monica, was arrested yesterday afternoon on complaint of his wife, Mrs. Helen A. Brown.

The warrant, which was served by Deputy Sheriff Dennison, charges battery. Brown was released shortly after his arrest by furnishing $250 bail. Deputy District Attorney Clark issued the complaint following a superficial examination of the boy's wounds.

Thirty welts were counted on his body above the waist by Mr. Clark, several of which were open wounds. Photographs were taken of the boy's body which will be used as evidence.

TOOK SCREWDRIVER.

The boy said that on Friday afternoon he entered the garage of his father at Prospect avenue and Victoria street, Venice, and took a screwdriver with which to repair a small wagon. He forgot to return it. His father, he said, became violently angry upon his return home and found his tool kit had been opened. He went to a downtown hardware shop in Venice and purchased a rawhide whip, the boy stated, and returning to the house ordered him to take off his clothes.

The boy declared his father then applied the whip to his bare back and breast, inflicting a number of ugly cuts and bruises. Mrs. Brown was absent from home at the time and did not learn of the occurrence until her return yesterday morning. She immediately brought her son to the office of the District Attorney and swore to a complaint for the arrest of Mr. Brown.

Mr. Brown is said to have left the boy alone in the house after the alleged beating and to have gone to Vernon, where he informed a sister of Mrs. Brown that he had punished "Buster" for trifling with his tool kit without permission.

Mrs. Brown informed Mr. Clark that the trouble with the boy had its inception in a contemplated divorce action which she had intended to file against her husband. According to her statement, they had agreed to separate, but recently Brown advised his wife that he had consulted an attorney and had been advised that there were insufficient grounds upon which to base a divorce action.

That the boy has been beaten before by his father, though not so seriously as the last time, was the assertion of Mrs. Brown to Prosecutor Clark.

WHAT BROWN SAYS.

Following his arrest Brown made the statement that the wounds were inflicted upon the boy because the whip, without his knowledge, was "knotted" at the tip. He blamed his wife's relations for his present trouble.

"I had no intention in the world of injuring my boy," he said. "I simply wished to punish him for something he had done and went to Venice and purchased for 25 cents a small whip. After I had punished him I felt the knot at the end of the whip.

"When I saw what I had unintentionally done I felt terribly grieved. No person is more sorry than I over this. I love my boy and I would do nothing in the world to injure him.

"You may lay the blame for all this trouble on my wife's relations. They have been working to cause dissension in the family. I am sorry that my wife acted hastily in taking this action against me without at first inquiring into the facts. We have been married twelve years and have been happy until her relations began to make trouble."

Brown is a high Mason as well as prominently identified with the Elks in Los Angeles. He is associated with the Hammond Lumber Company. He recently returned from Atlantic City, where he had been attending the Elks convention there as a representative from Los Angeles.

RED CROSS AFFAIRS

Motor Drivers Wanted.

The Red Cross has received orders from Paris headquarters to enroll 300 women motor drivers for overseas service. The Pacific Division is asked to furnish a quota of twenty-five of this number, and applications are being received at the Bureau of Personnel, in Division Headquarters, Flood Building, San Francisco. The mere knowledge of driving does not qualify applicants for this service. Mechanical knowledge, driving tests, physical examinations, general type and adaptability to military routine are carefully considered, together with licenses. In addition to this, training in first aid is necessary. Los Angeles and various other chapters throughout the Pacific Division are organizing motor corps as an adjunct to their local service.

American Red Cross headquarters announces that nurses, members of the Army Nurse Corps, have had their pay increased $10 a month. This makes the minimum pay for a nurse in the United States $60 a month, and $70 for those in foreign service.

Supplies Reach Italy.

A shipment of 800 cases of supplies made by the Red Cross chapters in the Pacific Division have been landed in Leghorn, Italy, at a time when sorely needed by the stricken people. This efficiency on the part of the transportation department has been highly commended.

Carmel-by-the-Sea has a resourceful salvage and shop committee in its Red Cross Chapter. It not only cleans up the city in its search for available salvage to sell, but makes the old ocean give up its dead. Abalone shells and sea lavender find ready sale among tourists, and the Red Cross is beneficiary.

"Work or Fight" Help.

At several points in the Pacific Division of the American Red Cross where new buildings were being erected for the work, the local police force has resorted to the "work or fight" law to enlarge the personnel of the construction crew. In San Francisco, Oakland and Long Beach these enforced volunteers were surprised at various pastimes and given free rides to the station before being presented with the work they all claimed to be "looking for."

STEAL MAIL LOCKS.

Quartette of Lads Confess to Having Tampered With Rural Mail Boxes at Altadena.

Four young boys confessed to Postoffice Inspector Cookson, yesterday, that within the past three months they had stolen forty-two locks from rural mail delivery boxes on Route No. 1, Pasadena, in the vicinity of Altadena.

They were Fred Fox, 14; John Wellbaum, 13; William Feeley, 12, and John Thiemann, 14, and the object of the thievery seemed to be the boys' curiosity to collect old locks, as much as anything else.

The boys were left in the care of their parents, and they will be placed in the custody of the Juvenile Court. So far as known, there was no mail stolen from the boxes. About twenty of the locks have been recovered, and will be returned to the owners who may, this week, present keys to the locks at Room 319, Federal Building.

TO ENTERTAIN SOLDIERS.

Musical and Artistic Programme to be Given by California Temple of Arts.

An attractive musical and artistic programme will be given for soldiers and sailors by members of the California Temple of Arts at their auditorium, No. 932 South Grand avenue, on September 25. All men in the uniform of Uncle Sam will be welcome.

Those who will take part include Mary D. Porter, Mrs. Idelle M. Moye, A. K. Lewis, Miss Aida Borella, Earl Bright, Albert Tessier, Miss Gaby Arnold, Miss Molly McGowan and the members of the orchestra in various selections.

The Temple of Arts offers its talent, as well as the hall and lights, free to any war benefit organization for entertainment purposes.

MICHIGAN SOCIETY.

Walter Gould Lincoln will be the speaker at the meeting of the Michigan Society next Thursday night at Forum Hall, Mercantile place. There will be readings by Mrs. Fannie D. Collins and music by E. V. Van der Deen and Mrs. J. D. Roland. Dancing will follow the programme.

Too Many Bodies.

CANADIANS IN DIFFICULTIES.

Original Society Obtains an Injunction Order.

Declares Insurgent Body has Taken its Name.

Dispute to be Threshed Out in Court on Friday.

A new chapter was written yesterday in the troubles of the Canadian Society of Southern California, when Judge Works in the Superior Court, granted a temporary injunction closing up until next Friday at least, a rival "Canadian Society of Southern California, Incorporated." Jacob F. Amberger, who was one of the founders of the original society, but dropped in June as its president, is named as one of the organizers of the new insurgent society, and the officers of the original society, who yesterday secured the temporary restraining order, declare, in effect, that Amberger has kidnaped the name of the original society, taking advantage of the fact that the original body was not incorporated.

The injunction was a double-barreled affair which at the same time put out of business yesterday afternoon, until further notice, the "Canadian War Relief Society," of which Miss Sadie Amberger, Mr. Amberger's sister, is president. This organization has headquarters and workrooms at No. 445-447 South Main street. Mrs. George L. Barrett was in charge of these when the injunction papers were served on her yesterday afternoon, and she announced that the rooms were closed and would remain closed next week. Former President Amberger was also in the rooms when the injunction notice was served.

AMBERGER'S SIDE.

He said:

"I shall be in court next Friday, the time set for a hearing on the question of making the injunction permanent to defend our action in incorporating the Canadian Society of Southern California. I am glad of this opportunity to thresh out the entire matter before a court. I feel that I am still rightfully president of the society, and that if the wishes of the members were consulted I would be sustained.

"I was expelled simply because I approved of the war work activities of my sister, who desired to see the society active in giving the Canadians of this city an opportunity to do real war work."

The application for the injunction was made by President Harry Gearing, F. A. Hatfield, W. G. Duff, G. Campbell, W. A. Scott, F. Haight and Francis D. Adams, the latter, secretary and counsel. Besides Mr. Amberger, the defendant members of the new society, which was incorporated on August 23, include George L. Barrett, C. H. Shaper, Charles H. Stewart and Charles R. Graves, and the defendants of the unincorporated Canadian War Relief Society include also Miss Sadie Amberger and Mrs. George L. Barrett.

WHAT ADAMS SAYS.

Secretary Adams, who as counsel filed the petition and secured the temporary restraining order, said:

"We expelled Mr. Amberger because of his encouraging duplication of war work which is being done well by the British Ambulance, our own Ladies' Circle and other war work organizations. We ask the court to declare illegal the Amberger-incorporated society which has taken our name, and we object and want stopped the activities of these defendants in falsely using the name of our society, giving the impression that it is our society which they represent."

The injunction petition recites the history of the organization by Canadians of the society in 1915, and carries the narrative up through the uncompleted application for articles of incorporation on January 30, 1917, and tells of the exciting events beginning on July 10, of this year, when the board of directors asked Mr. Amberger to resign. Upon his refusal, the petition states, the board unanimously (with the exception of Amberger) did by vote expel Amberger as president and did also expel Miss Sadie Amberger and Mrs. George L. Barrett. The petition tells of the troublous meeting at the Gamut Club on July 16, when the members "did, by a large majority, signify their approval of and confidence in the action of the said board of directors."

Mr. Amberger holds that the majority of the members did not approve of what was done to him and it was during his protests and the excitement resulting that Miss Amberger telephoned for a policeman, but the members cooled down and the meeting ended with a dance, while the policeman looked on.

WANTS COTTON PICKERS

Blythe City Official Comes to Look for Thousand Men and Women to Work in Palo Verde Valley.

E. A. Lorton, City Clerk of the town of Blythe, was in Los Angeles yesterday to get 1000 men and women to pick the fine crop of cotton on 12,000 acres in Palo Verde Valley. The picking season will last from the 15th inst. to February, and the growers have agreed to pay $1.50 per 100 pounds of short staple and $2.00 for Durango cotton.

The Palo Verde cotton crop is excellent in quality this year, and the yield is heavy. The growers estimate that the average yield will be not less than a bale to an acre, and possibly more than a bale.

Mr. Lorton says that suitably arranged tents make comfortable housing quarters, and the growers furnish fuel and water. Inexperienced pickers can earn, he says, $3 to $4 a day, and some of the most rapid pickers earn as high as $8 a day.

NEW SALARY LAW.

The Board of Supervisors yesterday adopted a new salary ordinance which increases the pay of certain county employees and raised the salary of the superintendent of the County Farm from $150 to $225 a month. The large percentage of increases among the employees range from $10 to $25 a month.

Oranges and Lemons.

THE CITRUS MARKETS: WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW.

Values on Valencias continue strong with an even tone to the market. Offerings are readily absorbed, the sales in the auctions ranging from $5 to $10.10 average. The most attractive stock is bringing from $9.20 to $10.40, with choice fruit around $8.50 to $9.30. Less desirable stock is selling all the way from $7.75 down to $5, according to condition and sizes. F.o.b. quotations continue around $7.50.

Fresh deciduous fruits are commanding the close attention of the trade at this particular time, the offerings the past week being the largest in the history of the industry. The New York market alone reports auction sales of California and Northwestern deciduous fruits running close to 400 cars in a single day. California peaches, pears and plums are nearly finished, however, and excepting for a few late varieties, grapes hold undisputed control of the markets. Orders from the East for grapes show an enormous demand, even the late Emperors, which are the last to ripen, coming on in October, are already being booked on order sheets.

Crop estimators are busy and as a result guesses range all the way from 50- to 73 per cent. of a normal crop, based on crop figures of 1916-17. According to figures compiled by the Fruit World from information gathered from all producing sections of the State, the figures read 16,500 cars navels, 11,500 cars Valencias and 2000 cars miscellaneous varieties, making a total crop of oranges for the State of 30,000 cars based on the present load of 462 boxes to the car. The 1916-17 crop totaled 33,000 cars navels, 13,200 cars Valencias and 2004 cars miscellaneous, based on a load of 400 boxes to the car.

Sizes promise to run large. The season is advanced over the average season and as a result early shipments are looked for.

LEMONS.

The market on lemons is easier all around. All markets are now well stocked up on lemons and activity in the situation is waning.

A cargo of 48,000 boxes of foreign lemons reported to be mostly Verdellis, is in port. This cargo is scheduled to sell next week, but importers are making every effort to unload a part of the cargo in order to hold a sale today.

F.o.b. quotations are on a basis of $6 for California stock.

"SORCERESS" IS HELD TO APPEAR AT COURT.

ALLEGATION IS THAT SHE CONTRIBUTED TO DELINQUENCY OF TWO CHILDREN.

Matilda Weisman, alleged "sorceress" of East Twenty-fifth street, was bound over to the Superior Court for trial on two separate counts by Judge Dehy of the Juvenile Court yesterday. She is accused of contributing to the delinquency of Hattie and Morris Solomon by advising them to steal money from their father, a Temple-street fruit tradesman, with which to buy food for the spirits. Bail was fixed at $1000 on each count.

Hattie Solomon, 10 years old, said on the witness stand that when she and her brother did not bring sufficient money to Mrs. Weisman "she would threaten to have the spirits drive their mother crazy and have her kill them with a big butcher knife hanging in the Solomon kitchen."

The young witness testified that she paid Mrs. Weisman 75 cents extra on Saturdays for the "brick."

"What do you mean by the 'brick?'" Deputy District Attorney Fricke asked.

"Mrs. Weisman said she had to give the spirits the 'brick' on Saturdays, and that they demanded 75 cents extra," she replied.

Isadore Feiles, a barber, residing at No. 1138½ East Twenty-fifth street, told of visiting Mrs. Weisman and expostulating with her over a rumored report that she was getting the Solomon children to steal money from their father.

"She told me it was none of my business and that I had no right to butt in," the witness stated.

SUIT COMPROMISED.

Settlement of Soldier's Alienation of Affections Action Said to have Been Made.

Reginald W. Morley, awaiting orders to sail for France with the Canadian Engineers, is said to have made a settlement with Raymond Kleinberger, who was named defendant in a $100,000 suit for alienating the affections of Morley's young wife. The details of the compromise were not made known by the attorneys.

Mr. Morley was formerly employment manager of the Fox studios. He returned on a furlough from the Canadian training camp, it is alleged, before sailing for France, and learned of his wife's companionship with Mr. Kleinberger, son of L. Kleinberger, wealthy retired liquor dealer. Photographs of Kleinberger and Mrs. Morley promised to be exhibits in the suit.

MORE MEN WANTED AT BALLOON SCHOOL.

About twenty-five more men are required for service at the Army Balloon School at Arcadia, it was announced yesterday by Lieut. Gordon F. Jacques. Under the ruling of the War Department, the balloon school is allowed to apply for individual induction of men who are in the deferred classifications in the draft.

Men who have mechanical ability or who have had experience in truck driving are especially desired, as are also a few men who could qualify as stenographers.

LIEUT. E. W. MILLER HERE ON A VISIT.

Lieut. Edwin W. Miller returned yesterday from Camp Lewis, where he has been stationed since leaving here on April 26, and is spending a short leave of absence with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Miller of No. 1161 West Thirty-seventh street. Lieut. Miller was a student for five years in the University of Southern California, and is a leading member in the Theta Si Fraternity. He had taken an active part in military affairs at the college and was captain of a company of cadets which they had formed there.

Two weeks after reaching Camp Lewis as a private he was appointed to the officers' training school and remained there until he received his commission as lieutenant on August 26.

APARTMENT TRADED.

The Frank Purcell Brokerage Company reports having exchanged the 100-room Hereselene apartments at No. 1617 South Flower street for John Desmond to L. G. Avther for a fruit ranch in San Diego county owned by the latter. The Ellis Hotel on West Sixth street, has been exchanged through the same agency for a flat on Temple street, and the Westtrada apartments on Alvarado street has been sold to John Imas for a given price of $5500.

TO PENNSYLVANIAN.

Ralph O. Williams, with the J. B. Althouse Company, reports the sale of a twelve-room house at No. 530 South Virgil street, for R. M. Cottner to Mrs. E. M. Blakslee, a former resident of Franklin, Pa., for a consideration of $15,000 cash. The lot is 60x170 feet in size.

BANKERS PLAN FIFTH CO-OPERATIVE GROUP.

FOUR COUNTIES TO ORGANIZE THIS WEEK AS A WAR MEASURE.

At a dinner to be held Friday evening next at the Alexandria, representative bankers from Ventura, Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo and Los Angeles will meet to form group No. 5 of the California Bankers' Association. The dinner is arranged by the banks of Los Angeles, and it is expected that every bank within the four counties will be represented.

The meeting is called at the instance of W. D. Longyear, vice-president of the Security Trust and Savings Bank, and president of the association.

It is pointed out that the movement is distinctly a war measure to facilitate the sale of treasury certificates, more effectively serve the government in financing the war, and entitled to receive the hearty co-operation of every bank in such patriotic endeavor throughout the four counties involved. The part which the banks outside of Los Angeles play in the successful operation of this work is especially important, for without them the successful formation and conduct of the group would be impossible.

This will be the fifth group of banks to be formed, No. 4 being organized in Riverside a week ago, composed of banks in Riverside, San Bernardino, Orange, Imperial and San Diego counties. The plan is said to work well both for the consummation of patriotic purposes and as a system of co-operative development.

Los Angeles bankers are enthusiastic about the success of the movement and are relying upon a whole-hearted participation by the outside banks. The members of the Los Angeles City and County Committee are Leo S. Chandler, vice-president of the Citizens' Trust and Savings; James F. Andrews, vice-president of the Guaranty Trust and Savings; A. J. Waters, president of the Citizens' National; M. H. Flint, vice-president of the Los Angeles Trust and Savings; F. W. Sinclair, vice-president of the Continental National; V. H. Rosetti, cashier of the Farmers' and Merchants'; A. M. Chaffey, president of the Home Savings; P. E. Hatch, president of the National Bank of Long Beach; C. M. Stone, president of the First National of Pomona; H. J. Englebrecht, cashier of the Bank of Santa Monica, and A. C. Johnson, president of the Whittier National.

BONDS VS. COMMODITY; ADJUSTING THE SCALE.

BY CHAPIN HALL.

THE man or woman who decides for the first time to venture abroad on the unchartered ocean of financiering is apt to be timid. He is uncertain as to mode of procedure. He scans his bank account and decides, because of his experience with Liberty Bonds, to buy a commercial bond, but how, where or when he may not know. The terms of the stock broker are so much Piute, and the columns of miscellaneous figures published in the newspapers are to be fathomed, he thinks, only after a liberal education.

Bonds are "scraps of paper," but behind the "scrap" is the integrity of some going business, be it great or small. A bond is an obligation payable upon the same principle that government bonds are paid, and secured by every available resource of the company or corporation placing them upon the market. The stronger the company, the stronger the security, until at the apex of the triangle stand the Federal bonds backed by every dollar of resource in the United States.

Bonds are sold through well-established agencies, just as sugar and potatoes and meat are sold by grocers and butchers. The bond broker makes his commission just as the tradesman makes his profit, and if he is a sound, conscientious dealer his goods may be relied upon for the same reason that our favorite grocer is certain to see that his eggs are fresh and his sugar sandless. There are many dealers in this class of merchandise in Los Angeles upon whose advice the tyro could rest and act in perfect safety.

Bond quotations are always given in terms of dollars, and investors are apt to consider their values upon a dollar basis, but it is interesting to consider that a dollar does not always have the same value, and that a bond should more properly be measured in commodity terms, for a bond value is as fixed and immovable, intrinsically, and assuming its fundamental soundness, as the law and the prophets.

One reason why bonds are so attractive as an investment proposition, and why to a constantly increasing extent the American people are coming to understand the fact, is because those who put their money into them instead of into goods and chattels will gain the advantage in the decline of commodities which is certain to take place as a part of the readjustment after the war. In other words, the security will represent a much larger value in terms of commodities into which they can be exchanged.

War conditions tend to lower bond prices because of increasing money rates while commodity prices are inflated. These will ultimately go down, and as high interest rates are relieved, bond prices should go up, giving the bond holder the advantage of an increase in dollar value, and a realization still greater in terms of commodities.

The American people are to become the greatest bond holders in the world. They are quick to realize the advantages of this type of security, once the lesson is brought home to them as it has been by the government, and in the future we are to be constructive investors as well as enthusiastic savers, and good spenders.

But have a care. The sword is two-edged. Be sure of the security back of your scrap of paper; be sure of your "bond grocer;" "be sure you're right, then go ahead."

The Week in Wall Street.

FINANCIAL REVIEW OF NEW YORK MARKET.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Money was the paramount factor of the more active week in the stock market, even the stirring war news being wholly subordinated to that issue.

Previous warnings against speculative use of bank loans were supplemented by the statement of the head of the local money pool, which threatened repressive measures in the form of higher rates.

A few market leaders improved upon the previous week's high records for the year, notably United States Steel and other industrials, also Canadian Pacific and several other high-grade rails.

The vast improvement in the foreign situation was expressed in the strength of exchange on virtually all the countries of the Entente Powers, remittances to Paris mounting to highest quotations since the middle of 1916.

It was accepted as more than ordinarily significant also that exchange on the neutral countries meanwhile worked steadily in favor of this country, the moving being associated with recent political developments in Northern Europe and Russia.

The advent of September 1 is expected to bring the impending Liberty Loan to the forefront. Outstanding issues were heavy on large transactions, the 3½s relinquishing much of their recent advance.

The actual condition of clearinghouse banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $88,327,700 in excess of legal requirements. This is a decrease of $4,027,460 from last week.

STORY OF THE DAY.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

NEW YORK, Aug. 31.—Contrary to expectations based on the impending holiday today's short session of the stock market developed considerable activity and strength after its lethargic opening.

There appeared to be considerable short covering on the favorable war dispatches and additional good statements of railway earnings, the latter group taking a commanding position.

Investment transportations rose all the way from liberal fractions to a point, but the strongest feature was Southern Railway, in which further accumulation of a substantial character seemed to be progressing.

United States Steel was hesitant at the outset, but got into its stride later, rising to 111⅝, a net gain of 1⅝ points. Allowing for the recent regular and extra dividends of 4¼ per cent., steel approximated its maximum of the year.

Specialties and related stocks of pool origin were less in evidence, tobaccos, oils and minor equipments lacking definite trend but hardening in the later trading, the active list closing at or near highest levels. Sales amounted to 170,000 shares.

Aside from another marked contraction of actual loans, the third successive reduction, the weekly bank statement disclosed no unusual shifting of money in connection with September interest and dividend payments.

There was extensive inquiry for bonds, mainly the international group, which again reflected the strength of foreign exchange. Total sales, par value, aggregated $3,925,000. Old United States bonds were unchanged on call for the week.

San Francisco Exchanges Close.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 31.—The Stock Exchange (oil and mining) and the San Francisco Stock and Bond Exchange are closed today for the week-end holiday. There will be no exchanges open Monday.

LOWER REVENUE TAX FOR LOCAL BROKERS.

The single hour devoted to trading on the Los Angeles Stock Exchange yesterday before beginning the double holiday was productive of little that contained a thrill. The San Francisco Exchange was closed, and the tendency was to emulate Bre'r Rabbit, and "lay low." Liberty 3½s declined to $101.60@$101.50; General Petroleum advanced an eighth over Friday's closing ($108,) and the rest of the active stocks were inclined to belie their name.

There will be a general suspension of business until Tuesday, all banks and exchanges and most offices remaining closed.

President Frank Hervey Pettingell announced the receipt of a letter from Claude Kitchin, chairman of the Ways and Means Committee, which lightened the skies for some of the members of the local exchange. Referring to the proposed tax on brokers in the new war revenue bill, Chairman Kitchin says:

"All such brokers (stock and produce) shall pay a tax of $100, and if such brokers are members of a stock exchange or members of any produce exchange, board of trade or similar organization where products or merchandise is sold, that they shall pay in addition to the above $100 amounts as follows: If the average value during the preceding year ending June 30 of a seat or membership in such exchange or organization was not more than $2000, $50; if such value was more than $2000 and not more than $5000, $100; if such value was more than $5000, $150."

This will make the tax against members of the Los Angeles Exchange, including the present State and Federal levy $185 or $100 less than seemed likely under the original proposition, and the additional burden will be assumed by members with the same patriotic desire to aid the government that has characterized former calls upon them.

WEEK-END TRADING IN CHICAGO SECURITIES.

[EXCLUSIVE DISPATCH.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—Prices in local stocks closed irregular for the week end, and were of fair volume for the pre-holiday session. Sears-Roebuck declined ½ point to 140, the preferred falling off 5 points to 115. Bonds were quiet, at firm prices. Range and sales:

CORN STILL UNDER BEAR'S DOMINION.

[BY A. P. NIGHT WIRE.]

CHICAGO, Aug. 31.—A bullish crop report by the expert of a big brokerage house injected a bit of variety to the day's news as affecting the corn market today, and while it boosted the price for a brief period, it was inadequate to stem the tide of bearishness and the bulk of the moderate business was done at prices under yesterday's close. The net loss for the day was ⅝ cent, with October closing at 1.55¼.

Oats were firm early with corn, but declined later.

Provisions were dull and worked a little lower despite higher hogs.

Tremendous Possibilities

There are tremendous possibilities in California Oil. The government not only needs it, every line of activity is calling for it in increasing quantities. Fortunately, old Mother Earth contains vast quantities awaiting the courage and work of man to bring it to the surface and make it available for use.

I have been working up an interest in a new field—one close in and very promising—and every practical oil man who has examined the showing admits the tremendous possibilities. If you are interested in a legitimate undertaking in oil come in and see me or address

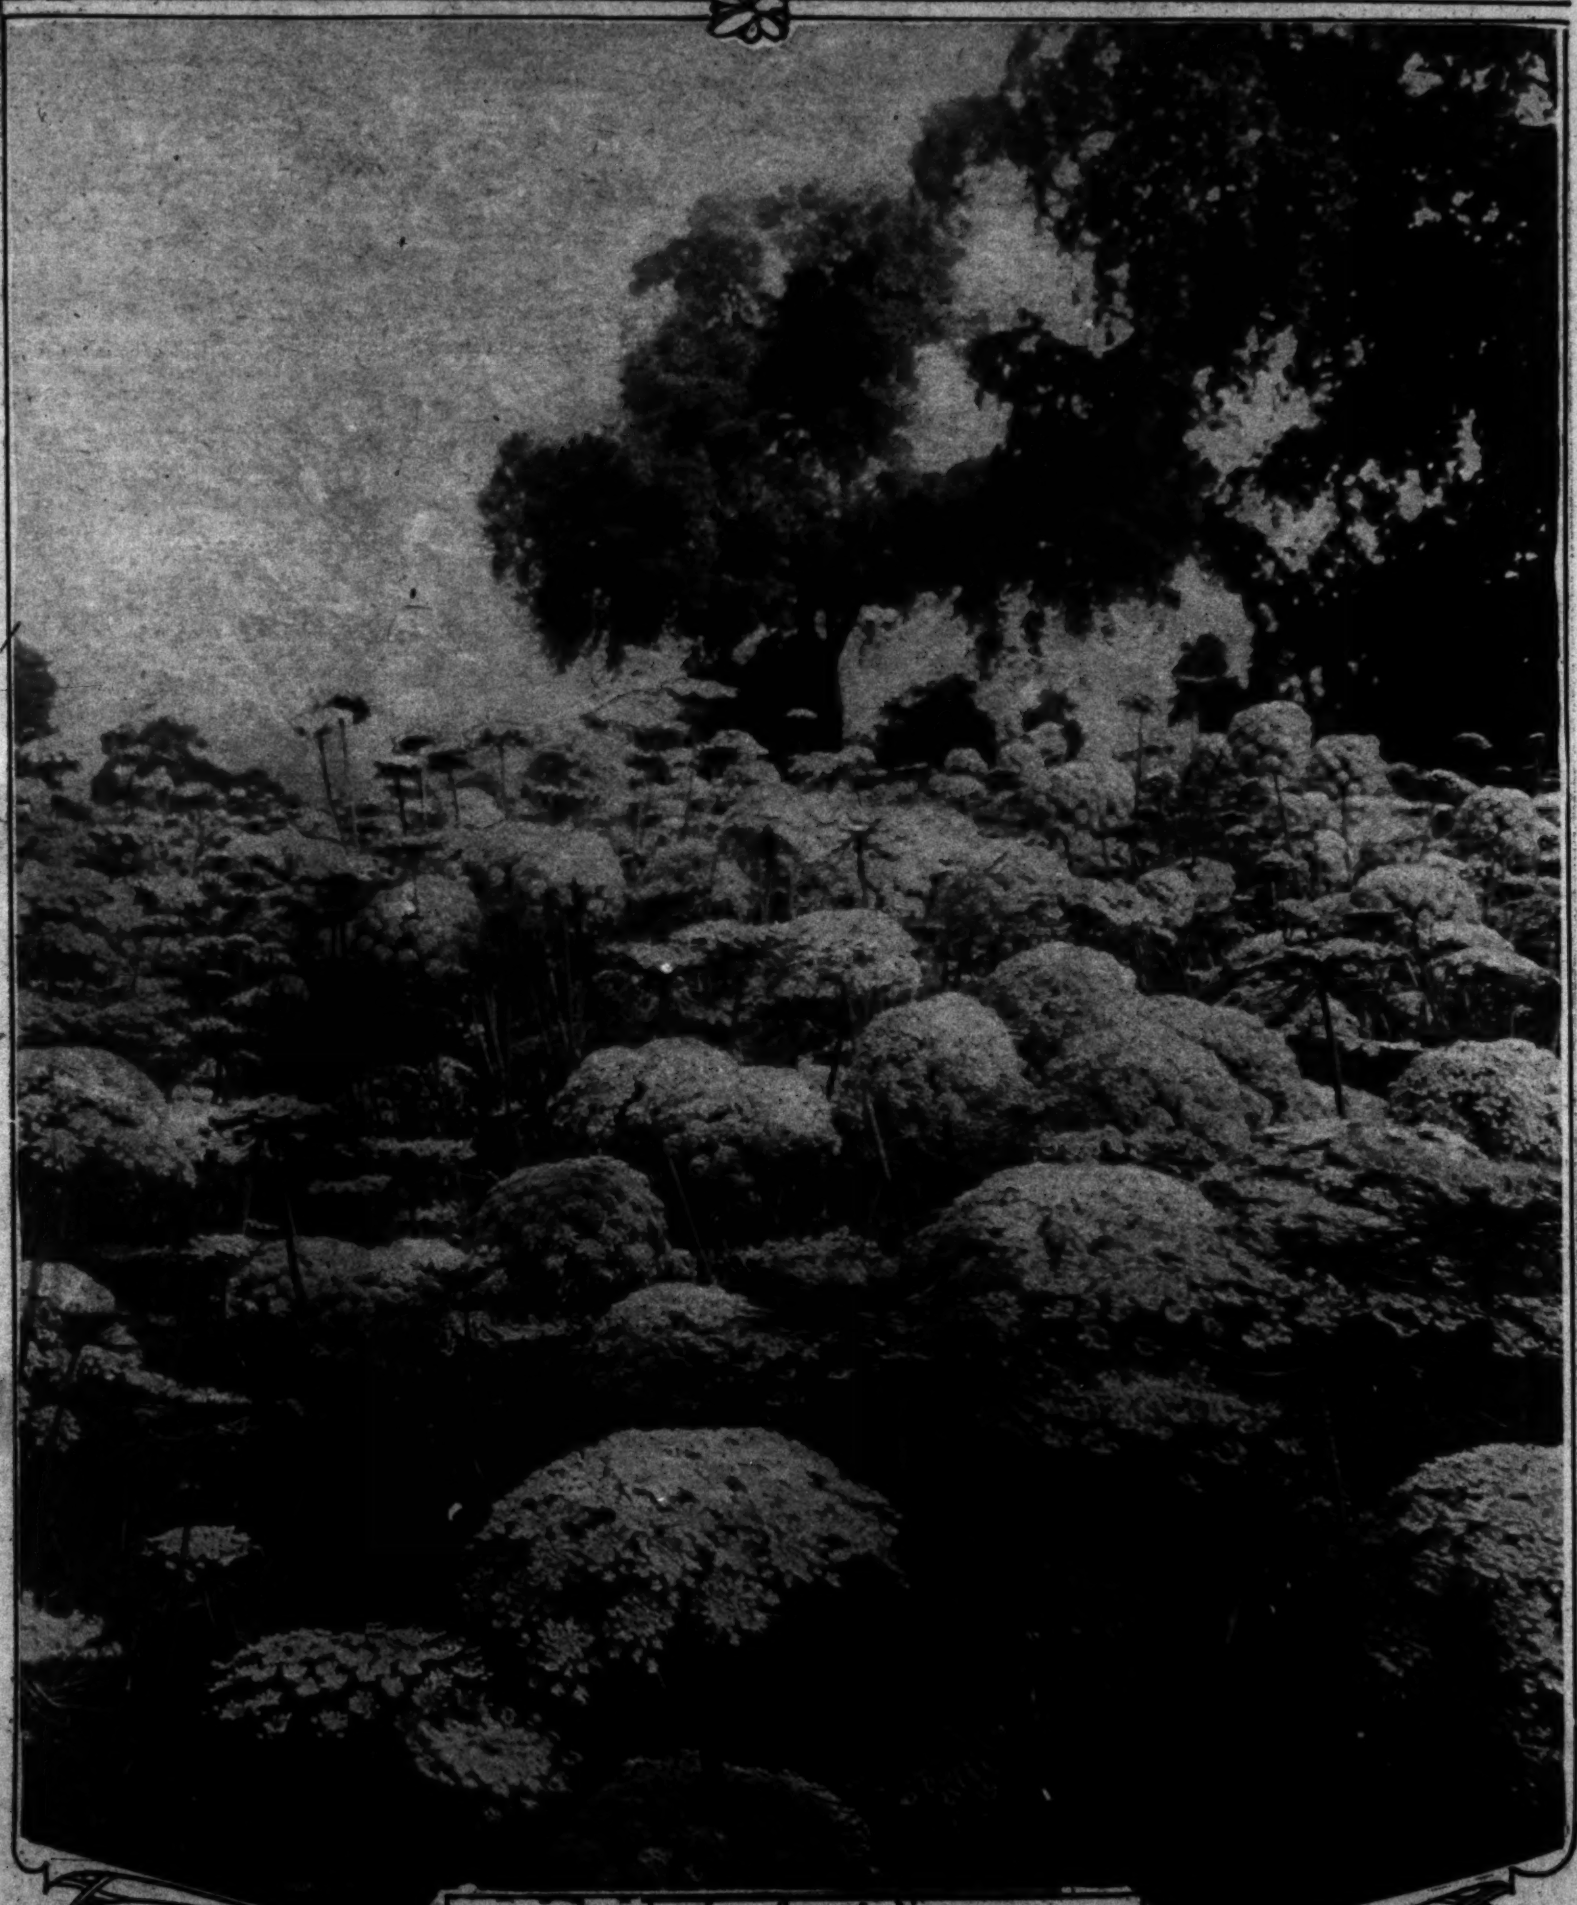
PROGRESS AND PRODUCTION

SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 1, 1918.



A garden of rare flowers? No, carrots.

(Photographed at Germain's Seed Farm, Sacramento River Delta.)

The Garden Beautiful in Southern California.

INFORMATION BOTH PRACTICAL AND SCIENTIFIC. BY ERNEST BRAUNTON.

TREES to nearly everyone are simply trees and nothing more. But there are trees and trees and they differ in their natural requirements far more than does man or any other member of the animal kingdom. Trees may be divided into two classes: evergreen and deciduous, but this division in no wise indicates uniformity of treatment as a class. The evergreens must be clearly divided into conifers, or cone bearers, and broad-leafs. The latter term is meant to divide the conifers, that are generally needlelike in foliage, from those having real leaves. The distinction is a very general one and not clear, since a conifer such as agathis, from New Zealand, may have what to the layman appears to be true leaves two or three inches broad, while some evergreen trees, as the acacias, have leaves but an eighth of an inch broad. The scientist will tell you that neither tree has true leaves, but today we will consider them leaves.

In their garden treatment the greatest difference in requirements is drainage, to which, of course, there are several marked exceptions on both sides of the line. Conifers, as a rule, require far less water than other or broad-leaved evergreens. It is vain for the experienced and observant gardener to arise at this point and explains how specific conifers fairly revel in a copious water supply. Although we are directly concerned with how much moisture they need, we are now considering how much they require, not how much they will endure.

Monterey pines and Monterey cypresses make a splendid and rapid growth in cultivation but they die at about forty years of age. In their native habitat, in the poorest and rockiest soils, with a light water supply from rains only, they live from five to ten times as long. Italian cypresses are long lived and retain a narrow, columnar form when under dry conditions. If put in good soil and given abundant water they die at any and all ages and very quickly lose the ideal form for which they are noted, returning to the broader, normal type of growth. The Italian cypress is the Cupressus sempervirens; it is said to attain the age of 2000 years on its native heath. No doubt the trees will live as long with us if uncared for. On the east side of the Arroyo Seco, in Los Angeles, at a point nearly opposite Avenues Thirty-eight and Thirty-nine, there are a large number of fine specimens, in most vigorous health. They are growing in thin soil, on a very steep hillside, yet are perfectly clothed after more than thirty years' total neglect. Last week the writer was called to prescribe for a large one at Charlie Chaplin's, in Hollywood, that was evidently suffering from too much water, resulting in a combination of indigestion and suffocation; the first directly due to too much water, the latter due to lack of air by reason of the water excluding the needed supply of air to the soil. Again we repeat that water cannot course up and down in a resinous tree as it does in other classes of trees and the water requirements of conifers are relatively less than those of other evergreens, drainage, therefore, should be good.

Multiplication of Pests.

Garden pests of the insect tribe should receive close attention as soon as discovered and should be at once exterminated. A female aphid or plant louse will increase 300-fold in a day and in a week will out-populate China. Many other insects increase in a truly alarming ratio. During the months of August and September many sorts of scales are in their most active stage and therefore may then be exterminated in larger proportion than at other times. It is the best time to deal with the common black scale so universally found on plants everywhere.

The Returning Bauhinias.

A quarter-century or more ago the bauhinias or "orchid-flowering trees" were very popular and not uncommon. Three species were quite generally on sale: one with white flowers, one with white and pink variegated, and the other with purple and variegated blossoms. They are, respectively, the Balba, variegata, and purpurea. Of late years few have been on sale and still fewer sold. But in the meantime the saplings of a quarter-century ago have become the grand flowering trees of today, with an ever-increasing number of admirers. At present there is a strong and growing demand for all the species available. While others are in the market none are so good as the three listed and they are worthy of a place in the best of gardens.

A Belgian Bay.

Bougainvillea Not Poisonous.

A correspondent advises that his wife was seriously poisoned by being pricked with a thorn of a bougainvillea plant. Doubtless there is a mistake somewhere. There is no poisonous property in the plant so far as the writer knows and he has handled thousands of the plants in pruning, propagating, shifting, packing and selling; has been pricked all over the hands, wrists and elsewhere, and has experienced no ill effects. The thorn may have been the innocent means of infecting the wound, however. The order to which bougainvillea belongs furnishes but little to medicine. The roots of the common four-o'clock and other allied plants furnish a purgative which is sold as a substitute for jalap. Bougainvilleas are not poisonous.

About Roses.

"W. P.," asks when to bud roses. Two seasons are generally observed: the spring and in autumn, but the private gardener buds at any time during the summer that he has need of budding. One of the largest local commercial growers is now budding and considers September an ideal month for the work.

The same party wishes to know if Marechal Neil is a climbing rose or a bush rose. It is neither or either. Properly it is a pillar rose, which is a tall-growing, rambling bush. It is a difficult rose to grow in Southern California and therefore not common. Yet every time this unquestioned fact is published, someone writes us about a fine plant at Redlands, Watts, or elsewhere. We have seen them. They are fine!

Asparagus Treatment.

"Mrs. H. K. L.," asks how to treat asparagus after cropping has ceased and what to do in early spring. Plants are now seeding.

We presume edible asparagus is meant. When the tops are quite dead and dry cut them off at top of soil and burn on the bed, as the roots are too deep to be harmed and the ashes are of value to the plants. In November hoe the soil away from rows to expose the stubs of stems and cut these off close down to crown of roots. Leave soil in this condition until the sprouts start and then hoe into ridges again. Cultivate well and fertilize heavily. Use any kind of manure or fertilizer and lots of it, for asparagus is a very gross feeder and will eat all you feed it.

Seedling Avocados.

A Pomona correspondent asks if a seedling avocado that blooms freely, and sets fruit, which latter falls, will mature fruit unless another avocado is close by.

The chances are that no fruit will mature. Just across the street from the writer's home a large seedling has been going the round of the seasons as above described, for twenty years. Some plants are self-sterile. We would advise top-working the seedling by budding it with at least two good named varieties. Apply to some grower who has an orchard and he will doubtless advise you how to do it and what varieties are best for your neighborhood. The budding process is not difficult and we strongly advise it.

The Belgian Bay.

We are not writing of the Belgian bay coach horse, nor of the Belgian at bay in times of war, but of the Belgian-grown bay tree. For nearly all the formal-shaped bays are (or were) imported from Belgium. Since the war began we have received but few and have needed fewer. We are almost convinced that we need none and hope the sales of this plant will never again reach those of ante-bellum days. Historical association is too largely responsible for the use of the "classic bay" and the "classic myrtle." Let us cut out the classic bosh and allow these and all other plants to stand on their individual merits. We have many plants equally good and some better that will serve every purpose to which a bay tree may be put.

A California Mall.

Mall is the name of a large wooden hammer or beetle. Malleable is the state of a material that may be beaten out by hammer. Another kind of a mall is a place where games may be played with malls or mallets, and balls. This is the mall we find in parks. The former games are no longer played there but games of chance of other sorts are still on the programme, although the park mall is now a level, shaded, public walk, where one (or more) may also sit, for benches usually are aligned on the sides. Malls in parks or large gardens are proper only when they lead to some object or structure of considerable size, importance or beauty. The object should be worthy of the mall or the builder should be malled with a mall or with anything that is at hand.

Water is an important factor in soil making, its chemical action as well as its physical. While rocks as a rule are insoluble in water yet all spring water contains some dissolved mineral water. As water is often well charged with carbon dioxide and other gases, it must act as a solvent upon rocks.

The maidenhairs and polypods are ferns that grow throughout the State, and in the same species too. This fact, together with the other damp slope species which are found everywhere, seems to bear a strange contrast in finding desert species equally distributed. My, but our climate is uniform!

A California Mall.

Jail Inmates Produce Their Own Food on City Farm.

"Work or Fight."

BY H. C. DAVIS.

THE largest self-supporting farm family within the city of Los Angeles is that of Capt. S. P. Hensley of the East Side Police Station, who is successfully following a good old farm custom in decreeing that some seventy-five of his "boys" shall do the chores and care for the crops on the Municipal Farm. Food products which should warm the heart of Mr. Hoover are being raised on the city lands with the aid of prison labor and as far as is known here, this all-the-year-around, community war garden is the only one of its kind in existence.

The adoption of the plan on January 2, 1918, when the City Council passed an ordinance creating the Municipal Farm and appropriating a revolving fund of $10,000 for its support, followed a tour of inspection of eastern cities by Chief of Police John L. Butler, who had long cherished the idea. The several city farms he found in operation at Washington, D. C., and other eastern centers, handicapped as they were by inferior soil and adverse climatic conditions, convinced him even more completely that an exceptional opportunity for constructive development along this line existed in Los Angeles.

For several years the two and one-half acre garden at the East Side Station had furnished an appreciable quantity of fresh vegetables for the prison table. The continual succession of food stuffs produced there both summer and winter, in addition to the improved health and spirits of prisoners employed in this out-of-door work, offered a convincing argument for enlarging the enterprise.

Even before the plea of food production as a war service measure was brought so strongly before the American people, the idea of reducing the monthly bills had appealed very forcefully to Chief Butler. With from seven to eight tons of potatoes consumed each month by the city's prisoners, at costs totalling up to $500 for a single month, with fresh vegetables for prison fare, in addition to potatoes, costing between $200 and $300 per month and the meat bills averaging about $1200, the chief, just as a matter of "good housekeeping," felt that something ought to be done to cut the expense. The usual labor problem, of course, was not in evidence.

The fact that there is no longer any expenditure for vegetables at either the East Side or the Central Police Station, and that several very capable looking sows are earnestly enlisted in the cause of pork production on the new farm, speaks convincingly for the results of his decision. The only vegetable bills handled at Police Headquarters now, the chief points out with pride, are those which he collects for potatoes in large quantities and, in fact, all varieties of garden truck, which are now being sold by this department to the hospital and the city playgrounds. The crispness of the lettuce and the freshness of the vegetables under the knives of the cook and his helpers in the big, clean kitchen at the East Side Station, present an interesting side light on the modern methods of prison management. It is also interesting to note in passing that frequently as many as fifty of the prisoners producing (and eating) this healthful, nourishing food are those whose unpatriotic sentiments have deprived them of their liberty.

Prisoners digging and irrigating ditch through land not yet cleared. "Produce what you eat," is the rule at the East Side Jail, and the preliminary work is not the least important.

The farmer-in-chief who directs the work of these involuntary agricultural toilers is Capt. Hensley. To him is due much of the credit for putting the farm on a practical and self supporting basis. With the careful expenditure of approximately half of the fund devoted to maintaining this enterprise, for the purchase of farm machinery, tools and supplies, he already is able to point out proceeds coming in before the end of the first year which promise entirely to offset this sum. A considerable amount will be realized from the sale of the crops, and 196 cords of wood have already been sold from land cleared for planting, for $1,119.50.

For not only is this farm project a food-producing and labor-conserving plan, but, in addition, a conservation measure in the redeeming of waste land. On two of the three pieces of ground included in the farm, some thirty of the sixty-five acres now under cultivation were cleared this season before being planted. Another thirty acres of this rich, river-bottom land on the main, or upper ranch, is now in the process of being cleared.

Irrigating 30-day-old beans on the municipal farm.

This ranch consists of 120 acres lying to the north of Griffith Park. It is leased by the Police Department from the Water Department. Here eighteen acres, after having yielded twenty tons of barley hay, was planted July first to pink beans, which are making splendid growth under irrigation. Eight acres of this tract is in Indian corn which is the especial pride of Capt. Hensley, and another eight acres is in milo maize. Smaller areas in experimental plantings of a wide variety of crops show good promise as a result of the fine, loamy soil, and excellent care. A prosperous patch of watermelons is under the vigilant personal guard of Patrolman John R. Edwards, who is foreman of this ranch

A four-room bungalow has been built here, where Patrolman Edwards makes his home, and several of the "trusty" prisoners sleep in bunks under a great live-oak tree in true camp style. An irrigating system which includes pumping plant with gas engine, galvanized iron pipes, well and reservoir, has been installed and the work of pioneering on the raw land is rapidly proceeding according to the most modern methods. The erection of hay sheds and horse barns is to be undertaken at once.

The "middle ranch," the second-largest part of the farm system, is located at the southeast entrance to Griffith Park, on property leased from the Park Department. Here eight acres of potatoes is being followed by a second crop, planted about August first on the same plot. Patrolman Mike Cahill, the foreman in charge of this and the lower ranch, has the pride of a true farmer in his straight rows and the neat appearance of his fields. Three tons of cabbage has been harvested from this ranch, where twenty- is in alfalfa and five in Kaffir corn. A small patch here is planted to Indian corn and the seven acres in Mexican pink beans is asserted by both Patrolman Cahill and Capt. Hensley to be the finest bean field in the country.
five acres is under cultivation. Five acres

At this ranch a promising live stock department has been established with the original pork family which outgrew its earlier quarters at the East Side Station. Capt. Hensley states that he furnished $1600 worth of pork to the jail during the year of 1917 and that, Hoover with him, he will surpass the preceding year's production each season. He believes his two Chester White sows to be the finest utility hogs to be found in the entire section. Little more than a year old, they weigh approximately 350 pounds each and have produced respective litters of ten and eleven pigs.

Starting with one pig several years ago, the captain has made this side-line support itself. If Capt. Hensley sees his dreams come true, not only hogs but other live stock will be grown on municipal soil with the labor of city charges before many years.

From the 700 acres owned by the city of Los Angeles, both Chief Butler and Capt. Hensley hope to be able to secure a larger area as leases to other renters expire and the success of the undertaking becomes established. The rather scattering formation of the present farm and the larger one in contemplation present the main difficulty in handling the enterprise.

Under present arrangements, it is necessary to haul the men a considerable distance in the big truck which is a part of the newly-purchased equipment, thus losing an hour of working time both morning and evening. In order to obviate this difficulty and have the labor on the farm more centrally located, the plan is to build as soon as possible a barracks to accommodate about fifty men. This building, which will probably be of concrete and constructed on the same general plan as the East Side Station, is to be erected at the main, or upper ranch, which will probably be the most convenient point for the work on all the tracts.

The promoters of the scheme have no lack of plans for increasing the ranch equipment, as well as the acreage under cultivation. It is hoped to have a full line of modern machinery and to run the ranch along lines as efficient as those followed by any private concern. The officers declare that lack of "steady" hands will not carse any loss of time or effi-important consideration.
ciency, stating that the supervision is the

This may finally become the nucleus of the entire agricultural plant, which will, its supporters hope, develop into a big enterprise, with good stock, silos and other modern equipment, as well as a large acreage in crops. And not only will the city benefit in a material way, the men viewing the progress of this movement believe, but the production of such a tonnage of food crops as is made possible by this means will be an acceptable addition to the strength of the entire nation. Purely as a patriotic, productive measure the carrying out of such an agricultural enterprise is well worthy of note, even were it not for the saving of many a human derelict and the general improvement in the health of all the prisoners.

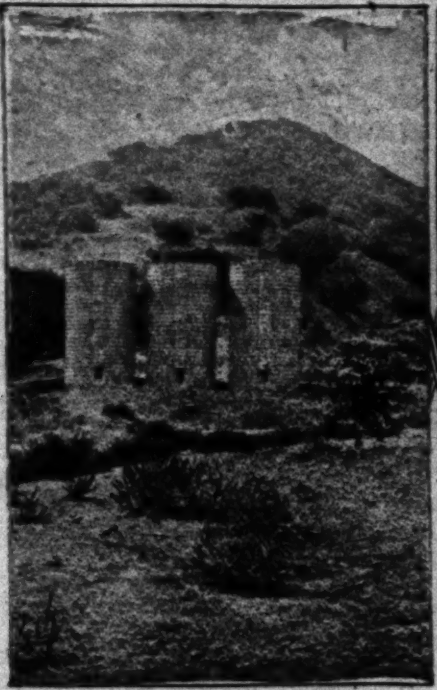
These modern cottages are expected to solve the labor problem on the Holt ranch. The garage and machine shop are seen at the left.



Three concrete stave silos have been erected. This construction, although new in this section, is expected to become very popular, and is known to possess many good points, only one of which is the neat appearance of the structures which is here so evident.

Mr. Holt in his 60-day-old corn field. Missourians who have to be shown, need only visit this field to learn that their native State has nothing on California as a corn-growing section. The corn belt, says Mr. Holt, will have to include a "shoestring" so as to take in Southern California.

The beautiful residence is as yet unadorned by formal grounds and ornamental plantings, because of the spirit of war-time conservation.

This remarkable field of corn was irrigated only once, about one week before the photograph was taken. The land never before produced anything but barley.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION

Los Angeles Sunday Times

SUNDAY MORNING, SEPTEMBER 1, 1918.

FARM AND TRACTOR SECTION.

Devoted to the multiform agricultural interests of the great Southwest and issued every week with the world's biggest Sunday newspaper.

EDITED BY HAROLD M. FINLEY.

Communications from practical farmers, ranchers, stock raisers, poultrymen, gardeners and others engaged either in a large or small way in the vital work of food production are gladly received.

Good clear photographs of interesting farm and garden activities are always welcomed. The Los Angeles Times Farm and Tractor Section is the only farm journal in the west printing illustrations in the incomparable rotogravure process.

"FOOD WIDD WIN THE WAR."

The Tractor Show.

AS THE time for the third annual demonstration of the Tractor Engine and Implement Association of Southern California draws nearer, it is becoming evident that this is to be one of the biggest events of its kind ever seen in Amberica. It is to be questioned, in fact, if the farmers and the public at large in this section as yet really understand and appreciate the magnitude of the great tractor show that is to be held from September 17 to 21 on Whittier boulevard just outside the east city limits of Los Angeles. One thing is certain—the agriculturist who is even remotely interested in power farming will be missing an educational opportunity of great actual and prospective value to him if he fails to attend this demonstration. The show will have a real interest for the city man as well, for who is there who is not interested in the wonderful machines that are contributing so much to the defeat of the Hun on the farm sectors of the home front?

The very scope of the plans for the 1918 demonstration of the local tractor and implement men has caused tractor circles the country over to take an interest in the forthcoming show. According to one eastern implement publication, the demonstration will be "more than half as big" as the recent national tractor show at Salina, Kan., and the biggest purely sectional event of the kind ever held. Another farming magazine in the same part of the country, in citing the large number of exhibitors in the Los Angeles demonstration, takes occasion to comment on the tremendous growth of modern agriculture on the Pacific Coast and especially in California, as evidenced by just such shows.

The farmer who has merely realized in a general way that the men in the tractor and implement were planning another display will get a better idea of the importance of the demonstration when he learns that the tents containing the various exhibits of he coming show will cover an area of over sixy acres and that fifty or more different types and sizes of tractors are to be put in daily operation on the field. He will have an opporunity at this demonstration to see, examine and try out not only the makes of machines and accessories with which he may have become more or less familiar at other similar exhibits, but innumerable others now being introduced for the first time or heretofore unknown on the Pacific Coast. He will find tractors and implements to meet every possible demand, he will be able to compare them in actual work before his eyes and to size up and measure his own requirements by the performances of the demonstrators for the various makes.

Be on the grounds the opening day, Mr. Farmer, and bring your neighbor This demonstration will be the big event of the year in agricultural circles and you should not let anything keep you away. You can not hope to be abreast of developments in modern farming methods unless you avail yourself of this opportunity to see and study the newest farming appliances. The tractor and implement men are working hard to make the demonstration a credit to the section and you should do everything possible to make the show the huge success it deserves to be. It is your show in every sense of the word. Make it a go! Make it the biggest thing of the kind short of the national show itself ever held in the United States!

FARM LABOR AGENCY NO. 191.

The editor of the Farm and Tractor Section is an officially authorized farm labor agent and will receive and forward applications for work from volunteers in any branch of the great farm army, as well as calls by farmers for help.

Farmers or workers wishing to take advantage of this service should anticipate their requirements and desires as much as possible in order to insure getting results and should be as specific as possible in their communications.

Such calls will be received by letter, telegraph or telephone, and every effort will be made to bring farmers and applicants together in mutually satisfactory arrangements. State wages wanted or offered.

CALIFORNIA NOW SEED GROWING CENTER FOR THE WHOLE WORLD.

THE American seed grower is conspicuous among those who have put forth their utmost efforts to help supply the food needs of the world since the war started. It fell to him to step in at a critical time when the agriculture of Europe was being almost forgotten in the mad rush to arms to beat back the modern Hun and grow the seed so vital to the food supply of succeeding years. He truly saved the day. And to the seed growers of California, far more than to any others, belongs the credit of having averted a seed famine

Prior to the war most of the seed the world demanded came from England, France and Germany. Because of the lack of labor, England and France after the war opened could no longer produce their amount of seed, and in consequence, the world looked to the American seedsman to supply the great deficiency. What he has accomplished can well be compared with what the Food Administration of the United States government has done with the production of wheat. He has had no help financially or otherwise. He was not guaranteed a profit. Nevertheless, he tackled his big undertaking like a soldier under orders.

California this year is shipping hundreds of tons of vegetable seeds to all parts of the world, this on top of taking care of its own great needs. The contracts of one grower, include orders from Australia, Canada, England, France, Denmark, Italy and Egypt. Seed growing although not heralded abroad as such, is one of the great industries of the Golden State.

The average person thinking of seed sees before him the well known commercial package, which is sold at the seed stores and grocery stores. This small package is the one that is used for the war gardens, but this is not where the bulk of the seed goes. Most of the seed grown for the market never sees a paper package. It is sold in bulk, five, ten, a hundred, a thousand pounds at a time. The market gardener and farmer use most of the seed, and that consumed by the package trade is by far the smallest as to quantity. It is nothing for a farmer to buy 100 pounds of lettuce, fifty pounds of carrot, 300 pounds of spinach, twenty pounds of cabbage, 100 pounds of onion seed, say seedmen, and it is for this trade that the California grower produces his seed.

THE SEED FARMS.

A trip in June through the seed farms of California furnishes sights to be remembered. Evidences of such care and attention are rarely or never seen on ordinary farms. The absence of weeds, the care in which the land is laid out, rows straight as an arrow, the appearance of the fields make one think of gigantic and well-kept gardens. Each plant appears to have received individual attention, and in many cases it is declared, actually has.

Seed growing is by no means done by merely throwing seed on the land and harvesting a crop. Great care and attention are given every detail from the time the land is plowed until the seed is harvested, cleaned and in the sack ready for shipment. The seed grower has to plan his crop in many instances two years ahead. Many crops take two years to produce the seed, and the grower must have foresight in order to grow such seeds as there may be a demand for.

A 200-acre field of onions, 500 acres of radishes or 200 acres of carrots being grown for seed are not uncommon sights in the seed belt. Most of the big seed farms of California are located in the vicinity of Hollister, Santa Clara, San Jose and the delta section in and around Stockton.

The immensity of the industry may be seen from the figures for various seed crops in California. There are approximately 3000 acres of beet, 8000 acres of onion, 7000 acres of radish, 4000 acres of carrot and 5000 acres of spinach at present in the State, according to local seedmen. These are only a few of the many varieties that are being grown. Prior to the war, spinach, beet, mangels and turnip all came from abroad. Today California has taken the place of the European countries.

The successful growing of vegetable seed requires long experience and technical knowledge upon the part of the grower. It is the veteran seed growers of the State who have enlarged their business rather than new growers who have averted a seed famine.

FOR THE LAYMAN.

Here are a few things the layman doesn't know about seed growing:

In a field of spinach, one notices two different types of plants. One is producing seed and the other is in flower. On asking the grower, one is told that the field consists of male and female plants. The male flowers, but does not produce seed, and consequently the seed comes from the female plant.

It takes two years to produce a crop of onion seed. The first year the seed is planted, it produces the onion with which all are familiar. The second year the onion itself is planted, and from this bulb is produced the seed.

For the production of seed, the grower plants out carrot just as market gardeners do. After the carrot is fully matured, he pulls up the carrots, selects those that are true to type and replants the bulb or carrot itself, which takes on new growth. From this is produced the carrot seed.

Head lettuce, with which all are familiar is one of the most difficult seeds to produce. The head is solid and compact and cannot be left to its own resources to produce seed, as the seed stalk cannot penetrate this hard head. It is necessary to go through the field and cut off the tops of the heads. This has to be done two and three times, as in a number of instances the head reforms and is still too solid.

MORE SUGAR MILLS.

A hundred sugar beet mills in the United States are ready to turn out tons of sugar to furnish energy to American soldiers. Sixteen of these mills were built during 1917 and equipped for handling the 1917-18 crop. The capacity of these ranges from a few hundred tons to 3000 tons of beets each twenty-four hours. The first mill was built in California in 1870. During 1916, seventeen mills were built in Wyoming, Idaho, Nebraska, Utah, Oregon, Colorado, Montana, Iowa, California and Washington.

A Message from the Secretary of Agriculture to American Farmers

TO THE PATRIOTS ON THE FARMS:

You are asked to undertake another offensive—to go "over the top" this fall for a great harvest of wheat in 1919. I need give only a few figures and facts to impress you with the increasing and urgent need of our people, our armies, the allied peoples and their armies for large supplies of American wheat.

Our reserve supply or carry-over from the 1917 crop is practically exhausted and is the smallest on record. The need of building up reserves of wheat is evident. Although this country produced a small crop of this grain in 1917, the total exports of wheat in excess of imports, including flour in terms of wheat, amounted to approximately 100,000,000 bushels for the year ending June 30, 1918. This is in comparison with 178,000,000 bushels exported in 1917, 236,000,000 bushels in 1916, and 331,000,000 bushels in 1915. It was possible for the United States to export wheat in large quantities in 1915 and 1916 only because of the large wheat crops of 1912–13–14–15, which gave this country an accumulation of stocks of this grain. Both the 1916 and 1917 crops were smaller than any crops since 1911 and besides this there was a greater demand for seed wheat and an increased population to be fed.

Moreover, it must be borne in mind that the carry-over in all the ten importing countries in Europe was practically exhausted this year before the new harvest; that the normal requirements of the exporting countries are increasing instead of diminishing; that some losses in storage and transit may be expected to continue; and that it is highly desirable that a surplus should be accumulated as insurance against partial crop failure next year.

You have been asked to sow to winter wheat this fall not less than 45,000,000 acres—an increase of 7 per cent over last year's sowing—and the department has suggested that an even greater area, 47,500,000 acres, is desirable. The increased planting asked of each State has been carefully determined with regard to its local conditions and its reasonable capabilities. Your county agent can tell you the quota assigned to your State and you can apply the responsibility to your case.

You have occupied and do occupy the first line trenches of the food army. You have to fight difficulties too. I am not unmindful of these. In the Department of Agriculture we consider them daily, and daily we give our best efforts to help you meet them. You know [illegible]ilties in your community, but I know of them in many communities of many States, and so [illegible]ey impress me that I might almost consider them insurmountable had not American farm[illegible] and again this year, revealed the true American fighting spirit and ability to meet serious [illegible] They will not let the war fail because of deficient food production.

Let us sow liberally for a big harvest in 1919. It has been called the Liberty Wheat Harvest. We all hope it will be. But let us undertake the task with the determination that we will sweat our blood for many more if need be before we yield one measure of our freedom to a Prussian domination. Let us fight in the furrows.

FEDERAL EXHIBITS.

The Joint Committee on Government Exhibits, representing the Departments of Agriculture, War, Navy, Interior and Commerce, the Food Administration and the Committee on Public Information has adopted tentative itineraries for the display of exhibits representing the war-time and other activities of the various Federal agencies named. It is planned to divide the country into five circuits of larger fairs and expositions, and it is hoped to cover each circuit with two baggage cars loaded with exhibits in August, September, October and November. The Department of Agriculture exhibits illustrate the nature of its work and the results achieved. They are all educational in character, and spectacular displays or those of purely technical interest are rarely used. The exhibits illustrate work of the Weather Bureau, Bureau of Animal Industry, Bureau of Plant Industry, Forest Service, Bureau of Chemistry, Bureau of Soils, States Relations Service, Bureau of Entomology, Bureau of Biological Survey, Office of Public Roads and Rural Engineering and Bureau of Markets.

CORN GROWING ON A BIG SCALE ON MODEL SAN FERNANDO RANCH.

BY H. C. DAVIS.

WHEN a man from Missouri admits that corn grown in Southern California surpasses any he has ever seen in his native State, that man must have come to California to grow it himself, and very likely according to Mercer county (Missouri) methods. For there, as nowhere else in the United States, says W. F. Holt, pioneer developer of Imperial Valley, who has "retired" to suburban Los Angeles, is corn grown to perfection, and Mr. Holt ought to know, for he himself was farm-raised there and says that growing corn was the best thing he did. And that is why the one thing in which he probably takes more genuine pride than anything else on the 600-acre ranch he is improving in the San Fernando Valley, near Van Nuys, is the big 80-acre corn field, a picture of which he has just proudly sent to James Holt, his father, who is still in Missouri growing corn. The elder Mr. Holt at 75 is running a 1000-acre ranch, over which he rides after cattle with the full vigor of a man half his age, attending to the entire management of the farming himself.

With the pictured proof of this California corn attainment will go the proud boasts of a true Californian. The stand illustrated on the opposite page was grown in sixty days from planting, on ground never before planted to anything but barley. Entirely without rain, it was irrigated but once, just a week before being photographed. Mr. Holt said he expected to irrigate at exactly the critical time when the Middle Western farmer prays for rain—when the tassel is first forming (or the corn begins "to silk.") He had put the ground in excellent condition, and believes that if more corn were planted in Southern California according to such methods, this grain would rapidly come to the front as a highly profitable food crop for this section.

CULTURAL METHODS.

Mr. Holt expects to cut very close to twenty tons to the acre, to be used for silage. The variety is "Orange County Prolific." In the fall he plowed ten inches deep, discing thoroughly. He disced again in the spring to kill the weeds, the thirty feet of disc harrows being followed by a smoothing harrow and both being drawn by a tractor. The corn was cultivated once. This fall he expects to follow the corn with a winter crop of sweet clover and vetch, or possibly cow peas, and with his next corn crop will plant velvet beans and soy beans.

Because he is an inveterate pioneer, the success of this first big cornfield in San Fernando Valley is dear to his heart, for he believes it to be a constructive step in the development of the entire section. Mr. Holt enjoys farming more keenly than any other pursuit. And farming on a big scale is to be followed on the acreage surrounding the beautiful new residence in the Van Nuys foothills. The land comprises what for a generation was known as the old "Sheep ranch," having formerly been a portion of one of the five great subdivisions of the huge Van Nuys-Lankershim ranch.

Mr. Holt expects to buy a herd of fine Holsteins in the fall, and is arranging his construction and planting schedule to care for his first unit of 100 cows, which will probably be doubled later. Although active work on the ranch began only last fall, thirty acres are already in alfalfa, twenty acres in beans on land prepared for alfalfa too late to plant this season, eighty acres in corn for silage and eighty acres in beets.

NEW TYPE SILOS.

The three big silos now completed, with a capacity of 300 tons each, form one of the especially interesting features of the place. They are of the concrete stave construction still new to Southern California, though said to have been very successfully used at many points throughout the East. The staves, which are placed on end and are grooved along the side, as is tongue-and-groove lumber, are two and one-half feet in length, fifteen inches wide and two and one-half inches thick.

The silo is erected by means of a pipe scaffolding on the inside of the silo, and staves are cemented together. The structure is surrounded at fifteen-inch intervals with five-eighths steel rods, equipped with turnbuckles. These are used for the entire height, which in this case is forty feet. The advantages of this method are said to be many. Such silos are far less expensive than those of solid concrete and are claimed to be equally durable. The staves are made in molds right on the ground. A foundation of solid concrete twelve inches deep was built, with an outside curtain wall of concrete which extends down another twelve inches.

Directly above the silos and separated from them by a roofed-over driveway, twenty feet in width, will be a hay shed large enough to hold some 400 tons of loose hay. The silage cutter will be at this point and the work of filling the silos is to be carried on from this upper side.

Below the silos will be the cow barns, 190 feet by 235 feet, to contain fifty stalls on each side. Among the latest improvements to be installed here is flooring made from cork and asphalt, and claimed to be superior to concrete. The durability of the cork-brick is said to be equally great, while they possess considerable resilience. And not only is such flooring much less injurious to cows than concrete, but the chances of becoming slippery are less and, in the calving sheds, especially, perhaps the greatest advantage is that this composition is not disagreeably cold.

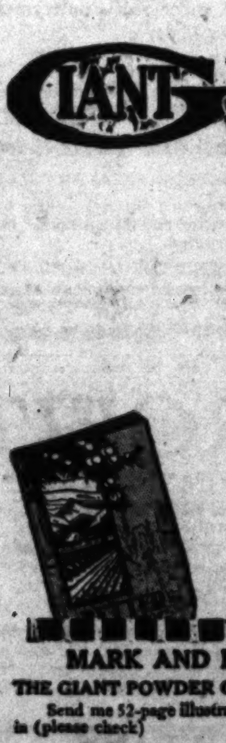
According to present plans, these cow barns will have a 1 per cent. grade, according to the natural slope of the ground. Litter carriers operated from overhead tracks will be used to take off the refuse, which will be stored in a large inclosed cement manure pit, situated below the barns. A 20,000 to 30,000-gallon cistern will be used for storing the liquid manure, which will be piped out over the farm land lying below. This entire system of silos and barns will later be duplicated immediately beside the present location, when the additional unit of dairy cows is added.

MODEL COTTAGES.

The only other farm buildings so far built are the machine shops and garages occupying a long frontage along the farm yard driveway, and six houses for employees, the last three of which are of frame construction and just nearing completion. The three concrete houses already occupied are models of perfection, containing in a compact plan so many attractions of beauty and convenience that one big secret of Mr. Holt's ability to get and keep farm labor during times of scarcity is instantly revealed.

The family residence of reinforced concrete is built high on the hillside, commanding a magnificent view of valley and mountain ranges, and is approached by winding driveways. These grounds, which were to have been completely laid out by landscape gardeners this season, are to be left largely in their natural state during the duration of the war as a conservation measure. Mr. Holt believes in making every penny work toward helping America win the war. He believes firmly in the value of agricultural development as a productive service, but feels that mere ornamentation has no place at this time.

One of the features in which both Mr. and Mrs. Holt take especial pride is the vegetable cellar and its twin, the milk-house, built into the hillside just across the driveway from the house. Walled, ceiled and floored with cement, these rooms are not only convenient, but also serve as a practical conservation measure well worthy of general adoption on hillside ranches. The heavy doors are so arranged that the upper half may be swung open leaving a screened opening. This is done each evening, the cold night air thoroughly cooling the interior. The doors are closed in the early morning, and the temperature kept so low that no ice whatever has yet been necessary even for keeping the milk and butter during the warmest summer weather.



Electric blasting easier and cheaper

GIANT FARM POWDERS
STUMPING — AGRICULTURAL

The use of an electric blasting machine results in economy. It reduces the amount of powder required often by 10% to 20%. With it you can shoot several stumps or other blasts at one time. You can fire several lighter shots under a difficult stump or rock with better effect and less trouble than with a single large charge. It is the only reliable means of exploding charges under water.

Safety favors electrical blasting. There are fewer misfires and no hang-fires. Should a misfire occur, all danger of explosion is over when you disconnect the wires from the machine. As you can time blasts to the second, traffic along roads is not held up unnecessarily.

The smallest Electric Blasting machine fires five charges or fewer at a time, weighs but six pounds and cost is saved on a job in a very few days. Anyone can work all sizes of this simple, handy machine.

REDLANDS.—George McDonald, known in this section as the Burbank of the bee, has been carrying on experiments for several months with false honeycombs made of aluminum and he says that now he is convinced that in five years the honey bee can be increased to the size of a bumble bee and that the drones can practically be eliminated. "When this is done in the Redlands district alone the bees can save 1000 tons of orange honey each year that is lost because they can not work fast enough to take care of it in the short blooming time there is," he says. Mr. McDnald says that he will increase the size of the bee by forcing the queen bee to cull out all but the larger bees and will do this by making the openings of the false comb larger and larger. He also says disease can be stamped out in thirty-six hours' time by simply taking out the frames and scalding them. He has written of his experiments to the French government so that honey production there can be increased, all available honey being used in smearing on the wounds of the men being sent to base hospitals.

SAWTELLE.—Lima bean growers in this district are busy with the plans for the formation of a co-operative association. The purpose is to turn the entire output over to the Federal government for use in supplying the soldiers in camp and overseas. The idea is to handle the entire output as one crop, turning everything into the warehouses within thirty days after threshing and leaving the work of cleaning, sorting and sacking to the warehouses. Aside from giving the grower an instalment as first payment upon delivery of the beans, it is argued that the cost to the government would be considerably lower through this method than by following the ordinary process of marketing. Cutting of limas in several of the earlier fields has been started and will be general soon. Power cutters are being given a try-out with apparently satisfactory results.

VISALIA.—Plans have been completed for a course in tractor management and operation to be given in connection with the agricultural work of the Visalia High School this fall. The courses will be under direction of experts from the University of California. Tractor agents operating in this district have agreed to loan an aggregate of eight machines for the courses.

PORTERVILLE.—Alfalfa caterpillars are doing an unusual amount of damage in the ranch district west of here, and thus far no means of control of the pest has been found. In prior seasons while the caterpillars were present during the early portion of the season, the amount of the damage was not important. This year their ravages promise to be commercially important.

RIVERSIDE. — The San Bernardino county farm bureau will have an exhibit at the Riverside fair in October and Vice-President W. B. Oliver of Grand Terrace has named as a committee to arrange for the representation, J. J. Prendergast of Redlands, G. H. Whetstone of Victorville, J. H. Stembridge of Ontario and R. B. Peters of Devore. Mr. Oliver will represent the San Bernardino bureau at the State gathering in Sacramento.

POMONA.—Pomona now has a goat association, including in its membership the owners of goats residing in theeastern end of Los Angeles county. The goat industry has been gradually growing in this section of the country until it has become an important item. Recently a goat show was held here and a large number of the animals were on display.

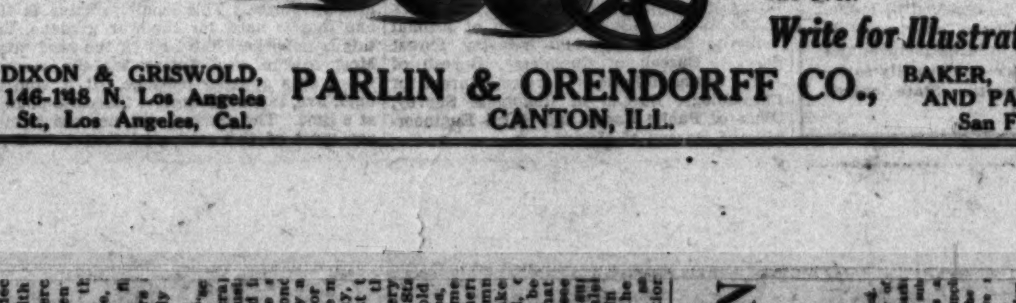
P&O POWER LIFT TRACTOR DISC PLOW

Undoubtedly you have heard of the P. & O. Little Genius Tractor Plow, and the effectiveness and convenience of its power lift device. Here is a splendid disc plow, equipped with the P. & O. Little Genius Power Lift Device. A sprocket on the land wheel drives the lifting mechanism, causing the bottoms to be raised or lowered by a single pull of the trip rope. The power operates on the discs both in entering and leaving the ground, so that in going in, the whole weight of the plow is utilized, a feature which is essential in a disc plow, especially in dry, hard ground, where good penetration is vitally necessary.



Built of finest material and workmanship throughout. 24 or 26-inch discs, as preferred. Chilled disc bearings with hard-oil lubrication. Ample clearance under beams and between discs, enabling plow to make good in trashy ground. These and many other splendid features. If you are in the market for a disc plow, look this one over.

The Awakening of the Poultry Interests.

STANDARDIZING A BILLION DOLLAR BUSINESS. BY HENRY W. KRUCKEBERG.

THE realization that the poultry industry is undergoing an economic revolution which, if not intelligently directed, will result in more or less hardship to all engaged in it, has called into existence a national organization in which every interest is represented—the consumer, the producer and the intermediaries, such as dealers and shippers, manufacturers of feeds and poultry appliances, and the cold storage and banking systems. The initial gathering of this nation-wide effort to standardize the poultry business, thereby removing it from the atmosphere of doubt and apprehension to that of sound business practice and profitable stability, was held in Chicago during the latter part of August, and adopted the name in its incorporation papers of the "National War Emergency Poultry Federation." The following declaration of objects and aims affords an epitome of the work its sponsors and founders hope to accomplish:

To help win the war by uniting the poultry interests, fostering the industry and supporting the nation.

To enlist, for the federation and in the fulfillment of its purpose and programme, the full and united support of every individual, firm and corporation, association or other organization having to do with or interested in any branch of the poultry industry.

To formulate a sound and practical policy looking to the stimulation of poultry and egg production which shall secure to the producer fair remuneration for his efforts.

To educate the consuming public as to the food value of poultry and eggs, and their proper use as everyday foods.

To encourage among producers modern business methods, such as cost accounting and the adoption of approved scientific practices.

To help secure uniform, interchangeable standards for our products in all markets, as we believe this to be a progressive step for the welfare of all concerned.

To work diligently with government agents and otherwise to secure and provide adequate transportation facilities for our products and at such rates and charges as shall be upon an equitable basis compared with those applying to competitive products.

To appeal to bankers and other business interests for their help in properly safeguarding our billion-dollar industry, which represents one-twelfth of our annual agricultural crop wealth.

To correct abuses and prevent waste in any and all phases of our industry.

To initiate and secure the passage of such laws and regulations as will insure the economical production of the largest possible volume of poultry and eggs.

To set forth more clearly the true function of the exclusive breeder in improving and spreading the best types of fowls for different sections of this country.

To lay plans to promptly restock war-torn Europe with poultry for breeding and commercial purposes when peace shall have been restored.

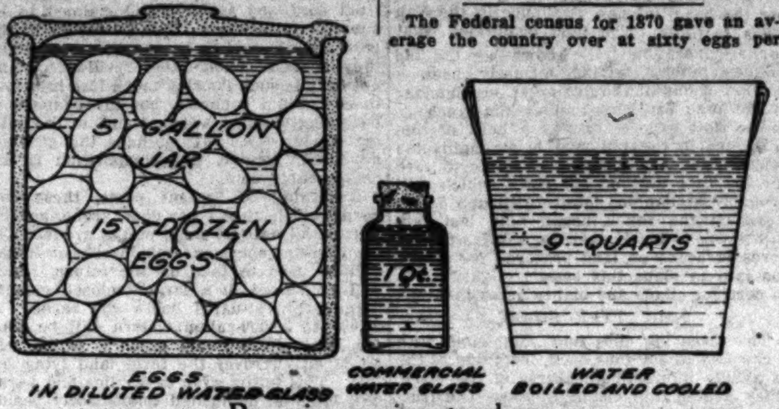
To aid in the selection of a suitable date to be known as "National Poultry and Egg Day," to direct attention by all available methods to the value of poultry and eggs in our national dietary.

To co-operate with national, State and local government agents in all matters pertaining to our industry, with the aim of maintaining continued high efficiency in their work.

In this connection it is pleasant to record that the federation adopted the suggestions laid down in address from the Southern California poultry interests, entitled "Winning the War by Advertising the Nutritious Egg," which was a strong plea for exploiting the food value of eggs in a newspaper advertising campaign. This was signed by the following organizations:

Poultry Co-operative Milling Association, Poultry Producers of Southern California, Poultry Breeders' Association of Southern California, Los Angeles Poultry Association, American Poultry Association of California, Leghorn Association of California, Wyandotte Club of California, California A.P.A. Committee, Pacific Poultrycraft and California Poultry Journal.

There has been organized for Southern California a division of the national body, particulars of which can be had by applying to the editor of the poultry page of the Farm and Tractor Section of The Times.



Preserving eggs in water glass.

Preserving Eggs.

Eggs preserved now mean a supply next winter when they may reach extremely high prices. Late summer is not too early to preserve eggs, but care must be taken that they are strictly fresh. Two methods of preserving eggs are recommended by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture.

One, the water glass method is described as follows:

Use one quart of sodium silicate to nine quarts of water that has been boiled and cooled. Place the mixture in a five-gallon crock or jar. This will be sufficient to preserve fifteen dozen eggs; and the quantity needed to preserve a larger number of eggs will be in proportion.

First, select a five-gallon crock and clean it thoroughly, after which it should be scalded and allowed to dry.

Second, heat a quantity of water to the boiling point and allow it to cool.

Third, when cool, measure out nine quarts of water, place it in the crock, and add one quart of sodium silicate, stirring the mixture thoroughly.

Fourth, place the eggs in the solution. Be very careful to allow at least two inches of the solution to cover the eggs.

Fifth, place the crock containing the preserved eggs in a cool, dry place, well covered to prevent evaporation. Waxed paper covered over and tied around the top of the crock will answer this purpose.

The other plan is known as the lime method. Here is the way it is carried out: When water glass cannot be obtained, the following method may be used in its stead. Many consider this method entirely satisfactory, though instances are known in which eggs so preserved have tasted slightly of lime.

Dissolve two or three pounds of unslaked lime in five gallons of water that has previously been boiled and allowed to cool, and allow the mixture to stand until the lime settles and the liquid is clear. Place clean, fresh eggs in a clean earthenware jug or keg and pour the clear lime water into the vessel until the eggs are covered. At least two inches of the solution should cover the top layer of eggs.

Sometimes a pound of salt is used with the lime, but experience has shown that in general the lime without the salt is more satisfactory.

The Federal census for 1870 gave an average the country over at sixty eggs per hen: by selection and careful breeding that for 1900 gave seventy eggs per hen. It is quite generally conceded the average at this writing is about ninety eggs per hen.

Hens are about the only live stock that will convert what would otherwise go to waste into an article of food, hence a few should be kept in every family where ground is available.

Lazy hens are often the result of lazy caretakers—if the latter are employees they should be fired and the former made to work, or else butchered for a family dinner.

PLANS FOR THE BIG TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION STILL GROWING.

IT IS quite probable that the original sixty acres set aside for exhibition tents at the third annual tractor demonstration of the Traction Engine and Implement Dealers' Association of Southern California will not be enough to accommodate the exhibitors, according to the management of the big show. Tractor, implement and general ranch equipment makers and dealers are beginning to realize that the exhibit will be the most important event of the kind ever held on the Coast. Three hundred and fifty acres of ground have been set aside for the demonstrations.

In addition to the members of the association taking space, more than one hundred other concerns, mostly manufacturers and dealers interested in tractor accessories, have reserved space.

The rapid development of the tractor and its importance in contributing to war service are reasons for the increased interest taken in the demonstration, which will be held one-half mile east of the Los Angeles city limits on the Whittier boulevard, commencing September 17.

No admission will be charged to any of the exhibits or demonstrations. It is predicted by the officers of the association that 150,000 persons will pass through the gates this year. More than 100,000 saw last year's tractor meet, it is said, over 4000 autos being parked during one day. Free parking space has been arranged for 10,000 machines daily at this year's demonstration.

It is hinted by association officials that there will be a number of entirely new types of tractors in the field, improved machines which will be a revelation to the farmer and orchardist. During the past year manufacturers' engineers have been worked harder than ever solving problems presented constantly in the field.

The importance of the tractor in contributing to the prosecution of the war is revealed in the fact that, although the government has curtailed the manufacture of automobiles, tractor makers have been urged to increase their production.

SIMPLICITY KEYNOTE OF THIS MACHINE.

A tractor without any transmission—this is what J. A. Knudson will show to the agriculturists at the tractor demonstration, if machines expected, arrive on time. Mr. Knudson has established Pacific Coast headquarters for the Coleman worm-drive tractor at No. 1111 Story building.

The Coleman tractor—made by the Coleman Tractor Company of Kansas City—attracted much attention at the big national tractor show at Salina, Kan., in August. The worm drive gives full power to the rear axle straight from the motor. Worm drives have been found to be a great success on trucks, but this valuable principle, used on the Liberty motors by the United States government, has not been put to general use as part of tractor equipment.

A whole raft of parts have been thrown away in the construction of the Coleman tractor. There are fifty-seven less parts in the Coleman than any other machine of equal power and rating, says Mr. Knudson. The tractor has achieved success by using a six-tooth worm gear, always in mesh, the worm being of the four-thread type. Users of power machinery for the farm will be greatly interested in its operation at the local meet.

WELL-KNOWN LINES TO BE EXHIBITED.

With thousands of men being inducted into the fighting forces of the United States, labor, to the grower of food, immediately becomes one of the first and most serious questions he must face before he can even put in his crop.

He must, therefore, turn to every tool and device that will save labor. The tractor represents the greatest labor-saving device conceived since the threshing machine and the binder came to the farm. The farmer has, therefore, turned to the tractor and to tractor tools for aid in solving this great problem of farm labor.

One of the chief objects of the tractor demonstration to be held on the Whittier boulevard beginning September 17 is to instruct the farmer and large producer in the most advantageous use of tractors and tractor tools.

One of the most interesting of the exhibits will be that of Dixon & Griswold, who are distributors for Southern California of the P. & O. line of tractor tools and Forkner cultivators. To demonstrate the possibilities of modern methods, Dixon & Griswold plan first to plow the ground to a depth of twelve to fourteen inches with a P. & O. four-furrow fourteen-inch Little Genius power lift tractor plow. Then the ground will be harrowed and leveled with the P. & O. double disc harrow. Then the seed bed will be prepared with Forkner tractor cultivators. These cultivators cut fifteen feet and cultivate to a depth of eight inches or more. They are used to a great extent by bean growers.

The use of the tractor tools above described, because of their magnitude and the quickness with which they prepare a field, is saving much expense and labor in the production of crops on large acreages.

TO HAVE BIG DISPLAY.

The Hayman Company, at 118 North Los Angeles street, has arranged for an immense tent for its exhibit at the tractor show, which will include the International Harvester, Roderick Lean and Planet, Jr., lines. Studebaker wagons will also be shown by the Hayman Company, as well as Oliver chilled plows and the Avery Bobcat discs. Especial attention will be given in the Hayman display to the exhibit and demonstration of the International Harvester Titan machines.

Announcement is made by President Rollin H. White of the Cleveland Tractor Company Cleveland, O., of the appointment of R. T. Hodgkins as general sales manager. Mr. Hodgkins, prior to making this new connection, was for a number of years head of the sales organization of the hoisting machinery department of the Yale and Towne Manufacturing Company, New York City, and for the past four years general sales manager of the Studebaker Corporation. Mr. Hodgkins succeeds Mr. W. J. Urquhart in the sales supervision of the Cleveland Tractor Company.

LIVESTOCK SHOW FEATURE OF BIG WAR-TIME STATE FAIR.

SACRAMENTO.—Food conservation and increased food production are the guiding motives of California's war-time State Fair. The fair, which will keep its gates open until the night of September 8, is being held this year to take measure of the work done in California in furtherance of the national campaign to raise more food and waste less. A host of educational exhibits show results already attained in the big drive to speed up farm production and check waste and point the way to still greater results for the future.

THE DAIRY CATTLE.

The dairy cattle exhibit this year is particularly noteworthy, showing the tremendous interests California has in this vitally important form of food production. Many fine herds of the State are represented in the display and all the leading breeds are shown.

One of the principal Holstein exhibits comes from the Longheath Farm of G. W. Wendt of Mason, Nevada. The Bridgeford Company of Knighten, the Gibson Company of Willows and the Harlan Company of Woodland have good showings, and other breeders of the State are represented by fine animals.

There are many exhibitors in the Jersey classes, including Guy H. Miller of Modesto, J. B. Thorpe of Lockford, C. D. Hayworth of Modesto, N. H. Locke of Lockeford, Dr. H. W. Hand of Glenn and D. F. Conant of Modesto.

The Ayrshires are represented by a fine collection from the J. Henry Myer Company of Watsonville and the Steybrae herd of E. B. McFarland of San Mateo, while the Preston School at Ione has sent several select animals.

Alexander & Kellogg of Suisun and George A. Murphy of Perkins have each entered complete herds of dairy Shorthorns.

BEEF ANIMALS.

The Shorthorns lead in the beef cattle class with respect to numbers, being represented by good showings from Thornton Glide of Davis, William Carruthers of Live Oak, the Hopland Stock Farm, the Gibson Company of Woodland and the Pacheco Cattle Company of Hollister.

Among the Hereford breeders making good showings are John Simpson of Sacramento, J. A. Bunting of Mission San Jose and W. D. Duke of Likely, while the University of Nevada also has a collection of "white-faces" on display.

THE SWINE SHOW.

Pure-bred swine to the number of over 500 are entered in this year's hog show. Entries of young stock were stimulated by the futurities offered by the American Poland China Record Association and the National Duroc Jersey Record Association. Old stock of these breeds and of the Berkshires includes representative herds of leading breeders.

Complete herds of Berkshires are shown by Frank A. Brush of Santa Rosa, Frank B. Anderson of Sacramento, A. B. Humphrey of Escalon, the Carruthers Farm of Live Oak and the James B. Miller Orchard Corporation of Hamilton.

L. A. Denker of Saugus, winner of the Hampshire honors of last year's fair, is on deck again with a fine herd, as is also H. T. Bailery of Lodi. H. I. Marsh and J. H. Hansbrough of Modesto, Young & Clark, J. F. Lehman and J. W. Wakefield of San Joaquin county, and the Bassett and Bernstein interests of Kings county have among them a fine array of Poland Chinas.

The Janss Investment Company of Los Angeles, owners of the Conejo ranch, will attempt to duplicate its heavy winnings of last year by entering two carloads of Hampshires and Duroc Jerseys in all classes.

SHEEP EXHIBIT.

In the sheep department the Dorset Horns and Romneys of John E. Marble of Pasadena are attracting much attention. Bishop Brothers of San Ramon are showing a complete herd of Shropshires.

Bullard Brothers of Woodland are represented by a large flock of Rambouillet, while the Calla Grove Farm of Manteca is showing its Hampshires. There is also a flock of Corriedales from the University of Nevada.

THE HOMECRAFTER AND OLD HI COST.

BY UNCLE MARSH.

This is one of the years when it is more than worth while to select and save vegetable seeds from the home garden. In olden times the saving of selected seed where it is grown was better recognized. Skillful growers used to have in their possession certain varieties and strains which represented years of intelligent selection in their hands. Here in California, where there are so many climatic variations, it is indeed of great value to mark the strongest and best plants that do well in your garden and save from them the seed.

Seed selection for the development of valuable new varieties requires infinite patience, perseverance and enthusiasm as well as trained insight, but you may add this study to the work of seed saving and even a tyro may stumble across a new variety that would be called marvelous in a Burbank catalogue. Two varieties of the same vegetable will often cross if seeded together in the same garden and a keen observer may pick up wonderfully improved strains year by year. From this on you may artificially cross-pollenize, which is no particularly great trick. However, the home-saved seed of thoroughly tested and acclimated character is what you will get the most direct benefit and saving from.

Of the seeds that are eaten as food like corn, beans and the like, the saving of seed requires very little care because the seed is well advancd toward maturity when used. Selection, however, is important and you should mark the finest plants of peas and beans with a bit of white cloth at the beginning of the maturing period. When ripened until dry, pull these plants in the early morning, to avoid shattering, and hang or spread them in an airy, dry place until the seed is quite hard. Then shell the seed, spread it out not over two grains deep, and when thoroughly dry store it in bags of open-meshed fabric, hung in a cool, dry place. Defective or diseased pods should be discarded, as many bean diseases are carried through the seed.

With seed corn you allow it to ripen on the stalk, and a single ear will be seed enough for a homecroft garden. You select the best and earliest ears by carefully stripping down the husks to examine the grain and to remove any worms located there. Then you fold the husk back and hold it in place with a rubber band or string. You allow these selected ears to thoroughly ripen on the stalk and then in the time of sere and yellow leaf you pull the entire stalk with the selected ears and hang them in a cool dry place.

VEGETABLE SEEDS.

Vegetable seeds, of which the fruits are eaten, are easily saved. You allow them generally to ripen before being brought to the table and then there is only the trouble of cleaning the seed. However, cucumbers and summer squash are eaten usually long before they are ripe or even before they have reached full size, and you will have to select and mark favorable samples of these and allow them to mature upon the vine. You simply wash the seed clean and spread it in the warm sunshine not over two seeds deep and keep them stirred while drying. Any quantity less than a quart should be ready for storing after one day's drying. Large quantities should be dried thoroughly for two to five days before bulking, as it heats readily.

Tomatoes selected on account of size, smoothness, solidity, and freedom from cracking in the fruit, and freedom from disease in the plant is of great importance. Tag the plant and tag the best specimens and allow them to ripen until past their edible condition, but do not permit decay. Crush the fruits and separate the skins and coarser flesh with the hand or through a sieve. Fold the seeds with the softer pulp into a coarse muslin or cheesecloth rag and work this energetically with the fingers under water. When clean spread the seed thinly and dry thoroughly for twenty-four to forty-eight hours and store. They must be washed thoroughly before drying and must be stirred frequently while drying.

You can pick your egg plant seed with a pen knife from the ripe fruit and dried and stored. Peppers are the easiest of all to dry as they need less cleaning and are more get-at-able.

Lettuce must be seeded early in the year before the heat of summer arrives. The seed crop matures slowly. When there is danger of the seed being lost by shattering you pull the whole plant and put them roots upward in a paper bag and hang it in a dry, airy place until the seed is thoroughly ripened. Then thrash it and clean it of bits of stems and dirt by sifting and winnowing. Store in coarse bag in cool place.

We also have biennials which require a winter rest before producing seed, such as spinach, cabbage and onions. The seed of onions is not produced until the second season, and after the bulbs have had a period of rest. Freak plants will occasionally develop blossom heads the first season, but the seed will be of very light vitality. Select well matured bulbs at this time or later and set them so that the crowns are about three inches below the surface, and be particular to secure well-rooted bulbs. As the seed stalk develops, support them by stakes. A setting for seed is best planted in February, with the harvesting in spring or summer. Care must be taken not to gather the heads until the seed is really ripe, just before it begins to shatter. Cut the seed stalks with about one foot of stem and spread not more than one stalk deep on paper-lined trays until it is thoroughly dried; then rub it out, winnow and store it.

For potatoes in this climate on the home-garden I believe in relying upon the dealer for northern grown seed stock. Seeds of the root crops, such as beets, carrots, turnips, etc., may have the seed left on the plant until ripe, when the stems should be cut and dried under shelter. Thrashing and cleaning these seeds is more of a problem. Placing the pods or branches in a bag and threshing them is the best home contrivance.

After the harvest of seed the necessity of storing and labeling is apparent or the work goes for nothing. Cloth bags are the best for large seeds, such as beans, peas, corn. Paper envelopes will suffice for the home supply of smaller seeds, but ordinary letter envelopes are not gummed close enough to answer this purpose.

Correct labeling must be done at the time of packing, including the date of the month and year.

Fumigate the whole lot with carbon disulphide to kill all insects. You put this liquid on a saucer on top of the seed as the gas from it descends downward. A tight tin pail is used for a fumigating container. The gas penetrates cloth bags but cannot penetrate paper ones. Protect against mice by storing in tin boxes in the second story of the house.

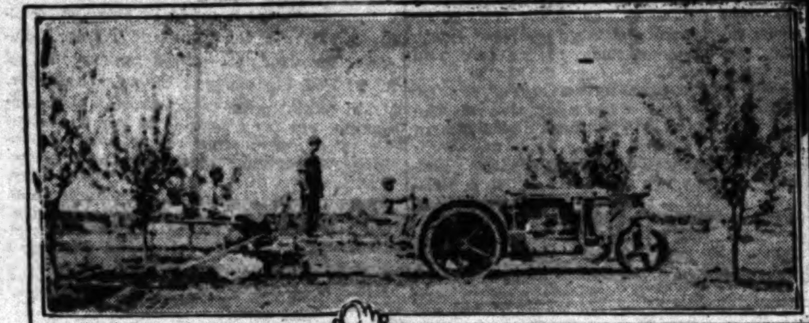
MODERN TRACTOR ELIMINATES DRUDGERY OF OLD-TIME FARM.

THE old order has changed. The laborious methods of former days have been discarded. In none of the fields of present-day endeavor is this more marked than in the farmer's. Probably he works as hard as heretofore, and certainly with greater effectiveness, but his labor now is not the drudgery of earlier times. A better, fuller understanding of his business is in part responsible for this happy change in his condition, but to a great degree his success of today may be attributed to the better instruments provided for caring on his work. For almost any requirement on the farm he can now find a machine or implement devised especially to meet his need. Strange to say, the instrument he once despised has proved the most powerful single agency in improving his condition. Indeed, it is now generally conceded that successful prosecution of the present war is largely dependent upon the effectiveness of this same instrument, the tractor.



As easy as it is interesting.

These youngsters, sons of a San Joaquin Valley farmer, do all the discing and harrowing in their father's orchard, manipulating "pop's" Samson like regular grown-ups.

The first tractors were large and cumbersome affairs and unsatisfactory in many ways. They passed through many trials and tribulations before they reached their present state of development or could be classed as a commercial success. Their first successful operations were largely limited to large ranches where they did the plowing, harrowing and kindred work.

At this time the farmer had no even dreamed of the countless uses for which he would later utilize the machine and, as it was then poorly devised for many of these, it is probable that the inventors themselves were not aware of its possibilities.

The owners of small farms, of orchards and vineyards did not derive any benefit from the earlier types of tractors. These machines were too costly for the farmer with a limited number of acres, their upkeep too high, their mechanism too complicated and their type and size prohibited their use in orchard and vineyard.

The wise manufacturer saw the handwriting on the wall. His future success was dependent upon the production of a machine suitable for the small farm, low in cost, compact in construction, easy to operate, sturdy and reliable. He realized further that, above all else, it must be simple and yet adapted to many uses. He took for his watchwords Simplicity and Adaptability. He worked continuously to solve the problem, and when the war came, taking many of the skilled laborers from the farm, he devoted every energy to the realization of his dream.

BOYS DO IT ALL.

With what degree of success he has labored may be judged by the photograph on this page showing the three sons of a San Joaquin Valley farmer, discing and harrowing in their father's orchard. The photograph, which is published through the courtesy of a local tractor dealer specializing in orchard-size machines, tells its own story.

The driver is of the mature age of 9 years. One of the older brothers attends to the implements. Their father states that the youthfulness of his younger sons would have deprived him of any material assistance from them if he had been dependent upon horse power and hand tools; but, equipped with a tractor and its accompanying implements, he has been able to make continuous use of his boys and to carry on his farm activities without outside assistance.

The youngest son drives the tractor when the simpler jobs are being done. As for the older boys, about 12 and 15 years old respectively, they are equal to almost any task required. Moreover they take a decided interest in all tractor operations and put the greatest enthusiasm into their work. If horse-drawn tools formed the farm equipment, their father is of the opinion much of this enthusiasm might be absent.

They are soon to utilize the tractor for running the ensilage cutter and later they purpose to do some work on their irrigating ditches. They can also do their pumping with the same machine, their winter's wood supply can be cut, their roads can be graded, and, in short, they can and doubtless will perform a thousand and one jobs, economically and successfully.

UNUSUAL WEATHER CONDITIONS FAVOR PESTS AND DISEASES.

BY ROBERT W. HODGSON.

For many years in California there has been no season so conducive to the development of insect pests and plant diseases as the present one. The long, dry, relatively mild fall and winter were especially favorable for insects, a very large part of which ordinarily are killed during the winter. This last season they were able to go through practically undiminished in numbers and therefore had an early start in the spring. It has been many years since we have experienced so serious an infestation with the jumping flea beetle as this season. The same may be said also of the aphis and wireworm and a number of other insect pests.

Moreover, the long, dry, fall not only was favorable to the wintering over of many insect pests, but sapped the vitality of and weakened many of our fruit trees, making them particularly susceptible. Physiological disturbances have been exceptionally serious this season as manifested in failure to leaf out properly, dying back, "little leaf," failure to set fruit and other difficulties. Among the more recent of such troubles is that known as physiological decay or internal decline of lemons which is now causing a very heavy drop of young fruits in many sections.

Weather conditions this season have been exceptionally favorable for fungus diseases, the relatively high temperatures combined with great atmospheric humidity providing optimum conditions for their growth. The last few weeks in particular have witnessed the appearance and rapid spread of a number of plant diseases of great importance which apparently are destined to cause serious losses this season. Earlier in the season weather conditions were favorable for the development of rhizoctonia, which, together with wireworms, caused large losses in the bean fields. Now as though to add to the troubles of the farmer, the weather is exceptionally favorable for the development and spread of rust and mildew.

The rust is largely confined to the Lady Washington as a dry bean and to the Kentucky Wonder string beans. The later plantings seem now to have little chance of making much in the way of beans. Where the rust is very evident there is little which can be done now. Where it is just starting the recommendation has been to dust with finely-powdered sulphur, although it is recognized that at best this treatment is far from satisfactory. For those growers who have fields of Lady Washingtons still unaffected it would seem wise to spray with weak bordeaux mixture when weather conditions seem favorable for rust development, i.e., when it is humid.

Bean mildew apparently attacks all varieties alike, but requires more humidity than rust in order to become very serious. It can be controlled by the application of powdered sulphur. For satisfactory control remedial measures must be applied before the infection is serious. The importance of keeping the plants vigorous and thrifty should be kept in mind.

SAMSON TO HAVE NOTABLE DISPLAY.

One of the most elaborate representations at the third annual tractor demonstration of the Traction Engine and Implement Dealers Association will be that of the Samson Sales Company.

This concern will have at least a dozen Samson Sieve-Grip tractors and many sets of tractor tools, discs, plows and harrows on the ground, all working.

"To prevent delay and assist every visitor in quickly securing information, we will have at least twenty-five people at the demonstration to describe the Samson tractor and tell what it is doing in the various branches of farm shown," said H. L. Marsh, of the company the other day.

"We will demonstrate plowing, discing and cultivating, and the whole process of preparing the seed-bed without packing the soil. The tractor will also show work with a sub-soiler and other implements, as well as the use of the pulley for belt work."

Converting Desert Vegetation Into Persian Lamb Fur.

Big Possibilities.

A DROUTH-RESISTING sheep, which has shown its ability to produce not only wool and mutton, but also Persian lamb furs, under the most adverse range conditions, has now been firmly established in America by the recent importation of Karakul sheep from Russian Turkestan by Dr. C. C. Young of California and New Mexico, now at the California Club, Los Angeles.

On his recent return to Los Angeles from a trip to Texas and New Mexico, Dr. Young reports a disheartening loss of other kinds of stock from lack of feed on the range. His own company, owning over 10,000 head of Merino sheep, about 1000 Angora goats and some 250 Karakuls, suffered a loss of 50 per cent. of the spring lambs and kids with the exception of the Karakuls, which came through under the same conditions with a loss of only 2 per cent.

Dr. Young, who is making arrangements to show some of his pure-bred Karakuls at the Los Angeles Liberty Fair next October, is carrying on extensive experiments throughout the country in co-operation with the United States government and the Department of Agriculture of Lower California. At the request of Gov. Cantu a Karakul sheep has been turned loose on Magdalena Island where an attempt at running sheep failed altogether and where only Mexican goats have so far been able to live. A brother of the Governor, Jose Cantu, expects soon to arrive in Los Angeles to arrange for the shipping of other Karakuls to Lower California, where further tests of their endurance will be made.

An interesting test made by the United States Department of Agriculture at an experiment station in Maryland has resulted in the production of a fertile hybrid, a cross between the Karakul and an African sheep called the bearded Barberry. The notable fact in connection with this case is that, although the unpleasant Barberry is afflicted with a most disagreeable odor and carries no wool at all, the hybrid resulting from this first cross has a considerable covering of wool and has wholly lost the odor, thus producing a palatable mutton. The government now owns twenty-eight of these animals which are being bred back to Karakuls at the Maryland station.

As a result of the success of this experiment, a cross of the Karakul with the Rocky Mountain sheep is to be tried out this fall under the direction of the National Bureau of Biology, on a 1000 acre park near Denver. The sheep are running wild in this fenced inclosure where several Karakul ewes will be added to the band. A large and exceptionally hardy hybrid with fine wool and mutton qualities is expected to result from this cross.

The ability of the Karakul to perpetuate its highly desirable qualities of hardiness and of fur, wool and mutton production has been proven many times in experiments carried on since the first importation in 1908. Originating in a desert country, this breed seems able to thrive on the poorest feed and to accumulate fat on pastures where other sheep would starve. An experiment made last year in Texas proved that Karakul lambs turned out on desert range with no supplementary feed, outstripped Merino lambs competing with them at the same time on the best of hand-fed rations. The Karakuls, when slaughtered, were "wobbling in fat" according to the testimony of the erstwhile doubting owner of the competing Merinos who had himself supervised the test on his own ranch. The testimony of prominent packing companies verifies the claim that the Karakul mutton is of the finest quality.

That the Karakul can successfully be grown on the brush ranges of Southern California where nothing but the Mexican goat has so far proved itself able to live is Dr. Young's firm conviction. In order to prove his contention he intends carrying on experiments at various points during the coming season. The sheep to be used to secure the most desirable crosses for this locality will be, as in Texas and New Mexico, the coarse-wool breeds which are known for hairiness, such as the Persian Fat-rump, and the common Mexican sheep.

Results of all these crosses have already proved a number of points. If coarse-wool blood is adhered to, the valuable tight-curled Persian lamb fur, for which the Karakul is famous, is often produced in the first cross and is a common occurrence in the second. The lambs must be killed within a few days of birth in order to obtain the skins before the curl has opened out as it does within the first week of life. Premature lambs are never a loss in the case of Karakuls or their crosses, as their fur is of the highest quality.

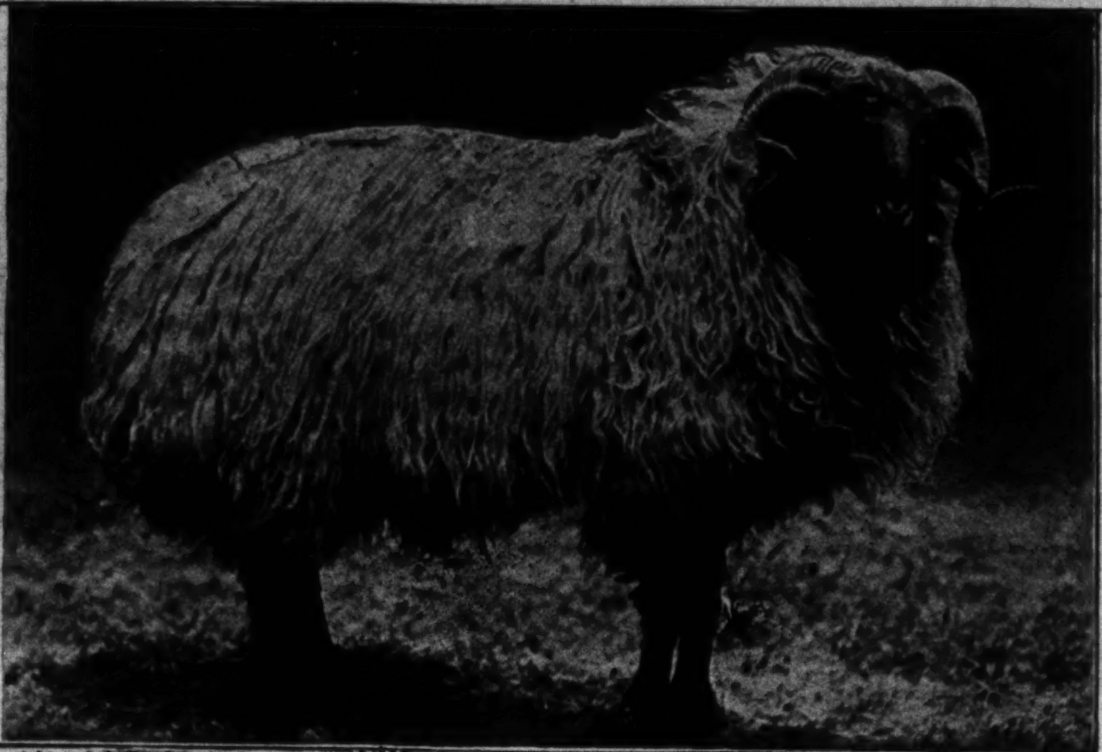
The wool of the Karakul and of the resulting crosses promises to prove of value commercially. Karakul wool sold on the markets last year at the price other wool was bringing. No Karakul has ever sheared less than six pounds, according to Dr. Young's experience, and the ewes shear up to fourteen pounds, while the rams shear from eight to twenty-one pounds. Dr. Young testifies that he has seen a fleece of ten pounds taken from a half-blood Karakul whose Navajo dam sheared barely three pounds.

So strong is the Karakul's ability to reproduce its own type, that a common Mexican ewe bred to a half-bred ram has produced a lamb with the highly desirable tight curls, although the color was gray instead of black, as is the true Persian lamb. As a rule, however, the first crosses result in the looser type of curls which make fur of the kind known as astrakan, which also brings a most gratifying price. At maturity these sheep bear a heavy fleece of wool and their offspring, when good Karakul rams are used, usually produce the fine quality of Persian lamb fur belonging originally to the Karakuls.

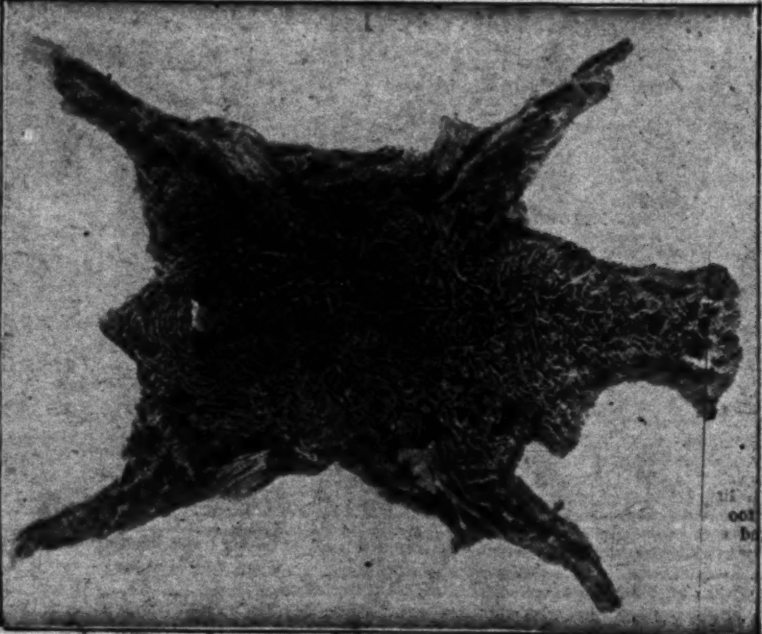
Oddly enough, the coarser the wool of the ewe in these crosses, the more rapidly is the fine quality of fur obtained, so that the owner of common Mexican sheep has a better opportunity than the owner of finer flocks quickly to secure a band of these exceptionally hardy and productive animals. In several cases growers are now making experiments in co-operation with Dr. Young who has arranged to contribute the use of one of his blooded rams for the purpose. The results of such an experiment on the Clark ranch near Calipatria, where Dr. Tillotson has recently placed a pure-bred ram with his flocks, are being watched with interest by many Southern California growers.

The especial adaptability of this new breed of sheep to the conditions of the Southwest are attributed to the goatlike characteristics of the animal. In browsing habits it greatly resembles the goat, even in such habits as climbing to reach the higher limbs of brush, and the rapid traveling of the goat while on open range. And in hardiness and endurance as well as the ability to go long distances and periods of time without water, the Karakul resembles the goat. Also, in common with the goat, according to Dr. Young, is the abundance of milk of the Karakul ewe, causing a very rapid development of the lambs during their first months and providing against the hardships of a poor season and reduced range.

Because of these qualities, Dr. Young believes, the conservation of much of the waste brush lands unsuitable for cattle range will eventually be brought about and wool and mutton will be largely grown in Southern California on land now wholly unproductive.



Karakul ram supplied by Dr. Young to government experiment station at Beltsville, Md. Note the long wool, characteristic of the typical Karakul.



This tight-curled lambskin, valued at $20, was produced by crossing the Karakul on the Persian fat-rump sheep, which has very coarse wool free from fine under wool. Similar results have been obtained with Mexicans, Navajos and Cotswolds.

It is from such youngsters as this, produced by crossing Karakul rams upon coarse wool foreign and domestic breeds, that milady's expensive "Persian lamb fur" is secured.

Your Face.

THE face of a man or a woman is an unfailing mirror of what is in the heart of that man or that woman. If you will study faces you will study life. The face cannot deceive you if you study it. If the face tries to dissemble, you look look through it into the heart of a more or less pathetic hypocrite.

Most women and many men spend a good deal of time and considerable money, in the aggregate, on their faces through hired masseurs or so called "beauty doctors," or by their own efforts at the arts which these professionals practice.

It is all a waste of funds and of energies. Painting a face and ironing the wrinkles out of it does not change it. It is the same face still. The only way a face can be changed is by the thoughts in one's heart.

If you will watch the faces in a crowd when its attention is not focused on some specific excitement, you can easily tell who are the honest men and women in that crowd. You can tell who are happy and who are sad. The faces will show which hearts are harboring thoughts of lust or hate or greed; they will show which hearts are filled with love and gladness and high resolves.

And, it is in this way that you will soon come to know the true meaning of that much abused word which we call "beauty." You will understand why a handsome man has taken to wife a woman with a plain face. You will see that her face is not plain, but beautiful.

You have often noticed how plain and homely was the face of Abraham Lincoln.

In the South, during the Civil War, the face of Lincoln was the subject of common jibes. There is an instance of a beautiful southern girl who sought him out in Washington to plead for the life of her lover. When she was ushered in to his presence and looked upon his gaunt, sad visage, her heart sank within her. But, she made her plea, and Lincoln granted it. In her unspeakable gratitude she knelt at his feet and wound her white arms about his knees. Her tears bathed his rough, knotted hands.

When the girl returned to the South they asked if Lincoln's face was not even uglier than it had been pictured to them. "No," she replied. "It is the most beautiful face that I have ever seen."

You must have read, also, of Stephen, the first Christian martyr. Like nearly all the disciples he was a common man of the people. Yet, the historian records that when Stephen sat in the synagogue of the Libertines and they were about to take him out and stone him, "all that sat in the council, fastening their eyes on him, saw his face as it had been the face of an angel."

It was the thoughts that were in the hearts of Lincoln and of Stephen that made their faces beautiful.

The fact that your thoughts actually affect the very physical features of your face is best proved in the cases of husbands and wives, long married. Naturally, through the years they came to think alike. And, also, they came to look alike—more like brother and sister than like husband and wife.

If you would have a beautiful face, your thoughts must be beautiful. It will be beautiful, then, even though it be seamed with scars. And, on the contrary, no matter how perfect the symmetry of one's face, wrong thoughts will mar it and make it repulsive.

The Irish.

RUDYARD KIPLING has published an extremely bitter attack on the Irish in this war, injecting his bitterness rather surreptitiously into a glowing description of American soldiers he saw passing through England.

It is strange that so great a man should be guilty of so small a deed. It is the more strange considering the fact that Irish blood flows in Kipling's veins. He was probably unaware that one whole regiment he saw was Irish to a man, and the better part of a brigade, and that the Irish of America, at least, are doing their full share.

They are also giving a good account of themselves. The fifty men who held a town, alone, against an entire German onslaught, a month ago, were all Irish. It is no time for these acrimonies. All kinds of people are doing their best.

But, if Kipling doesn't love the Irish, God does. As the fellow said: "God loves the Irish, but he gave the Jews all the money."

Now and After.

A GREAT deal is being said about how things will be here in the United States, in the way of business, after the war. And it seems that many plans are being laid to take advantage of conditions that are then likely to exist. But we like best the man who is giving little or no thought to what will happen in a business way after the war, and who is devoting all his thought and energy to present needs. The man who is bending his whole strength and desire just to winning the war. That's the thing to do. Never mind what will happen when the war is over. It is something that will take care of itself.

The Christian Soldier.

THAT there can be, and is, the true type of the Christian soldier, we have many evidences. And we may safely say that the Christian soldier is the highest type of man.

To fight in a just cause, to give life itself for that cause, to spill one's blood and to suffer agonies against wrong and still preserve the heart free from hate—the angels of God can do no more than this.

We have a glowing and glorious instance of what the Christian soldier is in the case of Giosue Borsi, an Italian officer who died a heroic death on the Isonzo. Borsi was one of the famous men of Italy. He was distinguished in literature and greatly beloved by his people. At one time in his life he had strayed away from Christian beliefs, but returned devoutly to them afterward.

Before the battle in which he met his death he went on his knees in prayer to the High God. Among other things included in his petition was this sentiment:

"I pray with all my heart for our enemies and brothers whose dear and precious blood perhaps I shall have to shed. Show me to exercise on the battlefield toward my enemies as toward my friends, some Christian virtue, some act of pity, mercy and love."

Oh, if in the hearts of all men there could be that which was in the heart of Giosue Borsi, that hour before his white soul was hurled into eternity, how linked with heaven would be this sad old earth.

In the San Joaquin.

I watched the sun sink from the west,
I watched the sweet day die;
Above the dim Coast Range's crest
I saw the red clouds lie;
I saw them lying golden deep,
By lingering sunbeams kissed,
Like isles of Fairyland that sleep
In seas of amethyst.

Soft, through the amber twilight, stole
One clear note of the lark,
As fell upon my wondering soul
The desert's sudden dark;
It fell with trembling fear that broods
When night steals o'er the plain
And in the ghostly cottonwoods
The moody owls complain.

Then, through the eerie hours I lay
In baffled sleep's travail,
And heard the outcast thieves in gray,
The gaunt coyotes, wail;
With seaward winds that wandering blew,
I heard the wild geese cry—
I heard their gray wings beating through
The star-dust of the sky.

Spent, through the wakeful gloom I lay
With my poor heart's distress,
My dreams upon the haunted way
Of life's old loneliness.
The dead, from far graves come, I heard,
I saw them rise and pass,
They spoke my name, as sighing, stirred
The whispering pampas grass.

Yet, with the last grim, solemn hour,
Stilled were the voices all;
And then, from poppied fields a-flower,
Rang out the wild bird's call;
The glad dawn, deep in white mists steeped,
Breathed on the day's hushed lyre,
And far the loomed Sierras leaped
In living waves of fire.

Paper.

THERE is complaint of a scarcity of paper since the war began. We do not wonder at it. The wonder in our minds has been all along where all the paper used in the world comes from, even when there are no wars.

Have you ever stopped to think of the inconceivable amount of paper the human race uses?

The largest consumers are, of course, the newspapers. They consume endless miles of it every day. Then come books of all kinds, not the least of which are law books, with legislatures, congresses, parliaments and courts all over the world continuously and ceaselessly grinding out and interpreting laws, to which should be added the briefs of lawyers, which are often anything but brief.

For every turn in the road, and for every act of life, it seems that a paper has got to be made out about it.

You begin with your certificate of birth, then comes your certificate of marriage, winding up with the certificate the undertaker makes out when you die. They need paper for your will, and more paper on which to file its probate.

It would be interesting to know just how many tons of paper are used in this country alone, every day, by scenario writers for the movies, not to speak of the scenarios that the movies do not accept.

It would seem to us, really, that if every little town had its own paper mill, the world's supply would even then fall far short of the demand.

The S. O. S.

AFTER an absence of many years in far and strange corners of the world, an old acquaintance of ours has reappeared to pay us a friendly visit. He has been engaged in the business of organizing fraternal societies, and it seems that he has had a hand at them all from the Kobunds of the Samarand down to the little known yet now growing order of the Knights of the Kiboskums.

It might be thought that the continuous and arduous task of putting so many people through the ropes, the work of intricate and mystical rituals, the goat riding and all that, would have tired this man and caused him to grow stale. But, it seems not to be so. We find him more enthusiastic than ever. In fact, he is now glowing with the greatest and grandest conception of his entire career.

He comes to us with all the plans and specifications, the ritual, constitution and bylaws and all the other necessary details of a new lodge which is to be known as "The Silent Order of Sphinx!" In this order, as in others, you pay an initiation fee and regular dues, but you receive no benefits in return. All the money goes to the poor and needy and whoever is in trouble. You take an oath that you will never let it be known that you have a hand of any kind in the dispensation of these charities.

We shall watch with interest the fate of the Silent Order of Sphinx. Any man that joins it will put himself to the supreme test. It may be that our friend will die of a broken heart at the lack of sympathy he will receive for his project. But, on the other hand, the society may grow to be the biggest and the best society in the world.

Kings.

IF THE world finally determines to get rid of kings, it is going to hit San Diego pretty hard.

Not long ago we drove around the city of San Diego and its environs with a friend and he pointed out to us the homes and the ranchos of no less than four kings—the beeswax king, the toothpick king, the pickle king and the sticky flypaper king.

The Little Peoples.

IT SEEMS almost too good to be true that the little peoples of the earth are at last to sit happy and serene beside their firesides, unthreatened by brute neighbors and safe in the pursuit of the things they hold dear in life.

By the little peoples we mean those nationals who have clung to their own distinctive ideals and their identity through the centuries, like the Poles, the Armenians, the Bohemians, the Irish and certain groups of the Slavs.

They have been very wonderful in very many ways, these little peoples. They have made songs and sweet music; they have cradled their young in secret places as the eagles cradle their young. They have clung to their mountains and they have died knee deep in their valleys in deathless love of the soil that bore them and their fathers and their fathers' fathers before them.

All they have asked is to be let alone, to live their lives in their own ways without interference from strangers and without the desire to interfere with or to harm anyone.

Yet, this is the very thing that has been denied them. They have been set upon and trampled into the dust time and time again. They have been slaughtered and butchered to make a holiday for the barbarian.

And now, after all, are they to have the peace and the security for which they have longed and prayed? Has God enfolded them in the glory of His wings, at last? They have great reason to hope. The world today is swinging through sunlit spaces.

ences, young women who work in sweatshops and slums, in factories, and who suffer the privations of strikes; girls who are stranded in remote towns when an opera company goes to pieces, etc., etc. But this does not alter the unpleasantness of my first contract with the "show me or get out" men, when I came up against the sordid, commercial world, nowhere so contemptible as in villages. I had been brought up in some luxury, and always had associated with people of culture. I had lived in moderately large cities, and did not know that such apathetic and insufferable villages existed as I visited during that week along a given route.

To save unnecessary hotel bills (I was advancing the money,) I determined to "make" at least three or four towns a day, as they were near each other, and trains were frequent. I memorized the time-table, and did not "let the grass grow under my feet," in my eagerness. The villages usually had had some sort of a small lecture course previously, and so there was the advantage of an existing committee of local celebrities. In the first one, I found this to consist of the butcher, the saddler and the grocer. Although not one of these distinguished merchants could have had a customer more than once or twice a day, he would not hear to leaving his store and meeting with his confreres, in order to save my time and conversation. Such systematic co-operation was foreign to him, and so I was compelled to visit separately, each member of the committee, and give him my "patter," after I had successfully bearded him at the entrance to his own den.

My conversational efforts became more fluent as time went on. Memory mingles the smell of leather and tallow, kerosene and fresh meat with the adamantine stubbornness of those commercial men. Each one had an aggressive "show me" air, which cannot be equalled by any corporation magnate in any metropolis. One would have supposed that the committee was wholly hostile to lecture courses, and was having one forced upon it as a child is compelled to take castor oil! Instead of this, there are very few lyceum bureaus in the country that will bother with such small contracts, and it is practically impossible for villages to secure individual talent for themselves; so they should have been grateful.

The narrow people, whose life and experiences were bounded by an isolated village of perhaps 500 inhabitants, had the effrontery to criticise and speak slightingly of various singers and lecturers, and when I—mindful of my self-appointed task of selling them this contract, and unwilling to be defeated by such impossible people—waxed tactful, eloquent and persuasive, my inner self almost perished with humiliation.

But I got some of those contracts signed! By talking fast, and bringing all my mental force to bear upon the shilly-shallying men, each of whom made frantic efforts to shift the burden to his fellow committee members, I managed to get a fountain pen into their grimy fists, and obtain their signatures, each one separately.

In spite of the ghastly sinking of the heart, each time that I struck a new town, and forced my way into the business places of non-welcoming strangers, I finally grew to take an interest in the game. There is a certain joy in conquering obstacles, and mastering stubborn wills, particularly when one has a contempt for the antagonist. I now know that I secured a very fair proportion of contracts during those few days, and after all, I marvel that any community would stand for that aggregation of cheap talent!

Again and again I boarded trains or interurban trolley cars and rode for half an hour at a time, when I would alight and "do" another community. The worst was when night came, and I was forced to put up at a dreary and sometimes dirty hostelry. I never had slept in a small town hotel, and pray that I never shall again be forced to do so. Kerosene lamps, or dull gas, and barren offices; wretched bare little bedrooms, and almost a terror of the surroundings, not to speak of a wholly idle and cheerless evening, were my portion. I read magazines to keep from thinking of the comfortable home which awaited me only a few miles away. I could have reached it, any evening, by expending a few cents and riding less than an hour on a railway train. However, I was on a route, and I intended to stick to it. At one frightful little "hotel," when I arrived in the evening and inquired the rates, the proprietor suspiciously demanded that I pay in advance for the night's lodging, and seemed mollified when I required him to change a $20 bill. Upon my asking for ice water, he took a pitcher and accompanied me up three flights of stairs, thus proving he was also the bellboy! I locked my door and sank on the cot, which the management kindly provided, with a feeling of desolation and repulsion—a kind of horror of life.

When I finally reached home at 11 o'clock the last night—Saturday—and found a cheerful, cosy house, and a loving, welcoming husband, I almost fainted with self pity. Not one of my relatives knows, to this day, of that week's experience, and not one of them could understand, if I explained the matter, what prompted me to go through with it. I had great difficulty in getting any money at all out of the third-class lecture manager, who was delighted to get the contracts, but attempted to do me out of my commissions. I finally secured the small sum, by means of a lawyer, and, of course, gave up any idea of remaining with the bureau as a lecturer. The experience was invaluable to me in showing me how efficient, persistent, magnetic and brave must be those men and women who are unfortunate enough to have to gain their livelihood as any form of agents. What I won, I gained entirely through native grit, and a natural "gift of gab," not through anything symbolized by my two beautiful diplomas.

I have forgotten literally, every word and figure of algebra, solid geometry and trigonometry. I cannot possibly translate a sentence, either of Greek or of Latin. When in Europe, I have been humiliated at not being able to converse in French and German, although I spent five years wrestling with the grammar and reading Moliere, Racine, Goethe, Schiller and Lessing—with a dictionary. Not one month's or year's labor during all those sixteen years has borne fruit in making me competent in household management, or efficient as a wage-earner. I am glad of my knowledge of history, as it affords a fascinating background for the study of life. Yet I went sixteen years without American history or instruction in the science of our own government, or reading our Constitution! A certain amount of what I read in philosophy and ethics probably has given me a broader sympathy and understanding of human motives, and hence, a deeper charitableness than I otherwise might have had. Anything which teaches us breadth and charity toward our fellowmen is of vital importance. What I derived from personal inspiration from a few professors is of far greater value than anything I learned from books.

"In Spite of a College Education," is true in every detail. The second installment will appear in the next issue of the Illustrated Magazine.

MIDWAY ISLAND.

Midway, a tiny scrap of an island in the Pacific, is one of Uncle Sam's most cherished possessions. It is one of the most valuable bits of sand and rock in the world. The little island, a relay station for the Pacific cable, is a link in the chain binding Asia to the western world, the Philippines to the United States. A message sent to Peking or Manila from San Francisco must pass through Midway before it reaches its destination. The island listens to the gossip of two continents.

Once the most desolate and forsaken atoll in the two oceans, Midway today promises to rival Hawaii as the paradise of the Pacific, a paradise created by man. A tiny paradise, to be sure, but the island has never been able to boast of a population of more than forty at one time, and nearly half of them were only visiting. A superintendent with the imposing title of Guardian of the Island, his family, a doctor with a very small practice, an engineer or two and the servants are the sole inhabitants.

The island today is a triumph of engineering skill. It was necessary that the stations of the cable be under the American flag. The second link in the chain could only be Midway, so the nameless, pear-shaped heap of sand in the Pacific was transformed into a blooming bit of land with flowers, vegetables and even diminutive trees. The American flag was raised over the government house, an American colony was transplanted to the new island and Midway stepped into prominence at once.

Midway is just half way around the world from London, almost directly over the 180th meridian. When it is midnight in England, the noon sun is shining on the smallest single bit of American soil in the world.

Vast Fortunes In Mineral Waste

Much of the world's copper now mined is of a very low grade. With the methods of the past it would have stayed in the ground, but it is now gotten out at a profit and the owners of the stock are receiving big dividends. There are five copper mining companies in Arizona, Nevada and Utah which have blocked out almost 600,000,000 tons of ore containing copper which runs only 1.7 per cent. The whole includes more than 10,000,000 tons of metallic copper, and three-fourths of this will be recovered. The copper from that source alone is enough to supply our home needs at the normal rate of consumption for thirty years.

The Price of Zinc has Soared to the High Skies.

SINCE the war began the price of zinc has leaped to the skies. Zinc, united with copper, makes brass, and brass is used by the hundreds of thousands of tons in arms and munitions of war. Along in 1913 zinc was selling from $100 to $130 a ton, and by 1916 the prices had risen to from more than $200 to over $600 a ton. In the former year we produced about 315,000 tons and the output last year was almost double as great. Now not only are we working our mines to the full, but we are getting far more zinc out of the ores. We are working lower grade ore and saving some of the losses of the smelting and concentration plants. We are trying to save the zinc found in combination with lead and copper; and are gathering up all the zinc scrap we can find and using it over again.

Before the war began three-fourths of all the spelter or zinc output of Europe came from Germany, Austria and Belgium, and the Allies had to depend for their zinc almost wholly upon the smelters of the United States. They soon exhausted the supply we had on hand and this caused the opening up of thousands of small zinc smelters in Missouri and Kansas which had been abandoned on account of the low prices of the metal and the high prices of fuel. In Kansas and Oklahoma, gas smelters were put into use, and at the close of 1915 the zinc was coming from more than 150,000 retorts and about 50,000 or more were under construction.

By these means we have been able to supply all the zinc needed, and shall have enough while the war lasts.

We shall save also a large amount of the waste. The zinc dross from the galvanizing of iron is now returned to the zinc smelters and redistilled, and zinc is taken from the galvanized scrap and saved. A great loss occurs in the zinc oxide used for filling in automobile tires, and also from that which goes into paint. We use something like 40,000,000 pounds of zinc for tires every year.

Our experts are trying to save the waste at the brass furnaces, where a great deal of zinc goes out with the smoke, and where something like 2,000,000 pounds a year is lost from the ashes. It is estimated that 7500 pounds of zinc float away on the air every day from the stacks of the brass-casting shops at Waterbury, Ct.

Among the other important metals of our national scrap heaps is tin. We have practically no tin in this country outside of Alaska and certain small deposits in Texas and South Dakota. Our total product is only a few hundred tons per annum, whereas our imports amount to thousands of tons. They come from in and about the Malay Peninsula, and, just now, especially from Bolivia through the Panama Canal. We use tin for tinplate and other purposes where it is necessary to have a thin coat on iron or steel to keep it from rusting. A tin can when new has only about 23 per cent. of tin on it, and when it goes to the scrap heap it has not much more than half that amount. They are now trying to save this tin from the scrap by using certain chemicals and then recovering the metallic tin electrolytically. They are also recovering some tin from the dross or waste of our tinplate factories, and some of the latter are even working over the dump heaps of past years. One company is considering tearing down its buildings erected upon such accumulations to get out the tin from the waste.

to build myself a home up on the hill not far from the station, an' to lay by a little lump for my old years, becus I didn' never dream that I was goin' to be pensioned off in the prime o' life like this.

"Work runs in my blood. My father was a farmer, an' he wasn' none too prosperous, neither. Ev'rybody connected with my fam'ly had to work, to work steady an' to work hard. We never loafed aroun' in bed an' had our coffee brung in to us—not us; 4 o'clock a.m. we was yanked out by the foot, an' we had a day's hustlin' done by breakfast, which was at half pas' six.

"If you kind gentlemen think I labored stiff an' steady for the G., V. & B., lemme admit right here that, while I never failed to be on the job for you, it was soft an' sweet compared with the diggin' an' pitchin' an' plowin' an' milkin' an' other kinds o' labor I did on my ol' man's scrubby farm.

"I never had myself sized up for no wonder. There was so many trains a day, an' so many times a day I picked up my hammer an' went down to the tracks. I never counted the wheels, or the days, the weeks, the months, the years as they went along; but I will say I never missed one, no, not a single wheel.

"An' if for jus' that I'm entitled to get this feed, such a great speech from such a great man, this here silver bowl, an' a lay-off with pay the rest o' my life, well—I'm much obliged, but I can say I didn' never expect it."

And Henry High sat down.

Flashlight photographs were then taken and the newspaper men quizzed the hero.

"And you tapped those millions of wheels with your hammer?" wondered a reporter.

"Hammer?" exclaimed High. "Say—I wore out eight hammers on those wheels!"

"Marvelous," said the reporter, as he made note. "And will you tell me something, please? Many times, when I sat in railroad cars, or when I stood in depots, I saw men doing your work—bending down and striking the wheels with hammers; will you tell me just what it is they are seeking, just what they are hitting those wheels for?"

"Doggoned if I know—I've often wondered myself," said Henry High, as he polished his loving cup with the sleeve of his rented dinner coat.

IN SPITE OF A COLLEGE EDUCATION!

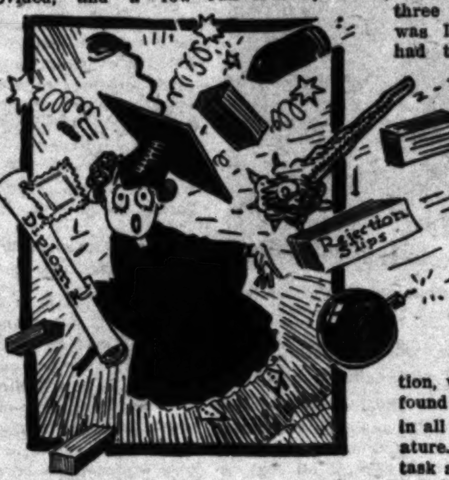
BY ONE WHO MADE GOOD.

THIS is a tale of the struggles of one forced down to bedrock in order to fit herself as a wage-earner; and of how her expensive, higher education was, if not an actual handicap, at least of no possible use.

Like thousands of others, I came out of a university equipped with a pretty diploma and nothing else. I had received a far more thorough education than the vast majority of American girls; yet of practical knowledge of how to grapple with the industrial system and wrest from it the means of even ordinary living, I had no more than a mermaid.

I had been turned out a finished product, a "lady" (oh, obnoxious term!) a fin de siecle one, of course, not skilled in harp and embroidery—but in literature and ethics. For six years, I had been prepared in a very excellent boarding-school, as geese are stuffed, unnaturally, to enable them to make rich pate de foie gras for the epicure; and then, I went to college. It is hard to estimate how many thousands of dollars were poured into my education. Many hundreds went for music, although I was without the least talent; I could not play ragtime in a motion picture house!

So slavishly did I work to complete the necessary college entrance requirements that I would have been a permanent physical and nervous wreck had I not possessed an iron constitution. (A strange way to treat the future mothers of the race!) As it was, my youth was robbed of all joy, spontaneity, normal pleasure. Although a gymnasium was provided, and a few hours' recreation such as walks suggested, the immense amount of study required made all else impossible. I was in a torture-chamber of Greek and mathematics for sixteen years, till at 21, I found myself twice a graduate, and emerged into life, confused, dazed, affrighted at the cruel, hustling world, which said with a million voices, "Bah, we don't care for 'degrees;' you'll have to 'show us!'"



Some of my classmates spurred by poverty, or wisdom beyond their years, had prepared, by long courses in pedagogy, to take practical positions as teachers. Some few stepped into high school positions at $100 a month. But my relatives were horrified at the idea of my settling down into the "spinster drudgery of teaching school." The joke was that I could not have secured a position anywhere, because my education had been too all-around and "liberal." I had not "specialized" in anything. I actually applied at teachers' agencies, but was appalled at the requirements.

There always had been a tradition among my family and friends that a brilliant career awaited me. My parents had been intellectual and literary, and I was a precocious child; and so, naturally, it was up to me to "do something clever." They had spent money and turned me out "educated," and after that, interest flagged. I felt like one tossed into the ocean, and told to swim or not, as he pleased.

I had been very showy at school and college, editing publications and writing prize stories, etc. But the waiting world did not seem to be composed of editors yearning for my manuscripts. At random, I cast hundreds of them upon the waters, but they returned to me after many days, much soiled and accompanied by printed slips. This boomerang habit puzzled me. My pet professor (now famous) had thought highly of my "The Ethics of Plato," yet not an editor in America was sufficiently discriminating to seize this as mental food for the readers of his Sunday supplement!

I became very humble. Unknown to my relatives, who had friends who stood very high socially, I visited every newspaper in Washington, D. C., and offered to be a reporter. No one wanted me. I have since heard that Harvard graduates often work for years on Boston papers, without any salary "for the experience!"

One bad thing was that I did not need money! Public opinion ought to force every girl to earn her living; but so long as it does not, she ought to be poor enough to feel the sting of necessity for a time, and wise enough to make herself efficient. I had an income (intended solely for my education; it ceased a few years later!) but, fortunately, felt an inner good, which I regard as the saving grace of my life. It has prevented me from being a parasite.

At last I stormed the citadel and talked with the big city's superintendent of education. "You cannot teach until you have three years' experience."

"But how get it till you begin?"

"Obtain it in country schools, or the grades. You couldn't even take the high school teachers' examinations till you have taught three years."

"Look here," I said, exasperated. "Do you really think some provincial schoolmarm is better qualified than a highly educated, traveled person, who has had the advantages of distinguished friends, and association with cultured and brilliant minds since childhood?"

"Candidly, I do not," he said. "But technically, you are unfit—I can only put you on the list of 'English substitutes' and you may not get but two or three day's work during a year." Not a brilliant opening after sixteen years' hard labor, and a small fortune spent!

Only a few days later, I was sent for as a substitute, to teach English in the business high school. The teacher had been run over by a car, and was disabled for three months. Never was I so excited. I had to face 160 big boys each day, and drill them in English construction, which somehow, I found I never had had in all my years of literature. I went at the task as feverishly as if I were starving. I studied nights in the Library of Congress. It was deadly dull. I would have preferred telling the pupils about the Faust philosophy and the Italian Renaissance, and Pericles and Aspasia, who found Athens brick and left it marble. But it was a joy to conquer.

When that teacher came back, I had received the munificent sum of about $30 a month; a substitute, as I recall it, gets one-third of the teacher's salary.

I kept it in the bank; it was too precious to spend, and I did not need it. But why does a city compel a substitute from whom the highest educational requirements are exacted, to subsist on starvation wages?

By buckling down to wholly new tasks, I had proved that I could manage to make good, although it would have been years before I could have stepped permanently into the system.

Shortly after this, I married. I had been determined not to "marry because I could do nothing else," as nearly all girls in the past have done, so I waited until I gained some measure of self-respect by teaching in a technical high school and mastering the art of earning money, a little. I would not marry to be supported.

As a bride, I lived in a small city, and as I had wedded a liberal minister, there were a number of routine duties awaiting me. It was summer, and we were on a beautiful hill with sloping lawns, but I at once realized that I had almost nothing to do! Of course, the world still insists that a married woman is actively employed twenty-four hours daily in looking after a small flat or a house, in spite of the actual fact of changed conditions, by which the factories have taken all of her ancient employments away from her.

But every honest and intelligent woman knows that this is not true. True, one can "putter around" forever, but a naturally efficient person can look to the ways of her household in modern apartments, flats or bungalows in from one to two hours, daily.

We had a big cupola where my husband had a study and stayed much of the day. Apart from receiving calls, I was idle. I became desperate.

To what use, all that expensive education, and my lifetime of labor, if I was as primitive as, and much less useful than my grandmother?

My husband was giving some stereopticon lectures in the church Sunday evenings. I decided to do likewise! I sent away for the Dore slides, and prepared two on Dante's Pilgrimage to Inferno, Purgatorio and Paradiso. The town turned out to see the bride and witness the innovation. They swallowed me whole, and for years in that and other cities I lectured in our educational work, having enormous audiences. The lectures usually were free.

The work was somewhat popular and superficial, but I poured myself into it, and I only took such small and uncertain sums as "half the collection," to pay for slides, etc.

Not being a natural-born missionary, it seemed to me absurd that two able-bodied and intellectually active people, who had invested very large sums on their education, should give their combined services for one microscopic salary.

The world from time immemorial had decreed that woman should labor ceaselessly as a "helpmeet," receiving nothing but food and shelter, a clergyman's wife being especially required to give service gratis! But this seemed to me barbarous in an industrial age.

I stretched out tendrils in every direction, attempting to establish myself as an economically independent worker. But social pressure is against the innovation of a married woman working for money, and then, in the average city, there are few openings for high class or "intellectual" employment, outside of teaching and writing.

I was superficially educated, fitted for no immediate task. I was not a stenographer, accountant, lawyer, doctor. I had no talent or courage to be a milliner, modiste or buyer for a costumer or a department store. I was cursed with social position and superficiality, which I called "versatility."

As I look back now on my important strivings to place myself on a professional basis—when I had never been trained for a profession—and my efforts toward system, when there was nothing to systematize, the picture is pathetic.

All about me I saw "educated" women degenerating into just married women, playing bridge, supervising their simple households, dashing in and out of clubs, serving inefficiently on useless committees—in no way utilizing the mass of knowledge with which for some fourteen years they had crammed their heads.

They showed no domestic science skill or cleverness in household economics, for all their education had not taught them how to select the cuts of meat or plan a balanced meal. They brought to the care of their babies not the most rudimentary knowledge of medicine, surgery, or even sanitation.

Apart from a choicer use of English, and a wider range of reading, educated women were not a whit more competent than their sisters in the same social environment. And all the sadder seemed their lapsing back into indolence and unproductiveness.

To avoid falling into the chasm of sloth, I set myself mental tasks to accomplish in fixed periods. After looking to the ways of my household in the early morning hours, I shut myself into my library, and prepared lectures, rewrote manuscripts, and would not permit myself to be disturbed.

When I appeared before local women's clubs, it was as a "professional" lecturer not as a member, reading a "paper!" You who live in small communities, where the inhabitants have a fatal knowledge of the inmost details of each others' lives, will realize how hard it was to establish this standard in my own community.

I insisted on financial compensation even if it were only $10. Often I had to resort to the pitiful makeshift of calling this "for rent of slides," for local managers have a ghoul-like habit of preying upon local talent, and never consider the laborer worthy of his hire, if said laborer happens to be personally known to them!

I became known to women's clubs in other towns, but they had the same small caliber ideas. It was merely local committees extending throughout the State. Still, the fact that I was a paid lecturer, not a club woman who came to them at her own expense, gave me a certain professional value, although I fancy I went down a step socially in the dear ladies' estimation. Often they hesitated, visibly embarrassed, when paying me the money. As for me, I gloried in taking it (!) for was not I climbing laboriously up the ladder of economic independence and professionalism?

I sent forth my book manuscripts, poor passionate offerings, which I had created at white heat, and slavishly typewritten afterwards, but they were returned, "Collect," with suspicious promptness.

I saw other American women become famous novelists—without the conventional education. Either from native genius or great wisdom in studying the technique of composition, they mastered the art, whereas all my classroom drills under supposedly competent professors had trained me not at all in producing what editors and public desire.

In desperation, I came to believe that my education was an actual hampering force, in so far as it bound me to the corpse of a dead past, and conventions and subjects that are millions of miles removed from practical needs and real life.

I determined to cast aside my philosophical themes and antiquated, unwanted manuscripts, and plunge into the hard world of struggling, competitive men and women. I would cease my intellectual snobbery, and get down into the arena, fight the fight according to the modern rules of the games, and "come back with my shield or on it!"

Clearly, this would entail offering my wares in a bigger market. I went to a great city and tried the lecture bureaus. "You must have a national reputation," they told me. "But how get one till you lecture throughout the country?"

"That is up to you! We just pick the winners."

Then, too, it seemed, they booked their talent nearly two years ahead! Heavens, how can any mortal know what he will do so far in the future?

At last I found a small one with a strange system. The manager was willing to take me as one of a group of five (Bellringers and Swiss yodlers and a popular science lecturer and a singer!) if I would go to villages along a geographical route, and secure advance contracts. I was to get a commission on the amount contracted for, and also be paid for every lecture I gave. I always had believed in a geographical system, and cannot yet understand the inefficient methods of the great bureaus who jump their lecturer or troupe from Maine to Texas, back to Massachusetts and out to Indiana, instead of insisting on near dates for contiguous cities. Enormous amounts of money are eaten up in railroad fares, which do not benefit the talent, the manager, or those who pay the money.

So I started out.

It is painful to describe that horrible week. Of course, there are millions of girls who have had more terrible experi-

THINGS FOR EVERY HOUSEKEEPER.

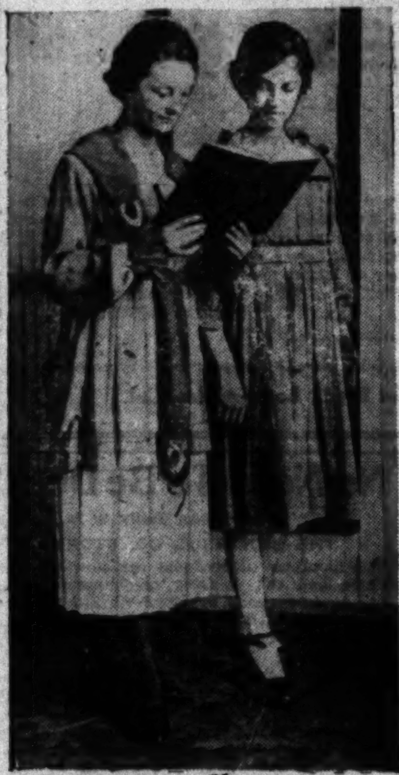
BY RETTA BADGER.

IT IS getting to be time for school dresses and I have been looking about a bit to see what the flappers were going to wear this fall. The smocks are the thing most in demand, as they have been all summer. They take the place of the old middy and have much more style. One can vary the smock by so many little bits of handwork that make it individual, and yarn seems to be most used for this purpose. In the old rose smock in the illustration yarn was used most effectually in a coarse buttonhole stitch. The ends of the collar and belt have a smart design which looks like the eye on the end of a peacock feather and is done in peacock colored yarn. The back of the belt has an elaboration of the same thing.

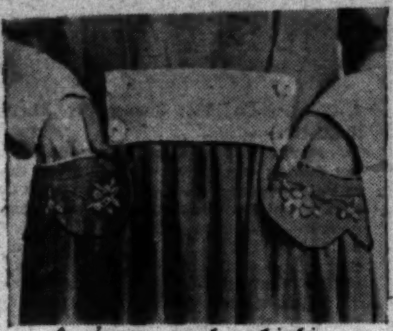
Old-fashioned calico is coming in again, and I saw the most fetching little dress of blue with a small white figure. This quaint little school frock was made quite simply with a plain waist and three little ruffles just below the waistline. A frill of white lawn trimmed the neck and sleeves and a tiny white lawn sash ran through slots and tied in a bow at the back.

Linen in the dull shades of blue, rose and gold with no trimming but yarn of contrasting color is always good. The dress on this page with little yarn scallops around the waist and neck and fastened with crocheted balls on the shoulders is one whose simplicity is the essence of good taste.

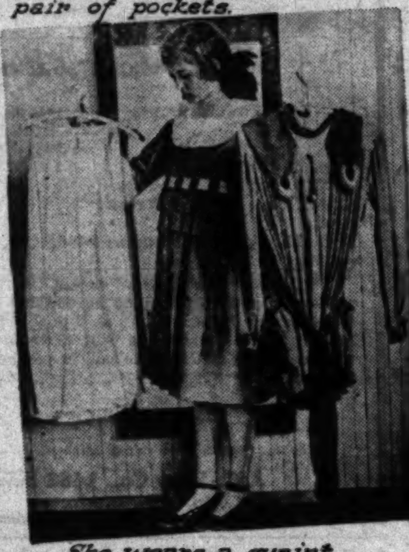
There are so many ways in which pockets can be used as trimming as well as for useful purposes. The detail given here of pockets and belt is one that is especially good. The design in this case is not done in yarn but in mercerized cotton in bright colors. The pockets are of the same material as the dress and the belt is of a lighter shade fastened down with large pearl buttons.



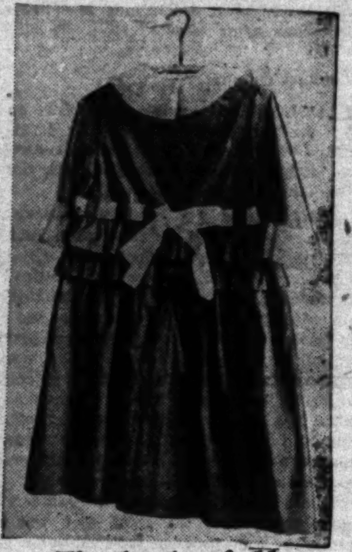
Two good flapper styles.



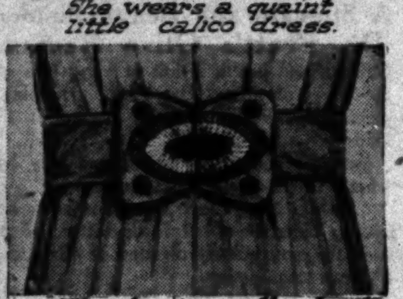
A clever and artistic pair of pockets.



She wears a quaint little calico dress.



The back of the little calico dress.



The design on the back of the smock's belt.

NEW USES FOR RICE.

If your family has grown tired of rice and declares rebelliously that it will eat no more of "that stuff, economy or no economy;" why try these recipes. They are different and tend to disguise the taste of plain boiled rice, and instead make a well seasoned and palatable dish that even the rice hater will enjoy.

First of all be sure you prepare your rice correctly. Cook in plenty of salted boiling water over a brisk fire, thus keeping the grains whole and separate.

RICE BALLS.

Cut pieces of cheesecloth eight or nine inches square, one for each person to be served. Rinse in cold water and spread out smoothly. Take two heaping tablespoons boiled rice and spread into a circle on the cheesecloth. On top put two heaping tablespoons of finely chopped cooked meat well seasoned; any left over meat will do very nicely. Gather up the edges of the cloth so the rice meets, form into a ball and twist cord string around to hold it firmly. After all the rice balls are prepared put in a sauce pan of hot water and boil fifteen minutes. While this is boiling make a rich tomato sauce of strained tomato juice thickened with one tablespoon each of butter and flour. Season well, adding a little chili powder if desired, as it improves the flavor. When the rice balls are finished take off the cheesecloth, place the ball in a saucer and pour the tomato sauce around it. This is a very attractive dish and tastes as good as it looks.

PORK SAUSAGE AND RICE PATTIES.

The next time you buy pork sausage get one-third less the amount you ordinarily do, and add rice to make up the difference. With it add an egg and a little flour, mix and form into little patties and fry as usual. The rice in the patties can never be detected either in looks or taste and it is quite a saving as there is an appreciable difference between the prices of pork and rice per pound.

MEAT AND RICE LOAF.

The next time you make meat loaf add one-third as much rice as you have meat and prepare as usual and no one will be the wiser. This is very nice served with tomato sauce.

A NEW LEFT OVER MEAT DISH.

Butter a mold and put in one layer of cooked rice, then a layer of chopped cooked meat. Sprinkle with salt and pepper, add another layer of rice and alternate with meat on top; pressing down firmly. Bake thirty minues; take out of pan and serve on platter with tomato sauce and sliced green peppers.

FRIED RICE AND APPLES.

This is a very good luncheon dish or Sunday night supper dish. It is quickly and easily prepared. Peel, quarter, core and slice the apples, use one cup each of apples and boiled rice. Add one egg, a heaping tablespoon flour, one half cup sugar, and one-half teaspoon cinnamon. Fry in small pancakes or one large omelet; serve either with butter, sugar or syrup as preferred.

RICE CUSTARD.

Above all try this dessert. It is economical, filling and delicious. Mix together one-half cup boiled rice, one-half cup sugar and one tablespoon flour; add three egg yolks, two cups milk and one teaspoon vanilla; mix well and add the beaten whites of the eggs. Put in a casserole or baking dish which has been rinsed in cold water. Sprinkle the top with cinnamon and nutmeg; bake forty-five minutes. Serve either warm or cold. This dessert requires no sauce, and is especially good on account of it being nutritious and easily digested.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH WARNING.

Cook all canned foods before serving, and have no anxiety over botulism says the State Board of Health. I would suggest also that all foods that are difficult to wash such as string beans, asparagus, corn, and such fruits as apricots and pears lacking acids should receive extra care in cleansing before the process of canning. It is not the interior of the fruits and vegetables that contains this extremely poisonous bacillus botulinus, but the outside which, being greatly divided and subdivided such as corn and asparagus or adhesive or covered with fuzz like beans or apricots, and peaches, tenaciously hold anything coming in contact with it.

String beans should receive particular attention, and peaches and apricots should be scalded to remove the skins, and rinsed afterward before packing them in the cans. With this simple precaution and full time for processing there should be not the slightest danger.

However, it is better to be on the safe side and cook all canned foods before serving them. Always aerate them (taking them out of the can at once) for an hour or so to remove the odor of the can, before cooking. The lack of oxygen which encourages the growth of the poisonous baccillus, also leaves a somewhat dead flavor to the contents of the can. Exposure to the air removes this flavor,

Follow directions fully when canning and remember that botulism is no dream, but something very real to guard against.

HELPS TO A BETTER LIFE.

The history of a State is postulated in the character of the people who compose it.

In his scale of relative values lies the key to the character of any man.

The loveliness of a Christ-like life is the monopoly of no creed.

Religion begins with a sense of personal responsibility toward God. The consummation of religion is an at-one-ment of our wills with our conception of His will.

Love is democratic. Love obliterates distinctions. Love is the perception of the worth of man beneath all the accidents of his condition.

The opportunity to do right implies the obligation.

Will is the foundation of character.

It is the business of education to unfold to the student the possible wealth of life. The value of an education is not intrinsic but instrumental. It is worth the use to which you put it. A true education implies not merely the possession of so much knowledge, but the possession of the ability to use knowledge. It implies not merely an acquaintance with a range of good books, but the capacity to appreciate good books; not only the power through the use of knowledge to lead men, but the sense of responsibility that will exercise wise leadership. It is the business of education to enrich and ennoble life.

The multitude of false doctrines discloses an insatiable thirst of man after the true God.

No man is saved by proxy, but by the exercise of his own inherent powers.

We owe our wisdom to three great teachers—work, friendship and adversity.

Two characteristics denote the great mind—range and capacity for detail. United to talent and character they form the elements of genius.

A man's education consists of the sum total of his experience in life and not merely of the few years he is able to devote to formal academic work.

Unearned leisure stultifies the soul.

Right effort is its own reward.

STUFFED PRUNES AND DATES.

Delicious confections to use instead of candy. Soak the prunes overnight, dry and stuff with chopped nuts, raisins, or apricots. Wash the dates, dry them, and stuff the same as prunes. These and the Parisian Sweets are good to eat and good for you.

It is not enough to take off your hat to the flag—take off your coat and roll up your sleeves.

VAST FORTUNES IN MINERAL WASTE.

BY FRANK G. CARPENTER.

WASHINGTON (D. C.)—This is a story of the scrap heap. It was once the despised part of the earth. It has become its chief gold mine, and the whole world is working it. Would you see the prospectors looking out for fat pockets? You have only to open your eyes to the things all about you, or read between the lines of the newspapers. The war reports are full of stories of salvage. Back of the army in the field is another army, going back and forth and saving the scraps. The broken guns and automobiles go to the rear, the copper and other valuable metals are loaded on trains and taken back for future use. Even the old hats, shoes and clothes are mended and used over again. The biggest repair shops of the world have been erected not far from the battlefields, and a large part of the work in modern warfare is saving the waste.

The same economy goes on at home among those that are supplying the army and navy. The cry is for saving and government efficiency. The Council of National Defense has special committees which do nothing but study such matters. They take cuffs from the legs of your trousers and the pleats from your dresses. They piece out your shoes with fabricated uppers to save leather, and curtail your coats to save wool. They fix meatless, wheatless and almost eatless days to save food, and even turn on the clocks to give us more daylight. They warn us against waste of every description, and ask us to hold even our pennies for Thrift Stamps and Liberty Loans. This work will continue while the war lasts, and it will be demanded by the international struggle for trade which is to come when the war ends. The savings already have been far beyond expectation, and Uncle Sam is like to pile up great reserve funds out of the scrap.

Manufacturers are Now Closely Watching the Big Scrap Heaps.

THE scrap heap I write of today is that of our minerals. The subject has been investigated by the National Geological Survey and the Bureau of Mines, and much of the material in this letter comes from that source. The mineral experts tell me that the scraps are receiving more and more attention each day, and that a large part of the work of the miners and manufacturers is now devoted to watching the waste. Iron scrap by the thousands of tons is being resmelted in the open hearth furnaces. Stereotype metal, lead scrap and solder are resmelted and used, tin scrap and tin dross are recovered and zinc from zinc clippings is saved. Not long ago I went through the big gun shop here at Washington, where great quantities of copper, brass and bronze are employed in making the monster cannon and gun mounts used in our men-of-war. Every ounce of scrap is saved and no metal whatever goes to waste. The copper from copper paint sludge and from the ashes of brass and copper furnaces is separated from the metal in which it is mixed and it comes once more on the market.

Gold, silver and platinum are being collected from jewelers' sweepings and every dentist saves the gold in the teeth he pulls out. The gold is saved from the assay offices and it is not allowed to run away as it did in the past. This is so of many of the mining camps and the banks which buy gold. I heard of a case in the Klondike where a bank burned to the ground, and an ex-cashier got the privilege of working over the ground where the assay office was. The result was a small fortune in gold dust. Just now the scrap hunters are paying special attention to platinum. They have been going from dentist to dentist and buying up what they could. The government is anxious to get all in the market.

Spending Fortunes to Save Few Cents Production Cost.

CORPORATIONS capitalized at tens of millions are spending fortunes to save a few cents in the cost of a product, and the old metals and old materials are being used over and over again. At one of the biggest oil refineries of the country I found them cutting the holes out of steel plate that had been used in boilers and trimming them up for service again. Not far away was a lumber yard where they were putting up pulp mills to make paper out of the sawdust, and in the biggest sugar refinery of the world, near New Orleans, I saw them saving the vapor that rises from the boiling molasses and condensing it so that no sugar is lost in the steam.

At one of the biggest plants of the United States Steel Company they were saving the iron dust motes that rise to the top of the stacks of the blast furnaces. This iron dust is so fine that it will float away on the air, and they have to drop it into running water, where it forms into pebbles or nodules that could be smelted again.

I have already written of the enormous savings of the by-product of coke ovens, from which we are now getting many of our munitions of war, our most valuable fertilizers and the foundations of a big dye and drug industry which will make us independent of Germany when the war closes. It used to be that the slag that came from the smelting of iron all went to waste. It cost a great deal to carry it away from the furnaces, and it formed unsightly mountains of refuse on the landscape. Today at the best plants the slag is all saved. At the great steel mills of Alabama they crush it to powder with huge balls of steel which are raised by a magnet, and from the powder make some of the most valuable fertilizer. In the Illinois steel plant of South Chicago they turn the slag into a cement, which is used for the finest concrete work and which is fit for the concrete ships now being constructed as a part of our war bridge across the Atlantic. Millions of barrels of cement are now made from slag in one year.

Mining five hundred feet under the sea. Sixty million dollars worth of gold has been taken out of these mines.

In addition to the iron saved at the mills, more than ever before is now being saved at the mines. The richest iron mines upon earth are those about Lake Superior. They are supplying the most of the steel for the war, and for years they have been the chief foundation of American industry. They produce millions of tons of ore every month, and the deposits seem to be almost inexhaustible. Nevertheless they are being most carefully mined. Every little pocket and nugget of ore is taken out of the beds, and the ore which is of a grade too low to ship is piled up outside the mines in order that it may be saved for future. It used to be that every great gold mine had its dump or waste heap. That day has gone by, and the dumps are being worked over for the minerals left in them. This is so not only of gold, silver and copper, but also of iron and coal. The losses in coal mining are, beyond conception, enormous, and the same is true of the coal after it gets to the homes and factories. I have written of the billions of dollars that annually go up in coal smoke; of how we are saving fortunes by the use of by-product coke ovens, and have suggested municipal heating plants by which our domestic coal bills could be cut down 50 per cent. If all the coal now coked in the old baking ovens were coked in by-product ovens, the carbon saved would equal over 1,000,000 horse power.

The loss of the coal in the mines is estimated by the experts of the Geological Survey as being one-third or one-half as much as the amount taken out. Charles L. Parsons, one of the experts of the Bureau of Mines, figures that one-third of the bituminous coal is lost in the mines, and that fully one-half of the anthracite is not taken out. Another expert figures that fully 2,000,000,000 tons of anthracite and 3,000,000,000 of bituminous coal have been left in the ground, and that a large part of this comes from the fact that the mining has been carelessly done. That amount of coal, at our present consumption, would last for eight years or more; and if it could be put in the market at the present prices its actual value would be more than the amount we have already spent on the war. Much of this loss comes from pillars which have been left to support the roofs of the mines and much from coal left in thin beds because other mines or parts of the mines could be more profitably worked.

At the present time something like 80,000,000 tons of anthracite is being left behind in the mines every year, and that in such a way that it cannot be recovered. The annual loss of bituminous coal is probably greater, the total loss of all coal deposits being equal to something like $1,000,000 for every working day in the year. Its value is enough to build a structure as large and fine as our Library of Congress every week, and to reconstruct the Panama Canal in less than a year and a half. The worst of it is that this is a dead loss. A bad wheat crop can be replaced the year following, but it takes thousands of years to grow one crop of coal, and the geological seeds of the crop cannot be planted by man.

Nevertheless, we are saving more and more every year from the scrap heap of coal. We are getting a greater fuel value out of that we burn in the furnaces, and are saving vastly by using the coal dust and recovering the waste that formerly went out with the smoke. There are now a half dozen coal companies which make equipment for burning pulverized coal in suspension and in 1915 there was burned in the United States about 13,000,000 tons of such coal. Much of this was used in the Portland cement industry, where the powdered fuel is employed in burning the cement in rotary kilns; and a large part in the reduction works of the copper mines of the West. Powdered coal is now used in open hearth puddling furnaces. By means of the new equipment the cheap lignite coal, when pulverized, can be efficiently burned and our vast low grade deposits thus can be brought to the use of the nation.

Even Oil Wells Have Their Important Heaps of Scrap.

WE ARE saving tens of millions of dollars a year from the scrap heaps of the oil wells. The total value of the oil and gas produced in 1914 was more than $300,000,000, and the waste amounted to about one-sixth of that sum. We are doing far better now. We are watching the leaks, plugging the gas wells with mud so that we are able to hold back the gas and still get out the oil; and we are using the cracking processes by which we get 200 per cent. more gasoline out of crude oil than ever before. The Bureau of Mines estimates that Oklahoma has saved more than $15,000,00 worth of natural gas in one year.

Other great changes are taking place in the oil industry. Kerosene was once the chief product, and immense quantities of the lighter and heavier parts of the oil were thrown away. Now, with the advent of the automobile, the electric light and the proper understanding of lubrication, almost all of the crude oil is used and nothing is wasted. From the oil we get gas, gasoline, naphtha, benzine and kerosene. A large part of it goes into lubricating products, the wastes go into road materials, roofing and all things needing asphalt or pitch. Kerosene has become a secondary product and gasoline leads. Many thousands of gallons of gasoline are daily made from gas wells.

It used to be that gold ore had to yield $10 and upward a ton to pay for mining, transportation and smelting. Today a large part of the gold of the world comes from ore that was once thrown away. During my recent trip to Alaska I visited the Treadwell mines, where about $60,000,000 worth of gold has been taken out of rocks that averaged only $2.42 a ton. Near by are mines where they were mining ore that averaged less than $1.50 a ton, and over the mountains in the Klondike Valley I found them working over the scrap and picking out of the boulders gold that averaged only 28 cents per ton. By means of $500,000 dredges they were upturning the earth and rock to a depth of forty or fifty feet, and it was costing less than 10 cents a ton to get the gold out. At the same time they are reworking the creeks which produced the great fortunes of Dawson, and are saving as much gold as was mined during the great stampede of that country.

Copper Wire is Now Gathered in Thousands Ton Lots.

WE ARE now recovering immense values in the shape of copper and zinc. Since the rise in the price of these metals the world has been saving the scraps. Copper wire is now gathered by the thousands of tons from old electric systems and plants, and the insulation burned off. Then the wire is remelted and cast again into wire or ingots or bars. Brass and bronze, such as are found in the bases of electric lamps, brass and copper trimmings and shavings, cartridge shells and old pipes, command a ready sale in the junk market, and we get copper also from the molding sand of brass foundries, from the ashes of brass furnaces and from flue dust. Most of the copper waste is briquetted and then treated in the copper blast furnaces, yielding an alloy of about 86 per cent. copper. This is refined, but there are other metals lost in the fumes. There is a single smelter near New York that recovers from junk 10,000,000 pounds of copper a year.

A vast deal of copper which formerly floated away in the waters from the smelter and concentrating plants is now being saved. Now the water is carried over troughs half filled with scrap iron, and the copper goes out of the water and sticks to the iron. Every two weeks or so the scrap is taken out of the troughs and the copper brushed or scraped off into barrels, after which the iron goes back to gather copper again. Millions of pounds of copper are saved in that way every year. It is estimated that $50,000,000 worth of copper went out with the tailings from certain low grade copper mines of the Rockies in 1914. They are now putting up leaching plants to save this. The Utah Copper Company has leaching grounds covering 6000 acres; and there is one copper mine in Michigan which for fifty years has been pouring its tailings into Lake Linden. During that time it is estimated that more than 40,000,000 tons of tailings have gone into the lake, and that these tailings contain something like 640,000,000 pounds of copper, which at present prices would be worth something like $200,000,000. They are trying to recover these values; leaching plants have been constructed and the lake sands are being worked over. At the present speed it will take them forty years to handle the copper sand now in the lake.

"civilized" people sickness abounds and health is the exception, when it should be the rule.

One of the strictest rules laid down by me to consultants who get personal health advice is that they should never fail to eat with each meal a little raw green stuff that contains elements particularly helpful in the ailment from which they suffer. By following such advice—that is to say, if they have the patience and determination to persevere—any one may with absolute certainty and safety cure themselves of any chronic ailment—and stay cured.

It is absurd to suppose that an abnormal condition that has been accumulating perhaps for twenty years or more through errors in living can be cured in as many days. Those who expect miracles of this kind will have to continue to relieve their symptoms with drugstore dope, and "shoot the chute" to the bone yard. Nature's medicinal food is not for them.

Constructive Surgery.

"MIRACLES of surgery" are reported from the army front. These reports are doubtless true.

This is constructive surgery. As I have said, it is altogether admirable. Destructive surgery, for the elimination of necessary organs of the body, is equally condemnable.

What a pity that surgeons will not confine their skill to legitimate channels and so help humanity, instead of mutilating millions.

Scarcely a day passes in which I do not receive a pitiful tale from some victim who has become a chronic invalid through the surgeon's knife.

The idea that you may cure a disease by cutting out a diseased organ is worthy of the Dark Ages.

And it is all so unnecessary.

Clinics.

A MEDICAL friend of mine was boasting of the good done by the medical fraternity at free clinics.

Said another friend to him: "Doctor, if you could not get people to come to these clinics for nothing, wouldn't you be willing to pay them to do so?"

And the doctor did not answer.

Medicial clinics are for practice on part of physicians and for instruction to students. New methods, suggested from time to time by "authorities," in medical journals, are tried out at these clinics. If they fail, so much the worse for the patient. Try something else.

Meantime it is necessary to keep up the supply of "material," for purposes of experimentation.

Name and Address, Please!

ONCE more it seems necessary to repeat that primary rule of all well regulated editorial offices, namely, that anonymous communications receive no attention.

When I open a letter I look first for the name and address. If they are not there, the letter goes into the waste basket, unread.

Trying to Get Thin.

ANNA HELD, stage favorite, died as a result of trying to get thin. In this case she tried to live on tea and toast. Toast, made of white bread, and tea is a starvation diet. On toast made of the whole wheat a person might live for a long time.

All artificial methods of getting thin or stout are harmful and the results are never permanent.

Drugs taken for this purpose while you "eat what you please" are a dangerous delusion and a snare.

So are frequently recommended methods of diet.

Not long ago a little book entitled "Eat and Grow Thin" was sold in large numbers, and its suggestion was followed by a great many society women, all of whom got sick, if they kept up long enough, and some of them died. The book simply recommended the plan of leaving out starches and sweets, and living almost entirely an animal food. This of course, does not take long to poison the blood, produce ailments that are much worse than obesity.

The only safe and sound way to put off surplus weight is by elimination and alimentation—by exercising, breathing, air baths and rational diet. This involves self-denial and will power, qualities that are not at all common. Therefore, it is not popular.

But it is the only way.

And strange as it may appear to some, the same method that will cause you to lose surplus flesh will make you gain flesh that is lacking.

In other words, a rational diet and mode of living produces a natural condition of the body.

Back to the Land.

IT WAS recently announced in the Senate that a plan would soon be presented to Congress for settling returned soldiers on the waste lands of the nation. The State of California has already made a move in this direction.

This will be a good thing, not only for the soldiers, but also for society. Congestion of population in cities is one of the greatest menaces that modern society has to face.

Compulsory Operations.

A YOUNG correspondent writes: "At the age of 13, the City School Health Department, after examination, ordered me to have my tonsils and adenoids removed."

No department, commission or person has the power to order the mutilation of the body of any person in the United States. Not yet.

An increasing number of thinking physicians are warning against the wholesale cutting out of the tonsils, necessary organs of the body, removal of which, when not fatal—as it sometimes is—always has injurious after effects.

Feeding Infants

FOLLOWING sensible remarks on the feeding of infants are by Dr. L. M. Powers, Los Angeles City Health Commissioner, in his annual report filed with the City Council:

"Mothers are too ready to believe their milk disagrees with the baby, and, not knowing that the properties of their milk can be bettered by proper dieting and hygienic living, allow their babies to be fed on artificial foods. Physicians are too prone to advise mothers to depend upon artificial or substitute foods for the babies, and are not careful to prepare mothers to care for their babies, to see that mothers maintain good health and hygienic living, remembering the child's health depends upon the mother's condition. What the mother does and eats directly affects the child. All mothers do not produce the same wholesome milk from the same diet, but most mothers will produce unwholesome milk from certain kinds of foods. We have known for ages that certain drugs and foods produce flavors and active properties in the mother's milk, and that the baby can be effectually medicated through the mother.

"When necessity requires the baby to be fed the milk of the lower animals the physician should be careful to select milk produced under sanitary conditions from heathy animals properly fed, to guard against injurious properties secreted in the milk from feeding various plants which impart to the milk their active qualities. Also foods in different stages of preparation or conditions produce physical disturbances of the animal's digestive systems and change the quality of the milk.

"It is the duty of the doctor, before advising any mother to cease nursing her baby, to see that all conditions of the mother affecting the baby have been corrected. We have advanced in artificial feeding of babies far enough to make a survey of the past and select the best methods and means."

To these sensible remarks of Dr. Powers I add that you should not feed infants exclusively of milk that has been sterilized or Pasteurized, because in milk that has been thus treated the albumin is coagulated, making it difficult of digestion. Secondly—and more important—the organic salts are to a great extent deorganized, while the so-called "vitamines" or digestive ferments are destroyed. In consequence thereof an infant so fed will inevitably in course of time develop constipation and rickets and ultimately consumption.

The heating in Pasteurization does not kill the "bugs" in the milk. It is simply a lazy way of covering up dirty milk. Get raw milk, as pure as you can, or, better still, get goats' milk. Every mother who is unable to feed her infant should make an effort to keep a goat.

It is a good thing to give or lend money to your country, but don't neglect your health, for that also is a valuable asset. A sick man is of little use, either in peace or war.

LAFAYETTE—APOSTLE OF LIBERTY.

BY HENRY S. SCRIBNER, A.M.

Professor in the University of Pittsburgh.

ON THE sixth of September, 1757, there was born at the chateau of Chavaniac, in the province of Auvergne, France, a boy, the last of an old and illustrious line, who during the fifty-eight years of his public life was to play a most important role in the approaching struggle for the establishment of human liberty and the rights of man. The shot fired at Concord Bridge has never ceased to resound in the ears of men. It is for those same principles that France has now for four years so magnificently fought and suffered. The soul of Lafayette has become the soul of a nation.

The liberties of France began on the day when the enthusiastic young officer of 19 gave up wealth, position and a happy family life, braved the opposition of his family and the threats of the government, crossed the sea, and in the darkest hour of our struggle for independence offered his services to Washington. The soul of Lafayette animates our own young soldiers and sailors as they too cross the sea to fight for the rescue and restoration of oppressed peoples over the whole earth.

At the close of the year 1776, in the city of Metz, at a dinner given in honor of the Duke of Gloucester, the brother of George III, Lafayette was present and heard from the Duke the story of the revolt of the Americans from the mother-country and of their doubtful struggle against oppression to uphold their just rights. Then and there he determined to break away from the irksome life of the court, go to America and fight in the war for freedom.

Evading the officers sent to arrest him, he escaped in disguise, and in company with DeKalb and a number of French officers, embarked from a Spanish port on a vessel which he had purchased, and after a stormy voyage, landed on the hospitable shores of South Carolina. A journey of 900 miles on horseback, occupying a month, brought the young crusader to the city of Philadelphia where he presented his request to the American Congress there assembled. At first he met with a cool reception. In consideration, however, of the importance of his rank and family connections, and because of his modest offer to serve as a volunteer at his own charges, he was looked upon with more favor, and by a resolution of Congress he was granted the complimentary rank of major-general in the army. Washington received him with the greatest kindness, gave him a place on his staff, and from that time forth treated him as a son. The friendship then begun was treasured by the young Frenchman as the most precious memory of his public life.

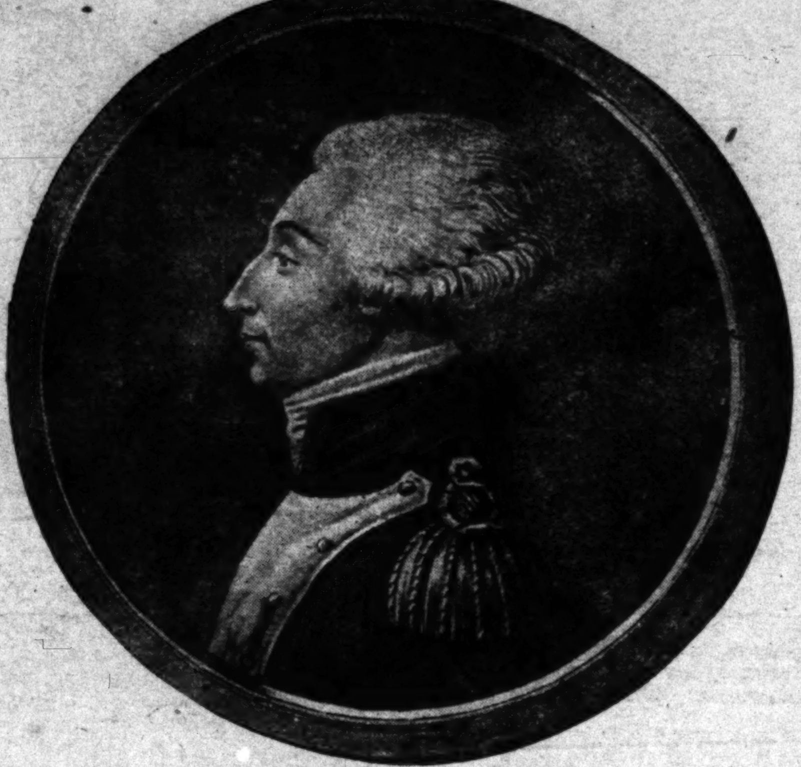
Friend of Washington and Comrade of His Fellow Soldiers.

LAFAYETTE soon had an opportunity to show his mettle. The English general, Lord Howe, was approaching Philadelphia with a superior force. Washington marched out to meet him, and in the skirmish at Brandywine Lafayette was wounded while urging his men to stand firm. His coolness and judgment also in the affair at Gloucester commended him highly to Washington, and proved him fit to hold in reality the position which had been granted him out of compliment. His unselfish and disinterested motives and his cheerfulness in sharing the privations of the soldiers endeared him to all. Amid the plots and disloyal cabals which then beset Washington the loyal and devoted conduct of his young aide-de-camp was of the utmost help and comfort.

In May, 1778, Lafayette was on duty with the army at Valley Forge, when the joyful news arrived that France had recognized the independence of the United States and had concluded a treaty of alliance. This event, though the culmination of the growing hostility of France to England, was doubtless hastened by the diplomatic skill of our envoy, Benjamin Franklin, and by the popular interest aroused by the chivalrous devotion of Lafayette in the cause of the struggling colonists. It was the turning point of the Revolution, and made possible the founding of the great republic of the new world.

For some years doctrines of liberty, equality and the rights of man had been the absorbing topics of discussion in France. Unrest pervaded all classes. The masses were awakening. The Declaration of Independence was hailed as the noblest embodiment of liberal ideals which the world had ever seen. In the most absolute and despotic monarchy in Europe the most extreme theoretical views concerning popular sovereignty were advanced. Franklin became the idol of the hour, and his shrewd republican features were to be seen painted on snuff-boxes, medallions and dinner plates of people of fashion. It is stated that in an entertainment given in his honor, the handsomest woman present crowned his head with a wreath and imprinted a kiss on each cheek.

But the struggling patriots in America were in need of more material aid, and it was largely due to the zealous efforts of Lafayette, during a short leave at home, that the French expedition under Rochambeau was sent to their assistance. Without the union of these fine troops with the army of Washington, without the timely arrival of Admiral De Grasse in Chesapeake Bay, the Yorktown campaign of 1781 could not have taken place, resulting as it did in the surrender of Cornwallis and the victorious conclusion of the war. Moreover, Lafayette's part in the whole Virginia campaign, in checking Cornwallis's efforts to escape, in preventing the premature withdrawal of the French admiral, and in the actual final attack on the enemy won him the highest commendation of Washington.



Marquis de Lafayette.

Lafayette Hailed as a Hero on His Return to France.

ON HIS return to France Lafayette was hailed as a hero, received with popular rejoicing and met with the royal favor and forgiveness. On finding that he could be of most assistance to the American cause through his influence at court he was unwearied in aiding in every possible way the efforts of Franklin and Jefferson in obtaining loans and in improving the trade relations of the United States.

Happily for the world the ill feeling between us and the mother country has long since passed away. For over 100 years the friendship and unity of the two great branches of the English speaking race have been the assurance of the continuance of both nations, and the present war is but knitting more firmly these bonds of brotherhood and union.

It is not because of his great qualities as a soldier and a statesman that Lafayette won the love and admiraion of América; but rather because of his enthusiastic and lifelong devotion to the cause of liberty, and for his generous sacrifices for us in the dark hour of our nation's history. It is because the people of France, actuated by this same spirit, have stood like a stone wall, guardians of freedom while we were arming, that the soul of America is so joyfully responding in this great attack on the liberties of all nations.

Before the opening of the real drama of the French Revolution, while on a tour through Germany, Lafayette was entertained for some days at Potsdam by Frederick the Great, then an old man. The conversation was mainly about America and the crafty king predicted that the American republic would not long endure. Liberal ideals were at that date also at a discount in Prussia. The book of king-craft which Frederick compiled and left as a guide for his heir, is full of perfidious precepts and maxims on the conduct of foreign affairs for the advancement of Prussia at the expense of neighboring states. The plan of the Potsdam Conference of 1914, outlining the world conquest and the vassalage of the United States to Germany, is the fruit of this old policy. The political ethics of his robber ancestor have for many years been practiced by the present ruler of the Hohenzollerns, whose cold-blooded policy of pillage, and destruction of neighboring states, under the hypocritical plea of bestowing upon them the blessings of a higher civilization through Kultur, is the most odious type of tyranny and barbarism known in history.

Little can be said of Lafayette's part in the French Revolution. Though gifted neither with the penetration, insight and eloquence of Mirabeau, nor with the knowledge and political wisdom of Turgot, prone to believe in the possibility of healing the deep-seated ills of society by means of constitutions and declarations of rights, Lafayette from first to last consistently advocated a limited constitutional monarchy for France.

He made mistakes, but time after time he restrained the fierce fury of the Paris mob and shielded victims of its wrath. At the risk of death by the guillotine he opposed the mad rule of the Jacobin clubs. It was while in command of an army on the frontier to oppose the threatening invasion of France by the foreign coalition to overthrow the revolution, that he heard of the September massacres in Paris. Leaving his troops in proper hands, he returned to Paris, to the support of the constitution and the King, refused to take the oath to the government, ruled as it was by the bloody Jacobin Club, was dismissed from his post and voluntarily retired to Belgium, then a neutral country.

This Apostle of Liberty Was an Austrian Prisoner.

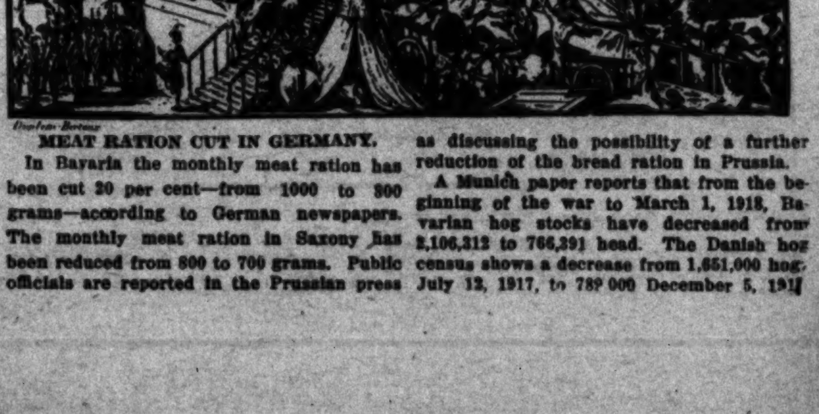
GREAT was the joy of the Austrian authorities at securing the person of this incarnation of revolutionary principles. He was refused a passport and, as he rejected with scorn the offer of liberty at the price of recanting his liberal opinions and revealing the military plans of the French government, he was taken to Magdeburg and confined in a narrow, loathsome cell, with insufficient air, light and food. Later for greater security he was immured in the fortress of Olmutz in Austria. For nearly five years he experienced the terrible rigors which Austria has ever meted out to apostles of liberty—as the sons of Italy can best testify.

His sufferings, attempts at escape, the arrival of his wife and daughters at his prison, and his final deliverance by Bonaparte, on the defeat of the Austrian armies in 1797 make a thrilling tale. Though grateful to Bonaparte, and, as a Frenchman, proud of his wonderful military victories, Lafayette, ever true to his republican principles and to his love of liberty (this was the soul of the man,) read aright the arbitrary character of Napoleon and could not acquiesce in the despotism under which France was falling. The temptation of offers and position and even of the bestowal of the office of the Legion of Honor did not move him. Though his attitude prevented the advancement of his son in the army, he felt that he could not sacrifice his principles. He returned to Lagrange and by years of patient work made the property productive. Surrounded by his children, cheered by the correspondence of Washington, Jefferson, Fox and other early friends, consulted by the few who still hoped for the liberty of France, though ignored by the government, he passed some peaceful years.

His Last Visit to America.

FORTY years had passed since Lafayette's last visit to America, and in 1824 he was invited by President Monroe to visit the United States. During the year of his journey through this country he was received with wonderful demonstrations of affection and welcome. He seemed like a being out of the past bringing to a younger generation the most loved and patriotic associations of the republic. The single mishap of his long journey, when he refused to leave the steamer, which had struck a snag on the Ohio River and was sinking, until he had recovered the snuff box given him by Washington, will be remembered. His visit to the tomb of Washington at Mt Vernon was for him a duty of love and personal affection in which all true Americans have a share.

Gen. Lafayette lies buried beside his devoted wife in the little cemetery of Picpus in Paris. This spot also will be visited as a shrine of patriotism by thousands of young Americans in khaki, who have come from every portion of our great land to fight and, if need be, to die for the cause of liberty which was so dear to the soul of Lafayette.



MEAT RATION CUT IN GERMANY.

In Bavaria the monthly meat ration has been cut 20 per cent—from 1000 to 800 grams—according to German newspapers. The monthly meat ration in Saxony has been reduced from 800 to 700 grams. Public officials are reported in the Prussian press as discussing the possibility of a further reduction of the bread ration in Prussia.

A Munich paper reports that from the beginning of the war to March 1, 1918, Bavarian hog stocks have decreased from 2,106,312 to 766,391 head. The Danish hog census shows a decrease from 1,651,000 hogs July 12, 1917, to 789 000 December 5, 1917

CARE OF THE BODY.

CONDUCTED BY
HARRY ELLINGTON BROOK, N. D

Medicinal Foods.

A DISPATCH from Seattle, dated the tenth of May, last year, told about the opening of navigation in Nome, Alaska, when the first steamer arrived there after the long winter. In past years residents of Nome have stormed the first ship in and have raided it of every vestige of green vegetables or fresh fruits. Last year the steamer took 500 pounds of fruit and vegetables to be distributed to the crowd that meets the boat, to prevent the looting of freight.

This shows the instinctive craving for those necessary and highly important foods, the green leaves and stalks and roots, and fresh fruits, that abound in the organic salts, a continued deprivation of which results in scurvy and other diseases. The value of these organic salts in food has been until recently altogether ignored by writers on diet, and far too little attention is still paid to this important subject, to which the editor of the Care of the Body is never weary of referring, alhough he knows that it bores some of his good friends who are kind enough to read these pages every week. However, they must either skip the articles or stay bored, for medicinal foods are in some respects the most important subject in connection with the care of the body.

Notice how eagerly the herbivorous animals rush for green food when for some time they have been fed a dry diet. It is also a well known fact that in order to make chickens lay you must feed them an abundance of raw green foods, abounding in the organic salts.

Following is an extract from an article in Physical Culture, by Bernard Somers:

"It is told of the late Count Tolstoi that on one occasion he was the host of M. de Vetillion, a wealthy philanthropist who has devoted many years and much money to bettering the condition of the laboring classes of France, his native land. The meeting of the two men took place at the Russian estate of the Count, and during its progress, the latter laid stress on the fact that the workingman, if he has a little home with a small patch of garden, may not only add materially to his income, but will be much happier and healthier. 'In fact,' added Tolstoi, 'he can dispense with the doctor altogether.'

"'How so?' asked the visitor.

"Tolstoi rose, took the Frenchman by the arm, led him to the window that commanded a view of the truckpatch in which the Count was accustomed to labor and pointing to it, said:

"'There is my medicine chest. It contains all the remedies that a man requires. The only thing necessary is to know what to eat for the ailment that troubles you. Once you know that, you never hear the bells of the doctor's droshky outside your door.'"

A San Diego correspondent writes:

"Please tell us the names of the vegetables and fruits which contain the twelve mineral elements of the body."

Again, a Los Angeles correspondent writes:

"In the last two or three months I have had not less than seven boils. I cannot account for them, being no meat eater, or friend of the frying pan, but a vegetarian pure and simple.

"A friend of mine advised me to take sulphur. He told me his mother gives it to him for weeks at a time for his blood.

"I would be glad to read your opinion on this subject. I would be pleased to know what is a good blood purifier. What can a fellow do to rid himself of boils?"

The subject of the mineral contents of food is little understood by the general public. This is not at all surprising, because a great majority of writers on diet have entirely ignored the most important feature of the diet question, while others dismiss it in a few words. For years I have emphasized the great importance of the mineral elements in food—the same elements as are found in the human body—and in giving dietetic advice to my patients I always insist upon their learning to get the necessary mineral elements from food, instead of drugs.

Lettuce contains more of the organic salts than any other ordinary vegetable, except spinach. It literally "cools the blood," lowering the temperature of the vital fluid, therefore it should always be eaten with heating food. Lettuce has a sedative quality, and is therefore good to eat just before going to bed. This is due to a minute quantity of narcotic resembling opium that enters into its make-up.

The idea that cucumbers are indigestible is a superstition. When eaten as a part of a heavy meal, or when bolted rapidly they are of course indigestible, like any other food. Like radishes, cucumbers aid in regulating the bowels. In Italy you may see peasants make a meal of a cucumber and a hunk of brown bread, on which they do much harder work than does the man who every day eats a porterhouse steak. The juice of the cucumber applied to the skin will whiten it and give it a satiny luster. This is a purifier of ancient orign, for there are references to it in the Greek and Roman classics.

Young leeks and onions have valuable tonic qualities. High fevers and colds may be aborted by eating liberally of these vegetables.

At one time there was a foolish theory that tomatoes caused cancer. On the contrary, they are one of the very best foods to eat when you have cancer, or any blood disease. They wholesomely stimulate the digestive organs, especially the liver. It is said that sliced tomatoes rubbed on the cheeks will remove freckles, stains and sunburn.

Raw carrots—grated if you please—will soon cure a "sour stomach." Near Paris is an institution where a "carrot cure" is conducted by an ex-actress who was famed in her time for the beauty of her complexion, which she attributes to her constant eating of this vegetable.

Celery is one of nature's nervines. The London Lancet recently condescended to devote a long article to the good effects of this vegetable on the nerves. It would be well if the doctors would administer such wholesome food medicine as celery and onions rather than death dealing drugs which quiet the nerves for the time, as a burglar quiets a man when he hits him on the head with a stuffed club.

There is a French proverb that runs "Parsley is a broom that sweeps the stomach." It is useful in correcting digestive troubles and destroying offensive odors on the breath. If, for instance, green parsley be chewed after onions have been eaten, the smell of the latter will be greatly lessened or destroyed altogether. This is due to an essential oil that abounds in the leaves. Parsley also gently stimulates the action of the gastric juices. It is good to use as a "dressing."

Cabbage, when young and tender, and eaten sliced as "cold slaw" has an aperient quality. On the other hand sauerkraut or pickled cabbage is an abominable imposition on the stomach.

Spinach contains more of the organic salts than any other known food in common use. It cleanses and stimulates the digestive organs. Sufferers from constipation often find relief through the use of this vegetable.

The action of asparagus on the kidneys is well known. Also, the peculiar odor which it imparts to the urine within a short time after being eaten. It assists in the dispersal of gall stones that have found their way into the kidneys. Asparagus contains a small amount of xanthin, the equivalent of uric acid, and therefore should not be eaten in large quantities.

That humble plant watercress is a most valuable "green" that should be much more utilized. It is especially rich in iron. Eating freely of this will aid in removing pimples, blackheads and blotches. It is also an excellent medicine for those who are convalescing from diseases due to foul blood, such as typhoid, smallpox, malaria, etc.

Beet roots and parsnips, containing in addition to the organic salts a large amount of sugar, are fattening, where the system is able to utilize this sugar.

Here is another simple fact that many "wise" men do not, or will not understand: The vegetable world feeds on the mineral kingdom. The animal world must feed on the vegetable kingdom. Minerals, as found in drugs, or in "tissue salts," however minutely they may be pulverized, cannot possibly be appropriated by the animal system. This upsets the whole drug theory. To take iron in inorganic form is about as sensible as it would be to go to a blacksmith's shop and eat iron filings.

Iron and sulphur and chloride of sodium (table salt) in the inorganic form are all interlopers and therefore to a certain extent poisons, and the system proceeds, as soon as possible, to throw them out. Get your medicine from foods, not from drugs.

All natural food contains most of the twelve organic salts, as found in the human body, but the different foods contain them in greatly varying degrees. In bolting flour to make it white a large proportion of the minerals is removed. Some foods are greatly deficient, or entirely lacking in certain mineral elements. As, for instance, neither fish nor cocoanuts contain iron. Walnuts contain no sulphur or silicon or chlorine. Almonds contain no silicon or chlorine, and lentils contain no sulphur or silicon. White flour is low in all mineral contents, and is entirely lacking in sulphur, silicon and chlorine, a small proportion of each of these minerals being found in wheat, Foods that are especially rich in the mineral elements are the green leaves and roots, such as cabbage, spinach, lettuce, watercress, radishes, etc. They must be eaten raw to obtain the medicinal effects, as in cooking the mineral is to a great extent changed into the inorganic form in which form, as above explained, it cannot be utilized by the animal system.

It should be added that not only are the mineral contents of food removed or changed in the bolting of flour and in cooking—especially discarding the water in which vegetables are cooked—but they are also greatly lessened when the soil does not contain sufficient of the mineral elements. This is a most important subject, that has hitherto been almost entirely overlooked by our agricultural experts, just as the value of the organic salts has been ignored by medical experts.

It is no wonder that among what we call

MARRIED LIFE OF HELEN AND WARREN

BY MABEL HERBERT URNER.

"OH, DEAR, I'm glad you've come early! We couldn't set the table—couldn't get the leaf in."

"What's the trouble?" Warren strode into the dining-room where the extension table was drawn apart awaiting the obdurate leaf.

Warren was not a good mechanic. He loathed being called upon to do things about the house. And now after a considerate expenditure of temper and profanity he gave it up with a disgusted:

"Blamed thing's sprung. You'll have to get a carpenter."

"Oh, you must fix it some way! We can't seat five people without it."

"Then let it go like that," the closed table leaving a wide crack where the wooden pegs refused to fit into the grooves.

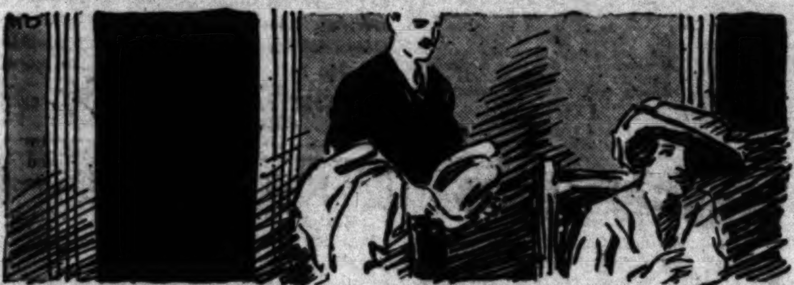
"Oh, you never fix anything!" in despair. "You just won't try."

"You bet I won't," belligerently. "If I did you'd have me tinkering around here half the time. Got about enough to do at the office," as, heedless of Helen's tearful protests, he marched off to dress.

"D'you get it fixed, ma'am?" Nora came into set the table.

"No, Mr. Curtis couldn't fix it. We'll have to leave it this way, and stuff that crack. Bring me some old papers—there'rs some in the pantry."

The next ten minutes were spent in feverishly wedging crumpled newspaper into the crevice.



"It looks dreadful," when the uneven ridges showed under the tablecloth, "but it's the best we can do. You go on—I'll set the table. Now hurry, Nora, have everything ready—so you won't be flustered."

The preparations for a company dinner Helen usually enjoyed, but today she had been consumed with a smoldering resentment. And now as she set the table so Carrie would sit furthest from the ridge, the very clink of the silver seemed to echo her animosity.

Mrs. Cole from Pittsburgh, an old schoolmate of Carrie's was on for a visit. And Carrie had plainly intimated that she expected Helen to invite them to dinner.

Yet last fall when Helen's aunt came on—neither Carrie nor any of the rest of Warren's family had done anything to entertain her

Through the closed doors came the clamor of the library phone, just as Helen discovered a freshly nicked plate. She would let Warren answer it, at least he could do that—the nick contributing to her exasperations.

Putting the chipped plate at her own place, she was examining the others for further evidence of Nora's carelessness, when Warren strode in.

"Carrie just called up. They can't come—she's been sick all day."

"Can't come!" gasped Helen.

"Now don't throw a fit," irritably. "People can't help being sick."

"And she waited until almost 7 o'clock to let us know?"

"Said she'd taken some headache powders and thought she'd feel better."

"Headache!" shrilly. "After we've gone to all this trouble and expense—at the last moment she decides not to come because of a headache?"

"You needn't shriek! Want everybody in the house to hear you?"

"And she almost invited herself—she as much as said she'd like me to have Mrs. Cole. When Aunt Molly was here—not one of your family did a thing to help entertain her! Yet when Carrie has company I'm expected—"

"Oh, for Heaven's sake cut it!" snarled Warren, striding out in disgust.

Dropping on the window-seat Helen gazed at the company-set table through indignant tears. As she thought of the $3 roast, the expensive French cream—and all the extras, her resentment against Carrie aroused her to action.

There must be some one she could ask even at this last moment. The Stevens—but they were out of town. Then with swift inspiration—the Martins! Right in the house!

Only yesterday she had met Mrs. Martin in the elevator—their maid had left and they were going out for their meals. It was true she hardly knew her, yet the thought of the wasted dinner sent Helen flying to the telephone.

"Hello! Give me Mrs. Martin's apartment . . . . Mrs. Martin? This is Mrs. Curtis from the seventh floor. I—I'm going to be very informal," with laughing embarrassment. "The guests we were expecting just phoned they couldn't come. You said you disliked going out for your meals—so I wondered if you and Mr. Martin would care to dine with us?"

"Why, there's nothing we'd like better," with responsive enthusiasm. "We'd love to come! What time do you want us?"

"Right away—if you can."

"Martins? Who in thunder are the Martins?" roared Warren as she turned from the phone. "Asking strangers here to dinner? You crazy?"

"I don't know him," flushing, "but I've met her in the elevator several times."

"You have, eh? Well, I don't know them and don't want to know them. Now you call up and say your guests are here—found they could come after all."

"You know I can't do that! She wouldn't believe me—she'd think—".

"Don't care a hoot what she thinks. I've felt rotten all day and I'm not going to entertain strangers. Now, you call up and get out of this—any way you can."

"No, Warren, I won't do that," tensely.

"You won't?" savagely.

"No."

"Then I will!"

With sick dread Helen watched him stalk to the telephone and heard his grim demand for the Martins's apartment. What would he say? At that moment all her love for him seemed chilled to hatred.

Then the door bell—a short brisk ring!

"There they are now!" she started up. "You can't phone them."

"I can't, eh?", as with a muttered oath he slammed up the receiver. "Well, I can make them damned uncomfortable!"

The opening and closing of the hall door. Nora was ushering Mrs. Martin and a tall, distinguished looking man.

"It was very kind of you to think of us! I believe you haven't met my husband?"

"No, I—I think not," stammered Helen, as through her throbbing confusion she saw Warren greeting Mr. Martin with hearty recognition.

"Well, this is luck," he beamed. "Didn't know you were living here."

"We're not regularly," explained Mr. Martin. "We've just sublet for a few months—while I have to be in town every day. Our Long Island place is so far out."

Nora's announcement that dinner was served interrupted further explanations.

From the depths of despondency Helen was lifted to the joyous conviction that the evening would be a success. Mr. Martin, she gathered, was a director of a large corporation whose attorney Warren had once assisted.

Mrs. Martin was charming. She won Helen by her interest in their old furniture. Her admiration not merely effusive but discriminating.

"That's one of the finest pieces I've ever seen," was her comment when after dinner Helen showed the huge bookcase they had brought from London.

As Warren was much too engrossed with Mr. Martin to glower at her oft-repeated story, Helen had a glorious half hour telling how they had found the bookcase in a dusty old shop and all the difficulties of getting it over.

"Well, it's worth all your trouble—it's very exceptional." Then cordially, "You must come out for a week-end at our Long Island place. We've some interesting old pieces—though nothing so wonderful- as this."

"Helen, Mr. Martin wants us to go for a drive," interrupted Warren.

"Oh, yes, do," urged Mrs. Martin. "We'll run out to Larchmont and stop at the Clearview Inn. I wish we could take you, too," cuddling Pussy Purr-mew whom she was nursing.

"Yes, that's quite a cat," admitted her husband, tweaking a furry ear. "Well, we'll go up and get ready—the car'll be here in twenty minutes."

The Martins gone, Warren turned with a complacent:

"Mighty nice people! No side about either of 'em—that's what makes a hit with me. Where's that tweed cap?"

"On the shelf in your closet—where it always is," icily.

"Eh? What's up now?" struck by her frigidity. "What's the idea?"

"Nothing at all," passing into her room.

It was absurd to feel resentful, since the dinner had been a success. Yet Warren's self-satisfied, taking-it-for-granted air rankled.

As broodingly she pinned on a close-fitting hat, Warren appeared in the mirror—standing at the door, a linen duster over his arm.

"Ready?"

"Not yet," in the same glacial tone.

"Oh, so that's it. Rubbing it in, eh?"

"I wasn't aware that I'd said anything."

"Huh, your silence can shriek like a steam calliope. Well, out with it! What d'you want me to say?"

"Nothing at all," eluding his encircling arm.

"Oh, yes, you do! Very well, I'll own up. Guess I was pretty rotten about the dinner.".

A moment's silence. Then as he forcefully drew her to him:

"Well, Kitten, this is your inning. I'm mighty glad to know Martin better. His word goes with the Acton crowd—and they can throw a lot of things my way. You blundered into something pretty good—got to hand it to you this time. Here, back up—wipe off some of that confounded powder. Jove, just look at my coat!"

Nothing New.

GOV. WHITMAN of New York was speaking on woman's suffrage. "I don't see what all the talk and argument is about," he protested. "When you get down to cases, the ladies have always run everything there is to run. When it comes to women's voting, man is in the same fix as when he goes to a photographer's. He has nothing to say about it, looks as pleasant as possible, takes what they give him, and says thank you."

* * *

Analogous.

SENATOR PITTMAN of Nevada was trying to explain to some of his constituents from the back country why we are at war with Germany. "Just the same as the old lady and the tramp," he explained.

The old lady was working in her garden, happy and contented and minding her own business when the tramp hopped over the fence, trampled on her garden and demanded that she give him a hand-out. He even went so far as to threaten her.

At the psychological moment a dog ran up, all full of pep.

"You'd better go," warned the lady as she grabbed the dog's collar and held him in check.

"You ain't got no right to keep a savage dog," retorted the tramp.

"Maybe not," agreed the lady, "and since you feel that way about it, I'll let it go."

And she did, and chances are it will stick right to the tramp's heels till it lands in Berlin.

Shining Example.

"THE true patriot is the person who does the best he can and doesn't grumble," declares Food Administrator Hoover. "Naturally we all want wheat flour, plenty of sugar, and all the other good things of life. But inasmuch as we can't have them just now, the true patriot will gladly take what he can get and be cheerful about it. I have a friend who, to my mind, is an ideal patriot.

His wife had never made biscuits with anything save the finest wheat flour and her first war flour biscuits were a dismal failure. She tried to tell hubby all about it.

"Don't worry, dear," said her lord and master, "I know they're heavy, but remember, I only have to lift one at a time."

Horrors of War.

JOHN McCORMACK, the famous tenor, tells a story which he claims graphically illustrates the horrors of war. On returning from a Red Cross concert he was amazed to find his wife laboriously trying to remove the spots from a palm beach suit.

"Where's Norah," demanded the amazed songbird.

"She's in the kitchen. I thought I'd do this myself, because the poor girl simply can't bear the smell of gasoline since the chauffeur enlisted."

Self-Convicted.

SAM RORK has a daughter of whom he is very proud. Not long ago he bought her a set of mink furs. The little girl caressed the glossy furs and remarked, "It seems impossible that such lovely furs could come from such an insignificant beast."

"Young lady," said Sam, sternly, "I didn't expect any thanks, but I do insist on respect."

Plain Work Will Win.

"TOO many people seem to think that the only people who are of real service to Uncle Sam are those who do the picturesque stunts and get their pictures on the front pages of the daily papers, and are loaded down with medals.

"Mind you," continues Camp Clark, "I am not detracting from the worth of these heroes, but I want to impress on you that downright hard work will do more than any other one thing.

"The other day a lady approached me and said, 'Mr. Clark, my boy wants to do something for his country, but they won't let him.'

"'How's that," I asked her, for I knew her only son was in the army and was rated as an excellent soldier."

"'Well,' she said, 'he's been in the army two weeks and they haven't let him do anything glorious yet.'"

Chance for Thrift.

CITY ATTORNEY STEPHENS was amazed the other day when a peddler invaded his private sanctum and began dilating on the merits of an ash sifter.

"I don't want an ash sifter," snorted Stephens, "but I do want to know how you got in here."

"Everyone needs an ash sifter," persisted the peddler, ignoring the question.

"But I don't," snapped Stephens. "I burn gas."

"But you smoke, don't you?" demanded the peddler.

"You win," cried the attorney, "I know now how you got in."

"How?" questioned the perplexed peddler.

"Just sifted," was the laconic reply.

New One.

JUDGE WOODS was talking about insignificant cases which suddenly loom in importance because they present knotty legal questions. "A case of this kind came up before a friend of mine not so very long ago. A young lady sued for breach of promise.

"But how can you sue for breach of promise," demanded the judge. "You've just admitted that the defendant never promised to marry you."

"That don't make no difference, judge," declared the lady, "he promised he'd be a brother to me, and he ain't never been no such thing."

* * *

Realism.

"THE late Senator Fairbanks," said a Washington diplomat, "was a wide reader, but he hated realism of the Zola type.

"He claimed that such realism had no defense, and he once said to a defender of it:

"'You're about as convincing, my good sir, as the shabby young man who was held up at the exit of the hotel writing-room, with about 700 sheets of the hotel's costly note paper bulging from his various pockets.

"'This young man said to the cop in his defense:

"'"I am gathering material for a novel."'"

* * *

Some Discipline.

A BOY at Camp Doniphan, in a letter to his brother here in Los Angeles, comments on the splendid soldiers the Indians make. He writes:

"Really they are better disciplined than many of the raw white boys. Here is an example—it is really true:

"As you may or may not know, enlisted men when speaking to superior officers are required to stand at attention, heels together, shoulders thrown back, chest out, chin up, and hands at their sides until the officer tells them to stand at ease. Well, a few days ago, one of the chaplains sent for an Indian soldier. The man had been sitting in his tent reading and smoking a pipe. On receiving the message he slipped his pipe into his hip pocket and hurried to the chaplain's tent, where he stood at attention.

"The chaplain began to sniff the air. He scented smoke and burning cloth. Little tendrils of smoke came curling and drifting around from behind the soldier.

"'Man, you are on fire,' exclaimed the chaplain.

"'Yes, sir; I know it, sir,' the soldier answered. But that blessed Indian never moved.

"'At ease, and sit in this wash basin,' the chaplain ordered, with a broad smile.

"Not until then did the man move and the fire was properly extinguished. Discipline? Can you beat it?"

* * *

Same Old Job.

DR. BROUGHER had been listening to a Sunday-school class discussing the life of Joseph in Egypt, and ventured to interject a question.

"Tell me, little man, what reward was given Joseph for saving the Egyptians from starvation?"

"They gave him Mr. Hoover's job," was the quick response.

Bob Burdette's Humor.

THE late Robert J. Burdette, better known the length and breadth of the land as "Bob" Burdette, and chiefly famous because of his humorous lecture "The Rise and Fall of the Mustache," which he used on the lyceum platform for nearly thirty years, had a spontaneity which was truly remarkable.

Sudden flashes of wit, humor cropped out constantly in his conversation. Like other great American humorists, some of the best things that he said fell upon the ears of a handful of friends and never found their way into print.

In the afternoon of life he sunned himself on the porch at "Eventide," his restful home at Clifton-by-the-Sea. It was from there that he penned these lines to an intimate friend:

"Here I am in dry dock, waiting for the Great Builder to give me a general overhauling. My boilers appear to be burned out, and I need new grates in my firebox. Guess the old engine is about played out, but maybe we can tinker it up so that it will make a few more trips. Seems as though my switchboard has been struck by lightning. I have my good days and my bad days, but I lost count of them some time ago, and now I can't tell them apart."

His compliments were as graceful as they were pretty. One day he overheard a party of young matrons discussing dress goods.

"I don't like the new figured patterns, Dr. Burdette," exclaimed one of the young women. "Do you?"

It might have been the part of wisdom for the humorist to have agreed with her, but by so doing he might have disagreed with her companions, so he sidestepped the issue, and paid the lady a deliciously subtle compliment by replying:

"Oh, I don't know. I should consider them very good if they all contained as pretty a figure as the one in the gown that you are wearing."

* * *

Sticking Together.

THE turbulent days when Ambassador Gerard was still at his post in Germany were not without their touches of humor.

"The reception-room at the Embassy was packed with people trying to get passports to leave the country, and in passing through the throng, I overheard the following conversation:

"'Why if it isn't Mrs. Parsely, from my home town. Well, this is a surprise.'

"'Why, it's Mr. Bowles, isn't it? You must call on us at the hotel. You know people we didn't think much of at home become most intimate friends in strange countries.'"

Natural Mistake.

HERE'S a yarn from Camp Lewis. It has to do with a Los Angeles boy, who had come back on furlough and put in the time to the best advantage (in his estimation) by getting married.

At the end of the furlough he boarded the train north and absent-mindedly handed the conductor his marriage certificate instead of his railroad ticket. The conductor examined it carefully and handed it back, remarking:

"Young fellow, that's a ticket for a long and wearisome journey, but not on this line."

Couldn't Fool Him.

JUDGE WHITE is looking for the auto speeder who can think up a new excuse. "Most of them," he said, "remind me of a little friend of mine named Johnny.

"Johnny, who has seen eight summers go by, not very long ago developed a fondness for playing truant from school. After two or three offenses of this kind he was taken to task by the teacher.

"'Johnny,' she said, 'the next time you are absent I want you to bring me an excuse from your father telling me why you were not here.'

"'I don't want to bring an excuse from my father,' protested the boy.

"'Why not?' asked the teacher, her suspicion plain.

"''Cause father isn't any good at making excuses.'"

His Logic.

ALFRED A. KNOPF, Russian authority, said in his New York office:

"It's no use being pessimistic about Russia. Russia has simply got to go through these throes of hers in order to become sane and healthy. They're the throes of seasickness, and to turn away from them with pessimistic horror and disgust is to be as unreasonable as the little schoolboy.

"A little schoolboy refused to play during the recess. He sat on a hard rock with a discontented look.

"'Why aren't you playing?' said another little boy.

"'Huh! Catch me playing!' he replied. 'If I played the time would go too fast.'"

Anxious to Please.

"IT IS the children who try to please that usually win in the battle of life," remarked Principal Jones of the Logan street school. "I am sure I can predict success for the little chap who wanted to get excused early to go on a visit to a little chum.

"Before he left, I gave him a few pointers on politeness. 'Always take off your hat when you enter the house, and be sure to say please, and thank you at the proper time,' I admonished.

"'Yes'm,' said the little fellow, and then added, 'don't you think you'd better write it down so I can give it to Johnny's mother? Then I'd be sure.'"

* * *

Real Philanthropist.

ANDREW CARNEGIE is now 83 and resting on his oars, but he still delights to reminisce, and the following is one of his favorite stories:

"He was passing through a small town and paused before the new Carnegie library. He was inspecting it when a native came along and remarked: "It's a mighty fine building, ain't it, stranger. I'll always bless the name of Carnegie."

"But you don't look as though you had much use for libraries," said the surprised iron-master.

"Well, it ain't as much me, as my wife," was the reply, "she's got the job washing the floors twice a week."

* * *

Inside Out.

REPRESENTATIVE KINKAID of Nebraska was telling about Russia's repudiation of her national debt.

"France is hit the hardest by this repudiation," he said. "France has I forget how many billions of francs invested in the Russian loan.

"It's a good thing for us Americans that we never went in for Russian securities. We are like the banker. The banker said of a man of the Russian Bolshevik type:

"'When he called I was out, but I'd have been out more if I'd been in.'"

* * *

Sea-sawing.

THE late Capt. James Norman Hall of the Lafayette Escadrille was, like most airmen, deeply religious.

Hall said one day on a visit to his native Colfax—he hailed from Colfax, Iowa.

"We airmen are religious all the time. We're not like seamen. Seamen, you know, are churchgoers in the winter, when the sea is stormy and dangerous, but in the summer, when the sea is smooth, they spend their Sundays ashore in beer gardens drinking and smoking with pretty girls.

"A minister in a bethel put the case in a nutshell.

"'In the winter,' he said, 'you seamen wear out the knees of your pants praying, and in the summer you wear out their seats backsliding.'"

Consolation.

CLEVELAND H. DODGE, during the President's visit to his Riverdale mansion, talked about war production disappointments.

"Consolation in these disappointments?" he said. "Well, I don't take much stock in consolation. It always seems to me rather unsatisfactory."

"Yes, consolation always reminds me of the judge who said consolingly to the transgressor whom he had sentenced to twenty-eight years:

"'Oh, well, you know, my man, we've all got to be somewhere.'"

The MAN WITH THE HAMMER

by Jack Lait

A GREAT railroad was giving a great banquet. In the great hall a great assemblage of railroad men, great and small, had gathered at the call of the president of the system, to do honor to one of its men.

And was it the traffic manager, who had outwitted rivals on other lines, who had caused the annual high peaks of freight and passenger carrying to grow higher, who was thus to be recognized and feted? It was not. Nor was it the advertising director, who had caused the road to become known everywhere, whose clever compositions had standardized its slogan, whose total bill for space bought had grown each year less while the income owing to his tall assertions had grown greater. Nor yet was it the chairman of the board, nor the general passenger agent, nor the purchasing agent, nor the dining car superintendent, nor the master mechanic, nor the traveling vice-president. It was none of these. It was no one with a mighty title or an imposing position.

The hero of this unique foregathering was a little man of inconsequential stature and negligible standing.

As the banqueters drew up to their carded places the guest of them all walked with ostentatious unostentation to his place at the long board where sat the high officials of the road, invited high officials of other roads, and especially selected notables from the worlds of finance, finesse, literature, legislation, agriculture, commerce, jurisprudence, and other branches associated with the innermost and primary needs of successful railroads.

All this was before the nation had assumed chaperonage over the arteries of travel and transportation, when a railroad could yet banquet one whom it held worthy, and charge the expense to profit and loss or maintenance of right of way. So the spread was magnificent, the wine was old, the flowers were profuse, and the cigars were long and heavy, as were the speeches.

It was none beneath the president himself who first arose to set forth in an address the identity of the honored banqueter, the unassuming little party who sat well down in his chair, between the general attorney of the road and the attorney-general of the State, hard by.

"My friends, fellow workers in the service of stockholders, press and public, guests and you, my good man, whom we have collected here to signalize and to apostrophize:

"The rich and renowned, the proud and powerful, the famous and farflung G., V. & B., which I have the honor to conduct and to here represent, tonight, pays tribute to its humblest yet noblest son.

"No possessor of a high sounding sinecure is he. Though almost every man in this room is an important factor in the operation of the line, probably not half a dozen of us here had ever seen his face or heard his name before tonight. I, myself, knew nothing of his existence, not to say his extraordinary worth and record, until I chanced to glance down a list of statistics regarding the length of service of employees and their percentages for efficiency as based on relative days given the road. To my amazement I found that this man, Henry High, had worked for the G., V. & B. for forty-two years, consecutively, on a seven day per week job, and had in all that time never missed a day. More, his work demands that he meet every train passing Miller Junction, a waylaid point in a far-off State, and in the forty-two years he has never missed one train.

"His task is to inspect the car wheels under the cars of the trains that stop at Miller Junction. In the forty-two years there have been forty-two times 365 days, or 15,333 days; adding nine leap years, the total runs to 15,342 days. Ten trains a day pull up there, making 153,420 trains that he has met—met with loyalty and unflagging devotion—in his unparalleled career of service, fidelity, steadfast dependability. Each of those trains carried an average of six cars, and on each car were eight wheels; thus, multiplying the number of trains by six, the average number of cars, and again by eight, the number of wheels, we find that Henry High's hammer tap-tapped without once faltering upon 7,364,160 wheels under trains of cars of the G., V. & B.

"During those two and forty years the world has run along, each man of the hundreds of millions of men chasing his phantom, following his ambitious or indolent aims. Kings have been born and dethroned and have died; children have come to earth and their children have borne children; two oceans have been married, the geography of the globe has been altered, the laws and customs of mankind have undergone marked changes, the progress of science has caused many revolutionary innovations, the seasons have swung from hot to cold and from dry to torrential—an age has been lived.

"Yet, through it all, this man has walked his one well worn path of endeavor, mindless of how swiftly the world whirled, looking neither to right nor to left, following only that one set light, that one white beacon, his lone beckoning star—duty!

"In those same forty-two years there were rains that washed away the road from the simple cottage to the junction station, there were drifts of snow that would be impenetrable obstacles to a man of weaker resolution; there were days of merciless heat out on that western prairie, there were days of pitiless cold there, too. Yet never once did he let any impediment any circumstance, any condition, any situation, stand between him and his trust. Here, gentlemen, IS a man!

"Through all those years perhaps millions of passengers who had trusted themselves to the keeping of the G., V. & B. heard the sound of his trusty hammer, and it rang and echoed to them this great system's pledge, this great system's obligation to look after their safety, being met, being carried out.

"Whether he went on and on in his work with the high resolve of a hero pounding within him, or whether he went along in the simple routine of the modest man who merely does what is given him to do and never thinks to appreciate himself for the qualities and deeds that might serve to rank him with the immortals, I do not know; I have scarcely exchanged a dozen words with him beyond notifying him, after I had summoned him here, why I had summoned him—to make him the guest of honor at this imposing feast, to bring him before the other and more favored factors in the operation of our road, so that they might look upon this shrinking little individual and draw from him an inspirational lesson in super-devotion.

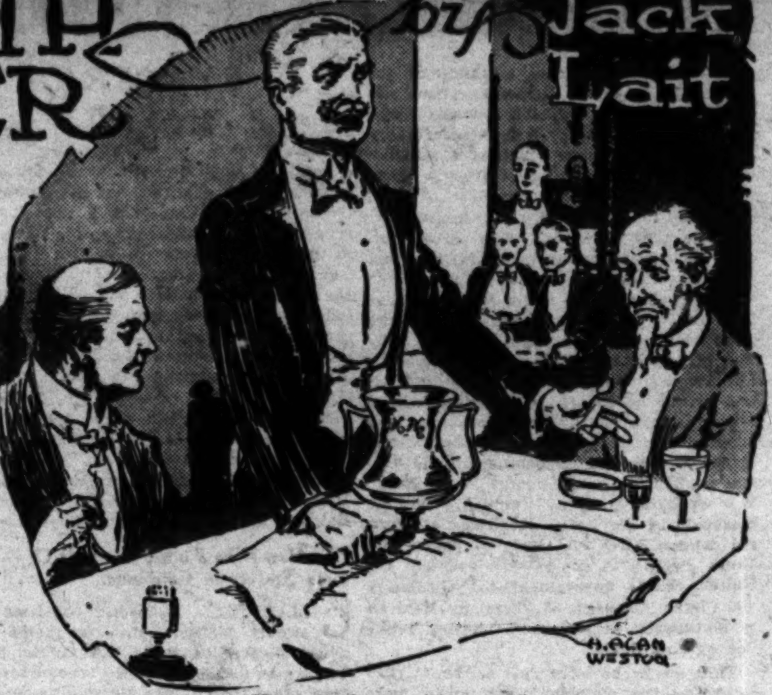
"Henry High, stand up."

The little man, blushing, rose to his feet. His hands, knotted and horny and still a bit grimy, for workingmen cannot whiten their hands in a day after years of soiling toil, projected from the cuffless ends of a rented dinner coat that fit him more than enough. The hands picked at the table cloth, the collar, low as it was, seemed to be choking him. He stood wide eyed and fearful.

"Here," said the president, unveiling a tall package which had been brought to his side and set upon the speakers' table. "Take this loving cup as a lasting token of the acknowledgment from an unfeeling corporation of its gratitude, its appreciation, its understanding—its proclamation of your unwavering, undeviating, unbroken service to your duty and to its cause. With none to spy on you or urge you on, you have done your plain work with soldierly regularity and with a man's consistency. Upon this cup is inscribed 'Semper Fidelis,' which means 'Always Faithful.' The words are true. You have earned them for your crest, for your epitaph, just as you made them the guiding motto of your daily duty during the years.

"It is my further pleasure to announce that the G., V. & B., though a company often accused, as are all large enterprises, with being penurious and unemotional, has pensioned you for the remainder of your life at your full pay, and here relieves you of further work; you have done enough: you have come up at your post millions of times; you have, moreover, laid down a precedent and pointed an example which this road will hold before its thousands of employees for decades yet to come. You have earned your rest, thou good and faithful servant—may you revel in it and may it make the waning twilight of your life serene and comfortable, which is the just spoils of every man after he has fought the good fight, given a good account of his most useful years, reported and saluted for the last time in his place in the line before honorable discharge.

"We thank you, we who are indebted to you."



"Here, gentlemen, is a man."

To the clatter of loud and prolonged applause the president sat down. The railroad men and visitors turned to one another and observed it had been a corking speech.

"He was deeply moved—truly sincere," whispered the chief engineer to the purchasing agent.

"I'll say so," granted the purchasing agent, "or he could never have made such a tip-top talk, especially on the occasion of giving away something. I've heard the old man wax eloquent on the topic of cutting down expenses, likewise on the subjects of increasing revenue. But I never had any idea he could fling words like that out of the box when letting loose of a valuable chunk of silver and a life pension."

High stood, fumbling at the loving cup. He had never seen one before, and, of course, had never conjectured that he might own one.

"Speech!" cried someone.

"Speech! Speech!" the cry was taken up at every table.

The blood mounted to the weathered cheeks of the laborer, who, withal that he was the hero of the feast, withal that the president's panegyric had held him up as a phenomenon, withal that he now owned a silver loving cup and could put "Retired" on his visiting cards, should he ever have visiting cards, still felt himself a commoner among the elect.

"Speech!" called the assemblage, en masse.

Henry High cleared his voice, which issued thin and uncertain, but which soon found its fullness as he forgot who he was and where, and told the unadorned annals of his years of dogged, monotonous, but almost holy attendance upon his appointed work.

"Gentlemen," said he, "this is all a big s'prise to me. Out there, in Miller's Junction, where I lived an' where my neighbors knows me as Hank High, they won't scarcely believe this, becus they've seen me, man an' boy, for sixty-odd years, an' they never discovered that I was much account even out there, not to speak o' bein' brought here, to the city, an' held up to be a wonder before such a fine lot o' millionaires an' bosses as what I see t'night.

"I was about 19 when a section sup'rintendent—he's been dead an' gone these thirty years—hired me for my job. He was kind o' in a hurry. The man what had my job was jus' then tappin' the wheels under a train. He was going to quit an' had asked for his time.

"'Can you do that work?' the sup'rintendent asked me. 'Sure,' says I. So he asks me my name an' he puts it down. I went to work on the nex' train an' I been on the pay roll ever since. An' there was nothin' to it excep' to be on the job—that's all.

"Sometimes the trains was late—well, I waited; sometimes the roads was flooded—well, I waded; sometimes it was cold—well, I put on two pairs o' mittens an' sheepskins an' felt boots; sometimes it was hot—well, I skinned down to my undershirt an' jeans.

"But it wasn' nothin' so wonderful, at that I had a job to do an' I done it. I never missed a train, that's true; but the great railroad that hired me never missed a first or fifteenth with the pay, neither, so I wasn' the only reg'lar one. That pay made it possible for me to marry an' to raise four children an' send 'em to school, an'

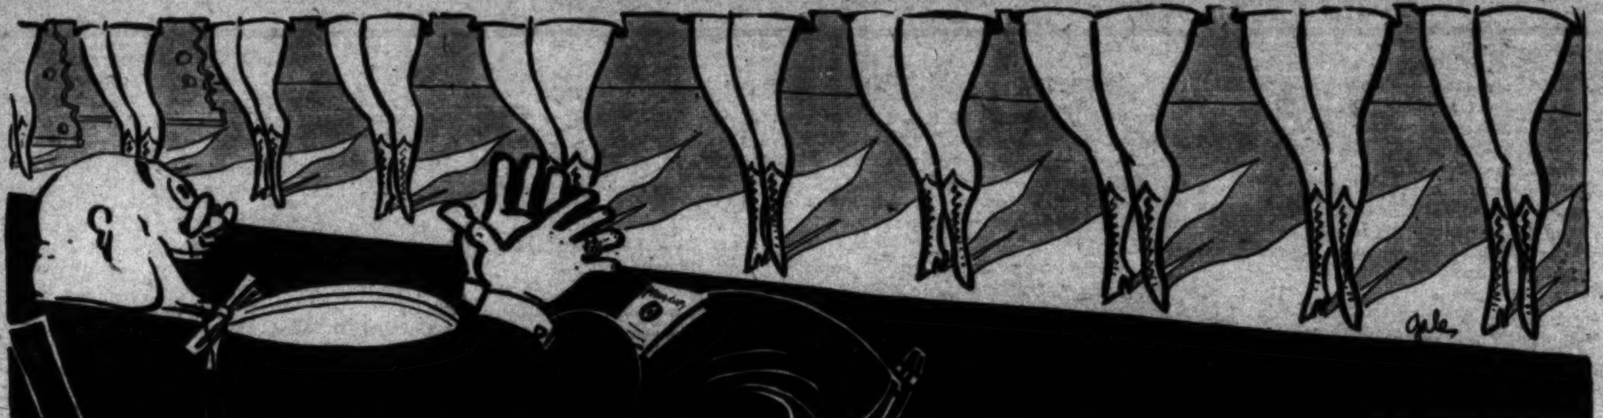
THE NEW THEATER CONSCIENCE.



BY NEELY DICKSON.

IT IS SAID that during the stress of these days President Wilson goes to the theater several times a week, and when he is seen in the presidential box the reporters are on the alert, for they know that he has an especially big offer for work and that he is training for that work by allowing himself amusement and relaxation.

If a nation's efficiency depends upon the sanity of its amusements, the theater has a big order in these war tense days. How are we going to live up to it? Will the public demand the type of drama that will give strength and resiliency not only to the fighting forces but to the civilians?

The families of Canadian soldiers have been given donations of money by the government in order that they may go to the movies. Not only does a man fight better if he has the right kind of amusement, but he also fights better if he knows his family is cheerful. The minds of those at home as well as those "over there" must be distracted from war in order to be kept sane.

In the fall of 1914 there was a decided slump in the theater business both in London and Paris. Many theaters closed their doors. Before the winter was over, however, the necessity for relaxation was everywhere felt, and the theaters reopened and have continued playing to crowded houses.

Winthrop Ames and E. H. Sothern have just returned from a trip through France where arrangements have been completed for sending over to the boys the best theater talent America affords. They must have amusement and the best is none too good.

Theater Must Awaken to the Full Realization of its Responsibility.

IT MUST do its part and do it with the same singleness of purpose that animates the men at the front.

On every side these war swept days, we hear profiteering decried. It is denounced as pro-German and unpatriotic. The best food, the best clothing and the best building material must be furnished at the lowest possible cost consistent with good products.

What about the place of the theater in the national scheme of things? Is the theater furnishing the best brand of amusement that it is possible to get from behind the footlights? Are the kind of plays produced, the standard of morals upheld, the quality of the jokes dispensed, of the sort that we would be proud to hold up to the world bearing the label "Made in America?" Is the theater with its present type of play strengthening the morale of the nation? The man who is seeing a play on Broadway tonight is the man who is in the trenches tomorrow. What have we done for him at home in his leisure hours? Have we given him something of joy and loveliness to recall in those stench filled days at the front? Have we given him something to cause a hearty laugh, the sort of thing he can recall and laugh at again when he is far from any theater center?

We need a new conscience in the theater and with that a strength of mind that will help us to live up to the dictates of that conscience. It is far from honest to dilute the food of the army or the civilians at home when the physical strength depends upon the quality of the food. Is it any less honest to dilute the moral food that is given to the public under the guise of theatric entertainment? There are the pure food laws to protect the public in the matter of buying provisions, but in the kind of plays handed out there is no such protection unless they are so unsavory as to call for police intervention.

The plays to be feared are not the really bad, but those that are labeled "popular," "laugh producing," "hit of the season," or "barelegged scream"—as one play was advertised. And the public flocks because it wishes to laugh, and under the label of a Broadway success the public is given inept, frivolous, indelicate lines and situations, and all too often frankly indecent plays—not bad enough to cause the interference of the law but just enough off the line to be more pernicious and degrading in effect than a really bad play.

Theater managers may say they are not in the business for their health. That may be, but the moral health of thousands of people will be largely affected by their output. There is a greater moral obligation resting upon them than upon the managers of almost any other business. The people should also share this theater conscience and make a higher demand upon the stage.

The Good Plays are Not All Financial Failures.

LET us not make a mistake in our conclusions, however. All good plays are not financial failures and all bad plays commercial successes. It comes as a decided shock that even such classics as the old Greek plays given by Margaret Anglin this year in New York were decidedly remunerative and played to sold out houses at every performance. The net receipts for the six performances of Sophocles and Euripides exceeded the amount usually taken in at the box office for a six weeks' run of a popular Broadway success.

Statistics tell us that the tragedy of Hamlet has drawn more money to the box office than any other drama in the English language.

However, the public need not be fed on Shakespeare or on Greek tragedy alone in order to witness good drama. In 1916 when Galsworthy's great play of "Justice" was put on at the Candler Theater with John Barrymore in the role of Falder the pessimists prophesied a failure, but at the end of the season it was counted the big success of the year from the standpoints of both art and finance. It was a stirring drama dealing with a big theme and adequately acted, depicting the methods of the English penal system. There was hardly an excuse for a laugh in the whole four acts and it contained one of the longest single speeches ever delivered on the stage, and yet the public liked it. Men went to see it in preference to the "Follies." It takes a stirring theme sometimes to force thought into another channel. This play made them think, it stirred their emotions. It gave them a realization that there was work to be done and that every man had his share.

When the play was produced in London it made such a profound impression that within a few hours after the first performance the home secretary inaugurated a reform of the English penal system.

What of some of our American plays that have furnished entertainment and held the attention of theater goers in the past? Have we no dramatists today who can or will take the trouble to write such plays as "The Great Divide," by William Vaughn Moody, "The Truth," by Clyde Fitch, "The Witching Hour," by Augustus Thomas, or "The Servant in the House," by Charles Rann Kennedy? These all furnish entertainment that even the most finical could never call highbrow and yet each has a vital theme treated respectfully by dramatists who had some understanding of life and took the care to record their observations in language that was intended not to offend those who were not sewer cleaners or garbage collectors.

Plays of Today Seem to Be Written While You Wait.

WE ARE too easily satisfied with ourselves. It seems to be quantity and not quality that is demanded by a theatrical season. Too often the plays have the effect of the first act being rehearsed, while the second act is being written, and the third act not yet thought of.

I am reminded of a story of a New York actress who called up a dramatist (?) by telephone and ordered a playlet that should last half an hour, give her an opportunity for one song, two emotional outbursts, and one black evening gown. This same playlet to be delivered to her in time for an 11 o'clock rehearsal the next morning.

Many of the plays we are called upon to witness appear to be the result of some such order and written in about that length of time, the rivalry seeming to be not in the literary tone of the play or the truth with which life can be depicted, but in the luridness of the pictures of the underworld, the number of suggestive lines that can be introduced or the opportunity that can be given for a display of lingerie. A play may not be immoral in writing, but if in taste and tone it is ill-bred it is harder to endure in some respects than outright immorality.

The present American play is not up to the tastes of the people. It is not socially constructive. The reason there are so many "meteoric rises and falls" chronicled in a New York season is because there are so many inconsequential plays thrust upon the market.

The old cry that we are not so much behind even the best periods of the stage in the past is not a sufficient excuse. Is our civilization not advancing? Are our standards of art and beauty not to be raised? We are a comparatively new nation, we have not centuries of culture and art behind us to use as a measure. We are creating our standards and they should be compatible with our ideas of civilization. In fact, upon our standards of art and culture rests the final judgment of our civilization.

We are in such a hurry about everything. The public would do well to plead with the playwright to take time to write a great play—if not years for the actual construction, at least years of study, training and observation of life.

A friend of Goethe's once said to him upon his return from a sojourn in Rome, "You must know Rome very well." "Oh, no," replied Goethe, "I was there only seven years." More of our modern plays, it would seem, are written in a period that might be covered by seven days rather than anything like a period of seven years of study or training.

Giving a Play Punch May Ruin the Original Lines.

HOWEVER not all of the bad taste or suggestiveness we see in the theater is due to the author. Too frequently the manager and the producer spoil what was intended as a perfectly wholesome scene through a desire to "speed up the play." They try to twist and turn a situation or a line to give it the so-called "punch," which usually means making [illegible] delicate, and when produced it bears very little resemblance to the author's original idea.

Even in such familiar lines as Shakespeare's the meaning may be changed by the interpretation. You may have heard the story of one of our well-known vaudeville actors—so well known is he that I wouldn't malign the gentleman by mentioning his name—who was rather unexpectedly called upon to take part in a New York production of Othello. When the place was reached where Othello says to Iago, "Is she not honest?" and Iago replies questioningly, "Honest, m'lord?" the actor above mentioned, being ready to get the most (?) out of every line, struck an attitude and in his flattest American voice replied, "Honest! My Lord!"

When I first saw the production of "Hobson's Choice" at the Comedy Theater in New York, I was frankly shocked at the close of the second act which is on the wedding night of Maggie and Willie Mosson and which takes place in the little room that is their shop and living quarters combined. Nothing in the way of immodest allusion or coarse suggestion seemed to have been left out. I disliked it as much as anything I had seen on the stage and I laid it all at the door of the author. What was my surprise upon later reading the play to discover that the flagrant disregard of good taste and decency was not on the part of the playwright but of the producer or stage director. The impression was so strong in my mind that the dictates of good taste had been violated that I thought the lines had also played an important part. Not at all, it was not a matter of the content of the play but the introduction of business that gave the offending note.

Why this continued catering to what is lowest in order to make a play succeed, rather than appealing to the highest in the public mind?

There are many dramas, both comedies and otherwise, of accepted literary worth that would draw a crowd any day if adequately acted and intelligently produced. These same plays could be performed without the manager having to suffer from the necessity of paying heavy royalties.

If we are going to make the theater add to our national efficiency by furnishing us vitalizing constructive amusement, we must see to it that the kind of play offered and the manner of production are such as will build up and not tear down the moral fiber of our nation; the kind that will afford relaxation without lowering the cultural standard.

A new test for our amusement has come with the war. The time is here for a regeneration of the theater and much of this règeneration must come through a new type of play.

We must have plays that will be a reflection of our life; plays that will be representative of the civilization that we are fighting for; plays that will amuse but that will also inspire, rehabilitate and refresh; plays that will savor of fresh air and open fields rather than boudoir scandal and back door gossip.

In truth we must have plays that we are proud to place by the side of any of our contemporaries and know that the American label will be a guarantee to the world that they are fine, clean and wholesome; of the same fiber as our much vaunted democracy and freedom. We must live up to our civilization by insisting on a clean theater conscience.

HISTORIC CANNON OF LOS ANGELES.

BY PERCIVAL J. COONEY.

AT THE Broadway entrance to the Los Angeles Courthouse stand two old cannon. Of the thousands who pass them every day, there are very few indeed who know anything of the important and dramatic part played by these old field pieces in the conquest of California and the history of our own city.

Where they were cast will perhaps always remain a matter of doubt, but this much is certain, that in the spring of 1846 when Fremont joined forces with the Bear Flag rebels in the northern part of the State, these two guns were in the possession of "Ayuntamiento" or City Council of Los Angeles, then a cluster of adobe buildings about the Plaza. It is probable, however, that the guns were of American manufacture. They bear a marked resemblance in size and appearance to the cannon used in the Revolutionary War and the War of 1812, many of which are now in museums in the East. Hundreds of these old cannon, after the treaty of peace with Great Britain in 1815, were sold by the United States government to speculators who later disposed of them to Mexican revolutionists, at that time plotting rebellion against Spain.

This much, however, we do know positively as the statement was made more than once by Don Antonio Coronel, the friend of Helen Hunt Jackson, that the cannon were sent to California from Mexico about 1820 to be used in defending some of the port towns against pirates. In 1818 the French pirate Bouchard attacked Monterey and San Juan Capistrano. Terrified and, fearing a return of the pirate, the Californians appealed to Mexico for means of defense and among the material sent in response were the two guns now at the Courthouse steps. There is no reasonable ground for doubting that these guns have roared forth their defense to the legions of King George, and it was a strange trick of fate that though they had wandered more than 3000 miles away, one of them was to again "do its bit" for the Stars and Stripes.

In the first days of August, 1846, word reached Los Angeles that the American squadron had set sail for San Pedro. Pio Pico, at that time Governor of the State, preferred flight to submission, and leaving the city, concealed himself in one of the mission buildings until the war was over.

The military comandante, Jose Castro, however, issued a proclamation breathing defiance and calling on the natives to rally against the Americans. The two cannons were hurriedly mounted on carreta wheels. To Castro's disgust, hovewer, the Los Angelans paid little attention to his proclamation.

The Guns Were Hidden to Prevent Americans Taking Them.

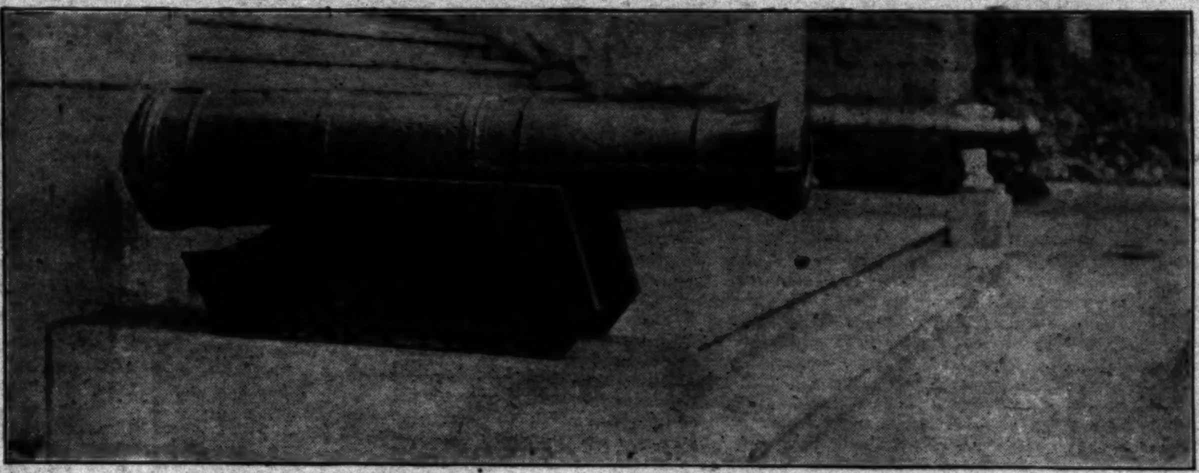
ON THE morning of the eleventh of August a courier from San Pedro dashed into the Plaza with the news that American ships were disembarking soldiers and that they would begin their march on the city on the following day. Castro, disgusted at the apathy of the people, determined that the guns at least would not fall into the hands of the Americans. He ordered them taken from their improvised carriages and buried near what is now Hollenbeck Park, and he himself set out for Mexico by the land route over the Colorado Desert.

Stockton, marching from San Pedro, effected a junction with Fremont, who marched from San Diego somewhere near Manchester, and the combined forces entered the Plaza on August 13, 1846. The natives were concerned about only two things—their religion and their land grants—and being assured by the American officers that there would be no interference with either, they accepted American rule philosophically.

Before the beginning of September Stockton left Los Angeles for the north, leaving the city in charge of Capt. Gillespie with a garrison of fifty men. Gillespie was a courageous, determined man and possessed many soldierly qualities, but as an administrator he was worse than a failure. For several years he had been in the navy, and in those days the quarterdeck of a man-of-war was not a favorable spot for acquiring the arts of a diplomat. While the stringent military regulations may have been necessary, it seems that his manner of enforcing them was such as to arouse the resentment of the natives. In some way he learned of the two cannon buried by Castro across the river, had them dug up and brought into the American headquarters. This building was an adobe, built in the form of a hollow square, with one face on Main street a few doors north of Commercial, and the other on Los Angeles street.

The Man Who Turned the Tide Of Gold Seekers to California.

GILLESPIE'S garrison consisted of twenty marines, the rest being Fremont's Bear Flag men. Among the latter was a man destined later to become famous, none other than James Marshall, who three years later discovered gold in California, an event which set the flood of emigration flowing westward. Later in his life, with the assistance of a newspaper man named Parsons, he wrote a very interesting account of the events which took place on Main street in Los Angeles seventy-two years ago this summer.



The old Courthouse cannon have had a strenuous history.

The resentment of the people against the rule of Gillespie was growing fast. His strict regulations interfered with their social life. They were far from contemplating resistance, but events over which they had no control brought on the conflict. A number of wild young men in the city, who for some time had been annoying Gillespie, decided to stage something special for the night of the sixteenth of September, the anniversary of Mexican independence. They gathered at the gate on Los Angeles street about midnight and attempted to scare the sentry by yelling, beating a drum, and firing off a gun. The sentry fired back, wounding one of them in the foot. Gillespie, angered, sent out a squad of men who arrested a dozen or more of the principal dons of the city who had had nothing whatever to do with the frolic. Their Castilian pride was hurt, and the next day the town broke out into open rebellion.

The Old Cannon Take Part in the Big Fight.

ACCORDING to Marshall's story, Gillespie ceased to take any interest in the cannon after their recovery. Marshall always claimed that he had begged Gillespie to get in some acid to eat out the spiked vent holes, and that previous to the day of the attack, he had already mounted one of the guns on a pair of carreta wheels, and that just at the moment the attack began he succeeded in punching the vent hole open with a file.

The Californians were posted on the top of a hill back of where the postoffice now stands (the hill has been much cut down since then,) on the roofs of the Plaza church and other adjacent buildings, and they showered the open court of the American headquarters with bullets. As soon as the file sank into the vent hole of the cannon Marshall pulled it out and called on the soldiers of the garrison. They had no loose powder on hand, but at his suggestion they tore up a great number of their paper cartridges, emptied them into a hat, and their cannon was loaded with a handful of pieces of iron hastily picked up around the American headquarters.

The Race that Would Win Los Angeles as Prize.

AT THIS moment one of the men stationed on the roof of the building yelled to the group around the cannon that "the greasers had another cannon and were taking it up the hill the other side of the church." Realizing the situation was critical, and that if the enemy succeeded in getting to the top of the hill first with their gun they would render the posiion of the Americans in the adobe across the street untenable, Marshall called for volunteers. A dozen of them grabbed the rope and dragged the cannon up the hill, about where the postoffice is located. The California gun meanwhile was being hauled up the other side, and the winner of the race would control the town. There were some heartbreaking moments as the garrison watched the contest, never knowing when they would see the heads of the enemy appear above the crest of the hill. But the Americans won the race easily. Once on the summit the gun was sighted and fired at the enemy who were coming up the other slope. The shot struck them fairly, killing one of the gun crew and scattering the others in flight.

The next day Gillespie and his men retreated under cover of darkness to the top of the hill, where they threw up trenches. They took with them the other gun which was still unmounted.

The Americans had won, but as their stock of provisions and ammunition was scant their position was precarious, as their escape was shut off by the armed and mounted pickets, who, keeping carefully out of rifle range, surrounded the hill on all sides. Through the efforts of B. D. Wilson, who in charge of a company of Americans had been captured at Chino a short time previously and was now being held a prisoner at the camp of the rebels in Hollenbeck Park, negotiations were begun for the surrender of Gillespie. The Californians were especially anxious to secure the cannon. They agreed to permit Gillespie and his men to depart peacefully to San Pedro and the American commander agreed to surrender his horses and the cannon when he reached the beach, and that they would leave California on the first ship that came to port. A formal treaty was drawn up and signed by both commanders in the presence of witnesses.

Taking the two cannons with them, the Americans marched to San Pedro where they made camp. The next day messengers from the Californians arrived and Gillespie surrendered the authority as per agreement, the envoys promising to return the next day for the guns. Gillespie, however, spiked the guns and broke off the trunnions, smashed the breech blocks, pounded them full of stones and flung them into the water at low tide

Many attempts have been made to defend Gillespie's action in this matter. Nothing that happened during the whole struggle for California did more to embitter the Californians than this matter of the guns. The contention has been set up that he did this in retaliation for the Californians' having shut off the stream which was bringing his supply of water to the beach. Others claim that he had promised simply to leave the guns on the beach, while still others protested that he made no agreement to give up the guns to the Californians. Those who wrote of events from the native standpoint have persistently accused him of a breach of faith.

Recent historical investigations prove Gillespie's guilt beyond a matter of doubt. Richman, the author of "California Under Spain and Mexico," published a few years ago while examining documents pertaining to the conquest of California, in the National Library at the City of Mexico, discovered the original draft of the treaty of capitulation drawn up on the hill above the Plaza. In that document, signed by Gillespie himself and witnessed by the doctor of the American forces, Gillespie agreed to surrender the guns in good condition.

The guns figured no more in the struggle for California, and while in January of the next year Stockton advanced from San Diego and after fighting skirmishes with the Californians at Montebello and Boyle Heights, entered Los Angeles on January 13, 1847, the guns were lying in the ocean fathoms deep off San Pedro.

Some years later, B. D. Wilson, who had arranged the treaty between Gillespie and the Californians, organized a search for the guns. Some of Gillespie's men had made their permanent homes in Los Angeles and they directed Wilson to the spot where the cannons were thrown into the water. After several days' hunt they were recovered.

At that time Wilson was the proprietor of a store at the corner of Main and Commercial streets. Here he placed the cannons as posts, mouth upwards in the ground, for the purpose of keeping the carretas or wagons off the sidewalk. Later they were donated by Wilson to the county, and the commissioners ordered them taken up and placed in their present position at the Broadway entrance to the county Courthouse. There they stand today, permanent mementoes of a most exciting and interesting period of Californian history, and with regret be it said as monuments, as well, to a most dastardly breach of faith on the part of an officer of the American navy.

Let us be thankful that in all our history there is no other known instance of a commissioned officer having broken his pledged word to an honorable and trusting enemy. The cannons bear their history on their face. By examining them closely you will note the broken trunnions on their sides, the spiking in the vent holes and by looking in the muzzles you will see still in place the rocks that at Capt. Gillespie's order were pounded into them seventy-two years ago. The surfaces are deeply pitted by the action of sea water and the chafing of the stones and sand during the years they lay forgotten in the water off San Pedro.

THE WAY OUT.

"That blinkin' patent spirit stove of yourn has gorn out, George."

"Well, can't yer light it again!"

"No! it's gorn out through the roof of the dugout."—[London Opinion.
